Younger hopes for executions

Ruling upholding death penalty hailed, assailed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger said he hoped the U.S. Supreme Court death penalty ruling Friday would quickly clear the way for executions of California's 58 death row inmates.

The state's top law enforcement official said at a San Francisco news conference that he thought the court's 7-2 vote, which ruled death for murder is not a cruel and unusual punishment as prohibited by the Constitution, upheld the 1972 California state death penalty statute adopted by a 2-1 vote of the people.

"I hope we can get down to where there is an orderly carrying out of executions in the near future," Younger said.

However, there was a great deal of uncertainty among legal experts about how the high court ruling affected California's death row population and the state's own death penalty law.

Because the U.S. high court ruling was not on a California case, it did not directly uphold or strike down the state death penalty law, which is based on state constitutional grounds.

That state law is being challenged by a pending case before the state Supreme Court, which once before, in 1972, ruled a California capital punishment law unconstitutional.

And in addition to its ruling upholding the death penalty, the U.S. Supreme Court struck down laws in two states that, like California's, make capital punishment mandatory for specific crimes.

At San Quentin, where the state's apple-green gas chamber is located, prison spokesman Bill Merkle said:

"We'll probably have to order supplies for it — sulfuric acid and cyanide."

The last execution in that chamber took place in April 1967 when inmate Aaron Mitchell died, and Edmund Brown Jr. was among the protesters standing outside San Quentin's gates.

Since becoming governor, Brown has said that although he personally opposes the death penalty, he will uphold the law. He added Friday he would consider each plea for clemency on its merits.

Legal experts said they did not expect the state Supreme Court to rule on the challenge to the state death penalty statute until the fall — delaying any executions until after that decision.

In the pending state case, Donald Bernard was convicted of killing a teen-age San Bernardino couple. The state court has accepted written arguments in the case. The court declined any comment Friday.

California has had a mandatory death penalty since 1974, when Prop. 17 went into effect requiring capital punishment for 11 specific crimes, including first-degree murder of an on-duty policeman.

U.S. kicks off Bicentennial

Wagons, ships roll in; site is set for 'saucers'

Associated Press

With pride in their past and hope for the future, Americans this weekend kicked off the nation's 200th birthday party — a multimillion-dollar Bicentennial extravaganza as diverse as the country's heritage.

Five Bicentennial wagon trains converged on Valley Forge, Pa., and a fleet of ships, led by 17 square-riggers, was en route from Newport, R.I., to New York City and "Operation Sail," a Sunday display of naval vessels unmatched in decades.

Much of the attention was focused on the East Coast cities that played a key part in the United States' early history — Boston, Philadelphia, New York and Washington.

But the spirit of independence and individuality was, perhaps, best displayed in the thousands of events — some sober, some silly — in towns and cities across the country starting Friday and running through Monday.

There was something for everyone: recreations of revolutionary events and dedication of a landing site for flying saucers. Sports and speeches. Parades and parties. Fireworks and frisbees. Organizers boasted of plans for the longest this, the largest that, or the first of something else.

The White House said more than 10,000 persons would be sworn in as naturalized U.S. citizens in special Bicentennial ceremonies in over a dozen cities on July 4. Some 7,000 persons are expected to take the oath in Miami alone.

The government estimated that federal expenditures so far for the Bicentennial have totaled $400 million, including $51.8 million to the American Revolutionary Bicentennial Commission.

A key event on July 4 will be the pealing of bells, starting at 2 p.m., supposed to be the exact moment the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia announced the Declaration of Independence. The Liberty Bell itself is too fragile to be struck, but members of the Pennsylvania Society will make do with a ring of the Centennial Bell.

Other bellringers across the country will follow suit. "Let every American resolve that this nation, under God, will meet the future with the same courage and dedication Americans showed the world two centuries ago," said President Ford in urging the bell-ringing.

There were some discordant notes: protests in several cities, labor troubles in Philadelphia and Detroit, smaller-than expected crowds in some areas, worries about fatal accidents in New York.

But the over-all mood of the country as the year-long parade of Bicentennial events came to a July 4 climax was one of exuberance.

The Bicentennial wagon trains — some 2,000 persons in 200 covered wagons representing all 50 states — planned to make camp Saturday afternoon at Valley Forge, where George Washington wintered with his troops.

Ford, in one of six speeches scheduled for the five-day period that started Thursday, planned a Sunday visit to Valley Forge to sign a bill making the area a national park.

'Outsider' named deputy

L.B. police feud over new chief

By MOLLY BURRELL
Staff Writer

Evidence of bitter dissension in the Long Beach Police Department over the recent appointment of outsider Carl Calkins as assistant chief surfaced Friday.

It focused on an apparent scapegoat—Deputy Chief Willis Platt.

Platt said the dissension is led by at least five officers who have tried to muster support to oppose the selection of a man outside the department as heir-apparent to the job now held by Chief Ralph Kortz, 65.

Calkins, whose appointment was announced June 14, is to assume duties Aug. 1. He is the former director of community safety for Carson. In 1974 he retired as captain after 20 years with the Los Angeles Police Department.

His selection ended a nationwide hunt for someone to fill the No. 2 spot. He was picked from a list of 184 which included six top officers on the Long Beach force.

The four finalists included Long Beach Capt. William F. Stovall; Walter Pudinski, former California Highway Patrol commissioner, and Inspector John Graham of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department.

THE five men spearheading the opposition to Calkins are Deputy Chief Robert Hill, Stovall, Lt. Doug Bostard, Sgt. Bill Barfield and patrolman Arnold Summers, Platt said.

Because he has refused to join in the opposition movement, Platt said Friday, he has become the target of a reprisal move designed to discredit him.

The reprisal move, he said focuses on an incident 2½ years ago during which Platt told a watch commander to invesigate a complaint from a downtown bar owner about police "rousting."

"I told the watch commander, Capt. Forrest Smith, to look into it and if it looked like a vice-squad roust to hold it until I could talk to the chief about it," Platt said.

Platt said he had called Smith after several complaints from the same owner that his bar, the Safari Room, 120 Long Beach Blvd., had been singled out for harassment. Platt said he had told the man to call him the next time officers appeared to be harassing him.

"We can't have that. No one should be rousted in this or any town," Platt said Friday. "I discussed the matter with then-Chief William Mooney two days after the incident and the matter was subsequently dropped."

At the time, Platt said, someone had interpreted his action as a "fix" or protection in return for a payoff. Thus he had made every effort to discuss it fully with the chief and volunteered to take a lie

Transcript reveals Mayer fear

By JOANNE NORRIS
Staff Writer

Former Long Beach Planning Director Ernest Mayer Jr. backed out of a plan to help a prominent Long Beach attorney with a development in Carson because he feared investigations of corruption into Long Beach city government, according to a grand jury transcript released Friday.

Part of the transcript, a taped conversation between Mayer and Long Beach architect James Coppedge, said Mayer stepped out of the deal with attorney George Hart because he decided it "wasn't worth it."

Mayer said in the conversation that he had turned the project over to former Huntington Beach Planning Director Kenneth A. Reynolds.

The transcript in which the taped conversation was entered was taken from proceedings before the Los Angeles County grand jury last May.

Mayer was indicted by the jury June 2 on two counts of bribery stemming from his alleged acceptance of more than $50,000 in bribes from Coppedge and another Long Beach architect, Claflin A. Ballance.

According to another section of the transcript, Coppedge and Ballance testified that Mayer had what amounted to "dictatorial" powers over the Long Beach Planning Commission, which "rubber-stamped" his recommendations.

"If you wished to have a project developed in Long Beach, you had to have his approval or you (got) no further," Coppedge told the jury.

". . . The planning director had assumed over the years a posture where his recommendations were couched virtually as a fiat to the commission," Coppedge said.

The Carson land development project was discussed in a tape recording made Jan. 23, 1976.

Mayer—unaware that he was being taped—discussed the development with Coppedge and said he had been drawn into involvement in the project by attorney Hart.

Copies of feasibility studies on the project, 70 acres south of the frontage road for the Artesia Freeway between Main Street and Avalon Boulevard, were found in Mayer's apartment shortly after his arrest.

The Carson City Council recently rejected an appeal on a zone change for the land which is controlled by Union Bank and Title Insurance and Trust Co. as trustees of an estate.

In the taped conversation, Mayer describes it as a "fine piece of property" and says Hart "led me to it and wanted me to do the work on (it) but after thinking about it, the investigations (probes of alleged civic corruption in Long Beach city government) that were a problem at the time and everything I decided that there

Bomb kills 18 in Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A powerful bomb ripped through the lunchtime crowd in a dining hall for federal antiguerrilla police Friday, killing 18 persons and injuring 66, the army reported.

A spokesman said 11 of the injured were in grave condition.

A source said authorities had difficulty counting the dead and injured because the bomb had literally shredded bodies. Another said the blast caused the dining hall ceiling to cave in.

"DEBRIS IS STILL being removed" from the heavily damaged building, an army communique stated. More than 100 policemen were estimated to have been in the hall at the time.

The explosion, in a seven-story downtown building, occurred several hours after troops and police reported killing 17 guerrillas in a clash around Argentina's biggest army base.

In another development in Argentina's continuing political troubles, 27 Chilean exiles took refuge at the Canadian embassy in Buenos Aires, an official there said Friday. He said the refugees felt threatened in Argentina.

The government said three soldiers were wounded in the predawn battle with guerrillas outside the Campo de Mayo army base, 20 miles north of Buenos Aires.

The army said guerrillas opened fire and hurled grenades at a military truck traveling near a camp arsenal. The soldiers, with police support, returned the fire, killing 12 attackers, then pursued those fleeing and killed five more, the army said.

The deaths raised to 37 the number of guerrillas reported killed in three days of fighting between leftist insurgents and the forces of Argentina's military government.

Ford vetoes bill delaying base closures

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford vetoed a $3.3 billion military construction bill Friday, saying he objected to a provision that gives Congress a review of military base closings. It was Ford's 50th veto.

The President told Congress the bill is generally acceptable in providing a comprehensive construction program for fiscal year 1977. "One provision, however, is highly objectionable," he said.

He said the objectionable section "would prohibit certain base closures or the reduction of civilian personnel at certain military installations, unless the proposed action is reported to Congress and a period of nine months elapses, during which time the military department concerned would be required to identify the full range of environmental impacts of the proposed action."

The Pentagon had recommended that Ford veto the bill because it said it would be forced to delay shutdowns or cutbacks at some 16 military bases for at least a year. It would delay the elimination of 10,000 military and civilian positions and prevent the military from saving about $150 million in the year.

Ford also said the provision was not sound government policy because it would substitute an arbitrary time limit and set of requirements for the current procedures under which base closures and reductions are effected.

He said the current procedures comply with the national environmental policy act and adequately take into account all other relevant considerations, and afford extensive opportunity for public and congressional involvement.

"By imposing unnecessary delays in base closures and reductions the bill's requirements would generate a budgetary drain on the defense dollar which should be used to strengthen our military capabilities," he added.

The President also said the section "raises serious questions by its attempt to limit my powers over military bases. The President must be able, if the need arises, to change or reduce the mission at any military installation if and when that becomes necessary."

He added that the bill provides only a limited waiver of the requirements in case of military emergency or national security.

The Pentagon said the bases subject to delayed closure or reduction under the bill were:

The Army's Jefferson Proving Ground in Indiana, Ft. Devens, Mass., Ft. Hamilton-Totten, N.Y., Ft. Indiantown Gap, Pa., the Army Aviation Maintenance activity at the New Cumberland, Pa., depot, the Army Aviation Research and Development Command, an Army troop support and aviation material readiness command, both in St. Louis; and Ft. Buchanan, Puerto Rico.

Also, the Key West, Fla., Naval Air Station, the Navy Resale System Office, Brooklyn, N.Y., the Naval Ship Repair Facility on Guam, the Defense Clothing Factory in Philadelphia, Craig Air Force Base, Ala., Loring Air Force Base, Maine, Webb Air Force Base, Tex., and Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base, Mo.

Boston bus foes claim bombings

Combined News Services

BOSTON — A telephone caller claiming to represent a militant antibusing group said Friday that his organization was responsible for two of three predawn bombings in the Boston area. No one was injured in the blasts, which occurred over a three-hour period. An airliner and a National Guard truck were destroyed, and one of the nation's oldest working courthouses was heavily damaged. The telephone caller, who said he was a member of the South Boston Defense League, also threatened to disrupt a Bicentennial ship parade into Boston Harbor on July 10. "We've been afraid of this," the FBI agent said. "There have been rumors for months that something like this could occur. The Bicentennial weekend is very important to this country. Any group that's trying to get its message across knows that this is the time when they'll get attention."

Uranium export approved

WASHINGTON — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission announced Friday its approval of an initial shipment of low-enriched uranium for a nuclear reactor site in India, but it held open the issue of continued exports. U.S. export of enriched uranium has been opposed by three U.S. citizen groups, concerned that India, which has developed an atomic bomb, is building a reprocessing facility at Tarapur which could upgrade fuel-level uranium toward concentrations suitable for bombs. The Sierra Club, the Union of Concerned Scientists, the Natural Resources Defense Council and the Justice Department all agreed not to object to the approval of an initial uranium shipment provided the NRC did not treat it as a precedent influencing its later decisions.

Bicentennial affront

PHILADELPHIA — The City of Brotherly Love has run afoul of the Chinese-American community here by trying to dress up Chinatown for the Bicentennial. First of all, the Chinese Benevolent Association, comprised of leaders of various regional, family and business associations in Chinatown, says it was not consulted about the "dolling up." Then the city painted intersections elsewhere in center city red, white and blue. But, in Chinatown, the intersections were painted yellow and green. Finally, the city hung banners on poles throughout Chinatown, but the banners are the same as those used by the Chinese to signify the death of an elderly member of the family. These affronts to the Chinese in Philadelphia come on the heels of a flap over assignment of the Philadelphia Dragon Club group to the "foreign nations" section of the July 4 parade.

Blue flu ends, 22 fired

DETROIT — The two-day Detroit police blue flu strike ended Friday, but at least 22 officers were fired for faking illness to protest department policies. Another undetermined number of officers face loss of pay if they cannot substantiate the ailments they claimed kept them from reporting for duty Wednesday and Thursday. The department said absenteeism Friday was below normal and police were patrolling city streets in the same force they did before the work stoppage The blue flu broke out in protest over police layoffs, a federal court order protecting the jobs of women officers, the department's affirmative action program to hire and promote members of minority groups, and the recent suspension of officers accused of living outside the city in violation of city laws.

Lebanese agree to new cease-fire

CAIRO — All parties in the Lebanese civil war have agreed to a cease-fire starting Friday night, the Middle East News Agency reported from Damascus. It said Arab League Secretary-General Mahmoud Riad declared the cease-fire, the 49th since the civil wa began in April 1975, would go into effect everywhere in Lebanon simultaneously. But at 1 a.m., there was no indication that the it had taken hold, although radios controlled by both sides repeated announcement of the truce throughout the night. Earlier in the day, a Palestinian relief column punched down from the mountains to ease pressure on crumbling defenses of a Palestinian refugee camp besieged by rightist Christians in a major battle. The surprise Palestinian attack from the rear slowed the 11-day-old assault on the Tal Zaatar camp, although 6,000 rightist soldiers continued to stage repreated assaults.

Arab protester slain

TEL AVIV — Israeli troops opened fire on Palestinian protesters Friday in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, killing one person and wounding about 30, Arab sources said. The slain youth was the 11th Palestininan killed this year by security forces in demonstrations against Israeli rule on the West Bank. The latest protest was prompted by a new Israeli tax. A journalist in the West Bank town of Nablus reported troops fired on hundreds of demonstrators swarming through the Christian sector of the city.

Hijack negotiations

KAMPALA, Uganda — Diplomats negotiated with pro-Palestine hijackers Friday on the fate of 110 hostage passengers and crewmen of an Air France plane held since Monday at Uganda's Entebe airport. Most of those held are Israelis. The hijackers, who released 148 hostages on Wednesday and Thursday, have demanded freedom by 7 a.m. Sunday for 40 extremists imprisoned in Israel and 13 others held in West Germany, Switzerland and Kenya. No developments were reported in the long-distance negotiations reaching back to Paris and Tel Aviv.

Soviet factory deal

PARIS — A French firm signed a contract Friday with the Soviet Union to build what it said will be the biggest aluminum plant in the world. The plant will go up on the shores of the Black Sea at a cost of $255 million and produce 1 million tons of aluminum a year, the firm of Pechiney Ugine Kuhlmann said. Production is to begin in 1979. The world's largest aluminum plant now is in Canada.

Sudan coup crushed

CAIRO — The Sudanese government said Friday it had crushed a daylong military rebellion against President Jaafar el-Numairi that involved heavy fighting in the streets of Khartoum, the Middle East News Agency reported. The government in Khartoum issued a statement saying, "The situation is entirely under the control of Sudanese security forces."

Large utility bill settled for small change

Combined News Services

When Betty Johnson learned that her electric bill was $89.43, she decided to protest. So she marched to a bank and then to city hall and then paid her bill — in dimes, nickels and pennies.

"I think everybody in city hall paraded down to see who the nut was with all the change," Mrs. Johnson said Friday in Homestead, Fla., after the incident at Homestead Utilities, the municipal power service.

She used a beach bag to carry the rolls of change. "The change was so heavy it ripped the beach bag," she said. "It weighed so much I had to take a pill for my heart."

"Oh, my God," said city cashier Mercedes Sepulveda. "I couldn't believe what my eyes were seeing...It took an hour and a half to count it all. I just couldn't understand it. All that money and there wasn't one quarter — not even one."

Goldwyn

Frances Howard Goldwyn, onetime actress and high-fashion model who was married to the late Samuel Goldwyn for 49 years, has died, a family spokesman said Friday in Los Angeles.

Funeral services are pending at Forest Lawn in Glendale.

Before Goldwyn died two years ago at age 91, he once described his wife as "the best man I've got on my staff." In Goldwyn's later years, his wife effectively ran his motion picture enterprises.

Mrs. Goldwyn gave up her own acting and modeling career when she married Goldwyn in 1925.

Her duties at the Goldwyn studios in the later days consisted mainly of supervising the frequent rentals of the old lot and the re-release of older Goldwyn movies — such as "Wuthering Heights," "The Best Years of Our Lives" and "Guys and Dolls."

Postponed

The NAACP board of directors voted Friday to postpone until September a decision on whether Roy Wilkins will be forced to retire Jan. 1.

But the 75-year-old executive director of the nation's oldest civil rights organization disagreed with both the reasoning behind the postponement and the postponement itself.

Wilkins, who for 22 years has headed the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, wants to remain on the job until the 1977 convention in St. Louis, his hometown.

Wilkins threw the annual convention into an uproar Thursday when he took the podium and announced that he did not, as the association previously announced, want to retire Jan. 1. He asked the delegates for their support in his efforts to remain on the job until next year.

Wilkins has been an employe of the NAACP for 44 years. His name has been synonomous for two decades with the organization that brought the school desegegation issue, as well as other equal rights questions, successfully before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Boatbuilder

Niklas Koltri, in Seattle on a cultural exchange visit, plans to build a 19-foot boat that looks like a Viking ship in two weeks, if celebrating doesn't interfere.

Kolti, 67, a master boatbuilder in his Faeroe Islands home in the north Atlantic, was asked to construct the wooden craft for permanent display in the predominantly Scandinavian community of Ballard, Wash.

"I'm having such a good time on this visit, it's going to be difficult to complete the boat by July 12 when we are scheduled to go home," he said. "If I don't get invited to too many celebrations, I'll make it."

Anonymous

An anonymous private buyer paid $1.8 million at an art auction in London Friday for a painting of the crucifixion by the 13th century Sienese artist Duccio di Buoninsegna.

Just 113 years ago, the same picture in the same auction room fetched a modest 250 guineas, now worth $472.50.

The picture, sold by Mary Countess of Crawford, of Colinsburgh, Scotland, will probably go to the U.S., a spokeswoman for Christie's art auction house said.

But art experts said there is little doubt a major effort will be made to keep the picture in Britain. This has been done before with other works through legal curbs on the export of art masterpieces.

Libel

Henry Wynberg, a former boyfriend of actress Elizabeth Taylor, Friday filed a $4.5-million libel suit against the National Enquirer newspaper.

In a federal court suit in Los Angeles, Wynberg accused the tabloid of libel and slander in implying that he was using his relationship with Miss Taylor for financial gain.

Wynberg's suit seeks $1.5 million in general damages and $3 million in punitive damages. It claims the article has caused him to be "shunned and avoided."

Ebsen

Ebsen, 68, was undergoing tests to determine if the pains are caused by a mild attack of phlebitis, sprain or strain, said a spokesman for Quinn Martin Productions, makers of the television series.

Kesey

A federal judge in Portland, Ore., has ruled that novelist Ken Kesey, author of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," cannot sue the producers of the Academy Award-winning movie based on the book for fraud.

Judge Otto Skopil of U.S. District Court also ruled that Kesey, of Pleasant Hill, Ore., cannot sue for $100,000 for emotional distress caused by an alleged breach of contract.

The movie, based on Kesey's 1962 novel, won five Academy Awards, including one for the best picture. Kesey is suing for 5 per cent of the film's gross profits, $750,000 in exemplary and punitive damages, and $19,000 he says he is owed for writing a screenplay.

Movie

Universal Pictures said Friday in Los Angeles that it had acquired rights to "The Melvin Dummar Story," a film about a man named in a purported Howard Hughes will.

Art Linson, co-producer of the film, said it will be centered on the lives of Dummar, his first wife, Linda Dummar, and Hughes during 1968, the time when Dummar said he picked up Hughes in the desert and befriended him.

Dummar, a gas station attendant in Willard, Utah, was named as an heir to an estimated $165 million in a will filed in Las Vegas.

Linson said both Dummar and his former wife were paid for the rights and would participate in the profits of the film. He declined to say how much they had been paid, but said it was less than a rumored $300,000.

Threat

A telephoned death threat against movie actor Richard Dreyfuss was made after the actor, working on a film in Mobile, Ala., denounced the Ku Klux Klan as "the enemy of everything I believe in."

News Director Carlton Cordell of WALA-TV in Mobile said a male voice made the threat in a Thursday night telephone call to the television station switchboard operator.

Indicted doctor may still practice

Associated Press

A Los Angeles Superior Court judge said Friday that a doctor charged with killing 17 infants at his cut-rate baby clinic may continue to practice medicine.

Judge Charles Vogel ruled that Dr. Joseph Emory, indicted on multiple murder charges in the deaths, could continue to practice, but only under strict supervision.

And, Vogel said, Emory, 55, could not deliver any more babies.

Emory and his wife, Harriet, 52, were still in county jail Friday, held on bail of $200,000 each. Their son Alan, 32, was being held on $100,000 bail.

Following a lengthy hearing, Vogel also ruled in a related case that the State Board of Osteopathic Examiners could not suspend Emory's probationary license without a hearing.

Emory, whose license was reinstated after a second-degree murder conviction 16 years ago, has been indicted by the county grand jury on 51 counts, including murder, conspiracy and child endangering. His wife and son have also been indicted, as well as six other persons.

In his ruling, Vogel said Emory had to refrain from "performing or assisting in any obstretrical, gynecological, or surgical procedure" pending a trial on a civil suit brought by the state health director.

The judge said if Emory continued to practice surgery and obstetrics, "there would be a substantial risk to the community, and the public's health would be jeopardized."

But he indicated a total ban on Emory's medical practice might jeopardize the doctor's rights to due process.

Less for more?

I recently read that 400 water companies in the state are going to distribute to their customers devices that will help conserve water. Each device will cost the companies only $1, but the California Public Utilities Commission is going to allow these firms to increase their rates to recover their expenses. I could understand a one-time-only charge of $1 for each customer, but I'd like to know why these companies will be allowed to impose permanent increases. As far as I can figure, I will be forced to use less water and pay more for it. Mrs. E.K., Lakewood.

Municipal water companies, such as the ones in Lakewood and Long Beach, are not involved in the program you referred to. The 400 private water companies affected by the PUC ruling will be allowed to pass along the cost of their water conservation plans to their customers, but the firms won't get permanent rate increases because of these programs, according to a spokeswoman for the state commission. The PUC does not regulate municipal utility companies. The commission ordered the private water companies to distribute water conservation kits or to develop comparable programs to limit water use, but customers are not required to participate. The conservation kits consist of plastic containers which are immersed in toilet tanks, and fittings for shower heads to reduce the size of the spray. If you want to practice conservation on your own, you can limit the amount of water used by your toilet by placing a brick or open plastic bottle in the tank.

When a person with no money and no relatives dies, how long is his body kept in the morgue? Do his friends have enough time to try to come up with the money for burial or does the county bury or cremate him? N.S., Long Beach.

By law, an unclaimed body must be held at least three days and if friends want to handle the burial arrangements, the body could be held up to two weeks. According to Arthur Graham of the Los Angeles County public administrator's office, the agency that usually takes over when a person dies leaving no heirs or relatives, "We will give the friends time if they have indicated a desire" to handle the arrangements. Normally, a body is held from one to two weeks, allowing time for an investigation by the public administrator's office. If no friends come forward, and if the investigation finds that there are insufficient assets in the deceased person's estate to cover the cost of a traditional burial, the body will be cremated at county expense unless his religion forbids it. If he was Jewish or Catholic, the public administrator's office will notify either the Jewish Free Burial Society or the Catholic archdiocese which provide burial arrangements for their members.

Paint problem

Aug. 5, 1975, I had my car painted for $158 at Anderson's Body Shop, 935 Hill St. Two days later, the paint began to chip and peel. Since I was due to leave for college then, the owner, Eligh Anderson, said that the next time I was home for vacation, he would repaint my car. When I came home this summer, I immediately took my car back to Anderson's. The paint on the hood, doors and half the trunk has almost completely chipped away. Anderson told me that his son, who originally painted the car would have to do the work and he would be there June 7. I took my car in on that date, but the son never showed up. I was told to come back the next day, which I did, but he still wasn't there. I was told to come back June 12 and leave my car, but when I went back that night, the car hadn't been touched. The owner said to come back the next day and his son definitely would be there, but he wasn't. The owner finally said he'd call me and let me know if I would get my car repainted or get a refund, but he never called. I have a two-year guarantee on the paint job, Can Action Line help? C.W., Long Beach.

No. Anderson maintains "the paint was damaged in a sandstorm" and he'll repaint your car only if you pay another $45. He claims he never told you he would redo the entire job at no charge, and he won't give you a refund. "I saw only one little chip after the car was painted, and I told him I would touch it up, but I'm not responsible for the sandstorm damage," Anderson said.

Proposes withholding part of funding

Hahn opposes new smog board

From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn Friday said he would fight to withhold county funds from a regional smog control board brought into being when Gov. Brown signed AB250 over the objections of county supervisors.

Hahn said he believed the state should take over the whole problem of smog control because "smog knows no boundaries, is a statewide problem, and should therefore be controlled by the state at state cost."

He said he will move Tuesday to have county officials draft legislation amending AB250 to provide for the state takeover and state funding.

He described the newly formed South Coast Air Quality Management District spawned by the bill as "taxation without representation." Under the new agency, Hahn said, Los Angeles County would have to pay 73 per cent of the cost while having only 20 per cent of the representation.

"This is unjust, unfair and wrong. I for one would be willing to withhold county funds from the new agency and let the matter go to the courts," he told a press conference in his office.

Earlier in the day Brown traveled to El Monte to sign the bill which creates a regional district comprising Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

The regional district would become effective in February 1977 and would permit local authorities to shut down businesses which pollute the air.

Its board would be made up of two Los Angeles County supervisors, one each from Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties; one Los Angeles city councilman; one city councilman from some other city in Los Angeles county; one council representative from Orange County; one councilman from a city in either San Bernardino or Riverside counties, and one representative of the governor.

During budget deliberations earlier this week, supervisors expressed their dissatisfaction with the makeup of the new board and urged Brown to veto the bill.

Meanwhile, the board voted to set aside the bulk of its 1976-77 funding commitment for the present four-county voluntary smog control district in a reserve fund. Los Angeles county's financing commitment for a full year would have been $5.7 million.

Supervisors, however, agreed to put only one quarter of this in the budget to enable temporary funding of the voluntary district. The remaining three quarters was placed in a reserve fund and can only be released with four affirmative votes of the five-man board.

Hahn noted the primary cause of smog still is the automobile, for which the state already has complete responsibility.

Fishermen off Mexico face arrest

Sports fishermen headed for Mexican coastal waters this weekend were warned by the U.S. State Department that they may face arrest, the impounding of their boats and a maximum fine of $24,000.

In June, Mexico extended its offshore jurisdiction from 12 to 200 miles. Negotiations are underway between the U.S. and Mexico on a pact to allow both commercial and sports fishermen from the U.S. to operate in Mexican waters.

The warning was printed in the Local Notice to Mariners, a publication of the 11th District Headquarters of the Coast Guard.

Fire destroys car parts firm

A fire of undetermined origin caused more than $40,000 damage to an auto parts warehouse and its contents in county territory north of Lynwood Friday before fireman brought the blaze under control.

The 5:15 a.m. fire at Schwartz Auto Parts warehouse at 10900 Alameda St. was fought for an hour by five county fire units and three units from Lynwood, deputies said.

Traffic was rerouted for more than an hour around the fire scene.

Rare turtles born at zoo

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Rare Galapagos tortoises are being born at the San Diego Zoo for the first time since 1971.

A spokesman said seven were completing the hatching process, which takes two or three days, begun last Sunday. Their mother is known only as No.1.

The tortoises are found only on the Galapagos islands off the west coast of South America but are also located now in zoos in Bermuda, Honolulu, Philadelphia and San Diego.

Cal. near job force record

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's work force last month nearly matched the record high of 22 months ago, as the state's unemployment rate dropped to 9.2 per cent, state officials said Friday.

The unemployment rate declined from 10 per cent in May, in contrast with a nationwide increase from 7.2 to 7.5 per cent.

The Employment Development Department reported that 8,685,000 Californians had jobs in June, 88,400 more than May and 145,200 above June of last year.

THE JUNE EMPLOYMENT total was 13,900 below the state record of 8,698,900 in September 1974.

California's unemployed increased by 40,900 to 950,000 from May to June. But that's less than expected, EDD said, because June usually is a peak month for seasonal unemployment with the influx of school graduates into the job market.

Between May and June last year, unemployment in California rose by 82,900, more than twice this year's increase. The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate a year ago was 9.8 per cent.

The department said a record 7,994,200 persons were employed in all industries, except agriculture, in the state, an increase of 48,900 from May's record total.

ALL INDUSTRIES EXCEPT construction had increases in workers. Contruction jobs declined 1,400 to 291,000.

The services industry, including hotels, motels, medical and health, legal and recreation, had the biggest increase, 16,800 to a June total of 1,629,800.

Agriculture reported employment of 341,500 in June, an increase of 40,100 over May.

EDD reported that 632,277 persons claimed or received unemployment benefits in the week ending June 18, a decline from 688,409 in mid-May.

Nationally, the number of jobless Americans increased 280,000 in June to 7.1 million, while the number of employed dropped 200,000 to 87.5 million.

THE WHITE HOUSE SOUGHT to explain the increase as a statistical quirk, but other administration economists said that could be only a partial explanation. Labor Department analysts declined to concede any problems in their numbers.

Sidney L. Jones, assistant Treasury secretary for economic affairs, said that while an increase in the jobless rate had been expected, it indicates that the recent rapid increase in employment and the sharp drops in unemployment "at least for one month have leveled off."

This "obviously is a disappointing figure," he told a reporter.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the President's advisers still believe that the unemployment rate will go below 7 per cent by the end of the year.

"WE DID NOT EXPECT the unemployment to go straight down without a monthly uptick or two," Nessen said.

Unemployment increased in June for nearly every category of the nation's labor force, except teen-agers. Even worse, in the opinion of some analysts, was a rise of nearly two weeks in the average duration of unemployment, which jumped to 16.9 weeks, equal to the recession high of last December.

Among adult men, unemployment rose from 5.6 per cent in May to 6 per cent in June; for women, from 6.8 to 7.1 per cent; for whites, from 6.6 to 6.8 per cent, and for blacks, from 12.2 to 13.3 per cent. Teen-age unemployment remained unchanged at about 18.4 per cent.

Unemployment among construction workers rose to 17 per cent, up from 14.1 per cent in May, and the jobless rate for blue-collar craft workers climbed 7.3 per cent, up from 6.2 per cent. Manufacturing employment fell slightly for the second consecutive month.

Schools gain, but colleges', UC items slashed

Brown trims, signs new state budget

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's public schools generally did well in the new state budget approved Friday, but colleges once again were a target of selective slashes from Gov. Brown's scalpel.

Brown chopped off a University of California medical clinic in Orange County, knocked out 34 proposed state college teaching positions, and cut the size of student scholarships.

He also set most state employe salary increases — including every public college and university employe, from janitors to UC President David Saxon — at $70 a month instead of the usual percentage raises.

Technically, the UC regents can distribute salary money any way they want. Actually, they are virtually bound to follow the $70-a-month formula.

The education budget includes about $2.8 billion for grades kindergarten through 12 and $1.8 billion for higher education, including UC, the State University and Colleges, and community colleges.

Here's a closer look:

Public schools— Spending is up about 10 per cent, including a $272 million school finance bill that Brown also signed Friday. It raises the state's foundation program to about $1,200 per student, a figure school districts say will enable them to avert large-scale layoffs and program cuts.

Early Childhood Education, state schools chief Wilson Riles' program of personalized instruction and small classes in the first three grades, gets a $35-million boost to $97 million, enough to cover more than half the schools.

The budget doesn't include money for still-pending legislation to extend the program to grades 4-6 and for another reform plan for the upper grades.

IT ALSO contains no money to meet the Serrano court decision, except for a provision of the school finance bill requiring some wealthy school districts to pool statewide some tax money they raise on their own.

The Serrano decision is expected to become final late this year, ordering the state to equalize spending abilities of its school districts. The cost could run into the billions.

The school bill also includes $40 million that will remove Brown's 5 per cent growth limit on adult education and community colleges, while changing state support formulas in an attempt to remove incentives for expansion.

Scholarships— Brown approved $7 million for a 50 per cent increase in the Educational Opportunities Program of scholarships, mostly for minorities, and another $1.8 million for a similar increase in the College Opportunity Grant program.

But he rejected $3.2 million for inflation increases in the size of state scholarship and COG awards.

UC— The nine-campus system also gets about a 10 per cent increase. But it had some fiscal disappointments besides the flat pay raise.

Brown rejected $150,000 to open a third medical clinic near UC Irvine's Orange County Medical Center. Charles Gocke of the state Finance Department said the budget includes money for two clinics, and the third should wait until the future.

State colleges—The 19-campus system gets slightly more than 10 per cent, including $3.8 million for 526 new teachers.

But Brown, who has been publicly skeptical about the value of smaller college classes, cut $560,000 that would have added another 34 teachers and slightly reduced the teacher-student ratio.

He also rejected $250,000 to double the size of the colleges' affirmative action office to hire women and minorities. Brown says affirmative action is a matter of will, not money.

Here are more of Gov. Brown's vetoes:

Mentally ill—Deleted a $200,000 legislative augmentation for additional county coordinators for support of the judicially committed mentally ill, leaving $100,000 which he said was enough to start a program involving five counties for evaluation and patient tracking at Atascadero State Hospital.

Alcoholism—Saying he continues to question the effectiveness of the program, cut aid to local alcoholism programs by $2 million, leaving $2 million because of what he called the Legislature's strong interest.

Drug buys—Cut $67,500 from the Department of Justice's support budget of $20.7 million, he said, to reflect the amount needed for undercover drug purchases.

Mental health—For assistance to local mental health services, cut $1.25 million, which leaves $22.4 million increase for mental health programs, a 6 per cent increase for cost of living and $10.5 million toward equalizing funding of local mental health services.

State hospitals—Cut $4 million and left $6 million for increasing state hospital staff, saying the state will evaluate results of pilot projects and propose appropriate action.

Early Childhood Education—Cut $250,000 from support of Early Childhood Education, the amount for an American Indian ECE pilot program. He said this program should be considered part of the regular EOE program pending completion of a final report.

Disabled—Eliminated $1 million for support of community programs to serve developmentally disabled persons.

Plague threat closes 2 parks

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Two more Northern California campgrounds have been closed because of the threat of bubonic plague, state health officials said Friday.

The Mono County campgrounds, Holiday Overflow and Rock Creek, were closed after several golden-mantle squirrels were found dead, and authorities suspected the plague killed them.

The campgrounds will remain closed for at least two weeks, officials said.

Esther Seaman, spokeswoman for the Department of Health, said there were no definite reports yet on whether plague killed the squirrels. Final test results were due over the weekend.

Last week, officials announced the closing of a Plumas County park at Gray Eagle after a 5-year-old girl was bitten by plague-infected fleas. The girl is recovering in San Francisco.

There have been no reports of humans catching the plague in either of the newly closed parks, Miss Seaman said. But she said anyone who was in the area and gets a fever should contact a doctor immediately.

N. Calif. fire near control

RED BLUFF (AP) — The stubborn inferno that blackened 72,000 acres of timber and rangelands neared containment Friday although some air tankers were diverted to a new fire several miles away.

Bill Richards of the California Division of Forestry said a second fire, five miles north of the 112-square-mile blaze, charred eight acres before several air tankers and ground crews controlled it. He said several homes were saved but a barn was destroyed.

ABOUT 2,600 fire fighters with 134 pieces of equipment continued to work California's largest fire in five years. Forestry officials say the wind-whipped blaze, apparenty started last Sunday by a lawnmower, will cost an estimated $8.5 million.

Control was expected by 6 p.m. Saturday, but a 200-acre section along the edge of the Yolla Bolly Wilderness was giving fire fighters trouble Friday, when the fire was 60-per cent controlled.

Ray Higgins, state fire-prevention officer, said the big blaze was the only active one in California after a week of fire eruptions.

"We've got our fingers crossed," he said. "It's been a rough week. But the weather pattern is favorable, with cooling weather and less north wind, which is a drying wind."

The July 4th bicentennial weekend has the potential to be a fiery one, Higgins said. "Fireworks are a problem. We're hoping and pleading with people to keep them out of the hills. All it takes is one careless person"

MOPUPS OR patrols were under way Friday on several other California fires including a 5,725-acre fire near Riverside, a 470-acre fire in Plumas County near Lake Almanor and a 350-acre fire in Yosemite National Park.

A skeleton crew of 25 men was cleaning up after a fire which burned 2,400 acres in Kings Canyon National Park. An abandoned campfire was believed responsible for the fire, which was fought by 260 men at its peak.

Auto smog device claims challenged

SANTA ROSA (AP) — A company which claims to have invented an inexpensive device that eliminates air pollution from internal combustion engines has been accused of state securities violations, it was disclosed Friday.

A Sonoma County Superior Court civil lawsuit brought by the state attorney general's office accuses the firm of selling securities without a permit, making false and misleading claims to potential investors, and unfair competition.

"Those allegations are ridiculous," said Paul Credell, spokesman for By Pass Engineering Laboratory of Santa Rosa. The firm showed off the device at a press conference Friday, the same day announcement of the legal action against the company was announced.

"WHAT WE have done is to invite the people who have made those charges to view a demonstration and see for themselves," added Credell, who described himself as an investor in By Pass.

The suit was filed Monday by the office of Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger after an investigation by the office of State Corporations Commissioner Willie R. Barnes.

The lawsuit alleges that Alfred J. Cusino and others connected with By Pass sold unauthorized securities in $1,000 denominations by claiming the device would dramatically reduce emissions while substantially improving gas mileage.

It also says investors were told they would receive "an enormous return on their investment, ranging from 500 per cent to 5,000 per cent, within the next two years."

THE SUIT says such statements are false and misleading and contends that no such device exists.

By Pass Vice President James Smith refused Friday to disclose how the device works, or what is inside the sealed unit.

Police pay $100 to get back radio

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Using a walkie-talkie radio stolen from San Diego police to bargain with its owners, a man in Mexico has sold it back for $100.

The radio valued at $1,200 was taken from a city storeroom after being checked out for repairs on May 24. Then Wednesday a strange man's voice broke into the police communications line.

"A person" in the city shop gave him the radio, but he will sell it back, the man said.

The $100 payoff finally agreed on, Snider went to a remote site on the international border east of Tijuana at midnight. A man with the radio, using a spotlight to survey the scene, was standing on the Mexican side.

The radio and the cash were exchanged.

Adios, they said.

An investigation is under way back in the city shops.

Water rationing approved for North

Associated Press

State officials said Friday they will request that drought-plagued Marin County be declared a federal agricultural-disaster area to help 73 dairy ranchers truck in water and hay.

Charles Manfred, director of the California Office of Emergency Services, made the announcement after a meeting in San Rafael to discuss the dwindling water supply in the Marin coastal area.

In San Francisco, meanwhile, the California Public Utilities Commission Friday approved California-American Water Co.'s proposal for mandatory water rationing in the Monterey Peninsula immediately.

It marks the first time the PUC — created in 1911 — has ever ordered such a rationing system.

Manfred said Gov. Brown is expected to sign a document Monday asking Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz to make the disaster declaration, which would make dairy ranchers eligible for low-interest federal loans and grants.

Manfred reported that state fire tanker trucks will be brought in to help move drinking water to the 11 coastal communities where well and stream-water supplies have dried up.

He said the state will install temporary pipes into bay and ocean salt water to provide a handy water supply to fight any fires that might break out in the tinder-dry West Marin territory.

Meanwhile, Rep. John Burton, D-Calif., said he is asking the Navy to help by either anchoring offshore a ship with a desalting plant or providing a barge that could carry 60,000 gallons of water to the county.

Having the region declared a federal disaster area would make loans and grants available to reimburse dairy ranchers, he said. It would also provide funds for trucking hay from Idaho, which is costing dairymen $20,000 to $50,000 per month because the drought has cut the grass and hay supply normally grown in the area, Giacomini said.

After hearings the past week, the PUC found that a water emergency exists in the Monterey Peninsula and there would be insufficient water for human consumption, sanitation and fire protection without rationing.

The rationing plan — which would remain in effect until further order — puts certain restrictions on water usage during three phases tied to water levels in the utility's reservoirs.

Authorities are expected to decide next week when to implement the plan and which phase would go into effect first.

There are no prohibitions when the total storage level exceeds 200 acre-feet. Phase 1 occurs when the level drops to 150 acre-feet; Phase 2, 70 acre-feet, and Phase 3, 60 acre-feet.

During Phase 1, outside landscape watering is prohibited except between 5 and 7 a.m. During Phase 2 it is limited to from 6 to 7 a.m. on Tuesdays and Fridays. During Phase 3 such watering is banned.

During all three phases, washing of paved areas and vehicles with hoses is forbidden.

Empty swimming pools may not be refilled during the three phases. Newly built pools may be filled in Phase 1 but not Phase 2. All water for pools is banned in Phase 3.

During Phase 1, golf-course watering is limited to 80 per cent of that used in the same period in 1972. This is cut down in later phases.

The PUC provided penalties for violations.

Hays at first public event since overdose

STRATTON, Ohio (AP) — Rep. Wayne Hays appeared in public for the first time Friday since taking an overdose of sleeping pills and said the excessive dosage was accidental.

The 65-year-old Democratic congressman still appeared to be weak. He came to this eastern Ohio community of 500 persons to present a Bicentennial flag and certificate.

Speaking later to reporters, Hays, the central figure in the congressional payroll-sex scandal, gave this account of the overdose that occurred June 10:

"As near as I reconstruct it, I came home late and I was very jittery and the doctor prescribed Dalmane, and he said two. I took two and I couldn't sleep. I got up and took two more and I still couldn't sleep.

"I got up the third time and I thought I took two. I may have taken three or four. I don't know. I was pretty dopey. Anyway, I got more than I could tolerate.

"I went to sleep all right, but it was a little hard waking up.

"But if I would have wanted to commit suicide, there were 30 or 40 more pills in the bottle. I could have taken all of them and that would have done it. It was just pure dopiness that you get up in the middle of the night when you don't know what you're doing and take medicine."

Hays won renomination for his 15th term to Congress in the Democratic primary on June 8 and the following day drove to Washington. He flew back to his farm the same night. The next morning, his wife was unable to awaken him and he was taken to Barnesville Hospital in a coma. He was released eight days later.

His physician, Dr. Richard Phillips, said he had prescribed Dalmane about 2½ weeks before the overdose to help relieve the stress that Hays had been under because of his admitted affair with Elizabeth Ray and his loss of a chairmanship in the House.

Miss Ray, 33, had accused Hays of paying her as a secretary while she served only as his mistress. Hays denied the accusation.

Hays, who has resigned as chairman of the powerful House Administration Committee for which Miss Ray worked, said he had no intention of quitting Congress or withdrawing from the general election.

"I lost about 15 pounds," he said. "But I've regained maybe a pound or so. I feel pretty good. I'm weak, otherwise I feel all right."

Asked about the reforms under way in the House, Hays said:

"The thing the press never did focus in on and probably never will is that all of these so-called excesses which they're now doing away with in the name of reforms were proposed by Mr. Thompson (Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J. who replaced Hays as chairman) and his subcommittee and came as a product of his subcommittee before the full committee."

As one example, Hays said he had opposed the 20-cent mileage fee and had argued for a 15-cent fee. As far as the double travel billings by some congressmen are concerned, Hays said, "If a man certifies that he traveled by car and he actually traveled by plane, we have no way of knowing how he traveled. We have to take his word for it."

Hays said he planned to return to Washington July 19 following the congressional recess.

Reagan hits White House 'pull'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan's campaign organization asked the Federal Election Commission on Friday to decide whether President Ford's use of the White House to promote his candidacy is illegal.

Unless the commission acts quickly, said Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., Citizens for Reagan will file suit to ensure that the former California governor receives equal treatment with Ford at the Republican National Convention.

"Both candidates should be treated equally" by the Republican National Committee, Laxalt told reporters. "We don't think we have been."

Laxalt and other Reagan partisans are upset on two counts: designation of Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., a Ford partisan, as temporary chairman of the nominating convention, and allocation of gallery seats and motel rooms to the White House in addition to the President Ford Committee.

On the first count, Laxalt called on the Republican National Committee to choose a temporary chairman acceptable to both candidates because of the central role that official could play in early convention maneuvering.

"We could take the fight to the floor but we don't want it to come to that," Laxalt said.

Dole, Republican national chairman during the last presidential campaign, said of the protest: "I don't think it's a big bone of contention ... I think Paul feels compelled to make a public protest, and that's certainly in order. I hope they don't carry it to an extreme; we don't need divisiveness.

"I'm very good friends with all of them (in the Reagan camp), including the candidate," Dole said in an interview.

The temporary chairman presides in the opening sessions during the crucial debates on adoption of party rules and resolution of any challenges to delegates' credentials, which could be crucial in the close Ford-Reagan contest for nomination.

On the second point, RNC Chairman Mary Louise Smith wrote the Reagan organization on Friday that a Republican administration traditionally receives "recognition" at the convention, and that Ford administration personnel have official as well as partisan functions.

Laxalt called that response totally unsatisfactory

Congressman 'guilty' of unethical conduct

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ethics Committee has recommended that Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, D-Fla., be reprimanded for official misconduct, a congressional source said Friday.

The source said the panel had found Sikes guilty in connection with conflict-of-interest allegations brought against him by the citizens lobby, Common Cause.

Sikes, 70, is chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee on military construction, which oversees billions of dollars worth of military contracts. He could not be reached immediately for comment.

The ethics panel's chairman, Rep. John J. Flynt Jr., D-Ga., announced Thursday evening that the committee had reached a decision on the Sikes case, and had adopted a report setting out recommendations for action by the full House.

However, Flynt refused to disclose details of the decision. He said the committee wished to withhold the information until its full 200-page report on Sikes was printed.

The committee's decision to urge that Sikes be reprimanded was confirmed Friday by a source close to the investigation.

The panel reportedly found Sikes guilty of violating ethical standards of the House on each of three conflict-of-interest charges brought by Common Cause, which was aided by 44 congressmen who signed the complaint against Sikes.

The three basic allegations were:

REP. ROBERT SYKES
Denies Interest Conflict

—Sikes sponsored legislation to permit commercial development on Santa Rosa Island, on which a company he partly owned held a lease. Sants Rosa Island is located along Florida's upper Gulf Coast.

—Sikes voted for a $73 million contract for Fairchild Industries while owning 1,000 shares of Fairchild stock.

—The congressman urged local and state officials to permit establishment of the First Navy Bank at Pensacola Naval Air Station. Common Cause said Sikes was an original stockholder in the bank.

The panel, formally known as the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, could have opted for several more severe penalties, including censure, a fine, loss of Sikes' subcommittee chairmanship, or even expulsion from the House.

Sikes previously has vigorously denied the conflict-of-interest charges, asserting that "the liberal media and the liberal lobby organizations" were pressing the matter "to destroy me politically."

Wiggins requests House to expel Hinshaw over bribes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles E. Wiggins has introduced a resolution asking the House to expel his fellow California Republican, lame-duck Rep. Andrew Hinshaw, because of Hinshaw's conviction on bribery charges.

Wiggins asked that the resolution be referred to the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct. He said that if the panel had not acted upon the resolution in 30 days, he would bring the matter before the full House for a vote.

Hinshaw was convicted last Jan. 26 and sentenced to prison on two counts of taking bribes. While he was assessor for Orange County and a Republican congressional candidate he allegedly solicited and received a $1,000 contribution in exchange for favors from his public office. After he was elected to Congress but before he officially took office Hinshaw solicited and received stereo equipment for other favors, the indictment said. The convictions are being appealed.

Wiggins said he offered the resolution because "I thought it was the right thing to do.

"It seemed to me that it was a responsibility which should be borne by Republicans and primarily by Californians," he stated.

Wiggins introduced the resolution Wednesday without having solicited support from other members of the House.

"I told him shortly after his conviction. . . .that I thought he should resign," Wiggins declared. "He told me that he didn't intend to do so. I indicated to him that if he didn't resign that the only remedy left was to introduce a resolution to expel him."

Hinshaw had indicated that he planned to appeal his conviction speedily, but Wiggins said the appeals are not likely to be resolved until after the 94th Congress expires.

NEW "WHEN TO WATER" Houseplant Indicator, for indoor plants, lets the plant tell you when there is sufficient moisture, and when it needs a drink of water.

Plants can tell when to water

Indoor houseplants can now tell their owners when they need to be watered and when they don't.

A company, best known for making Scotch tape and rescue kitchen pads, the 3M Company, has introduced a new helper, "When to Water" Houseplant Indicators.

The Indicators monitor water moisture rising to the surface from within the soil of a potted plant. When there is sufficient moisture in the soil to maintain the plant, the center of the one-inch, water-like disc is pink. As the soil dries out, the Indicator turns blue, a sign that it's time to water the plant.

The Indicator is placed flat on top of the soil after watering. It's seen easily, but won't spoil the plant's appearance. It works for most indoor foliage plants, and each is effective for up to a year or longer.

The Houseplant Indicators are available three to a package wherever gardening supplies are sold.

Look like basal canes

Suckers rob rose growth

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

There's some gardening folk who still can't tell the difference between a bonafide rose sucker and a basal cane. The sucker is a rose cane that grows out from below the rose bud union area.

The sucker might also grow up from the soil beside the rose bush. Both such suckers should be removed, but not by cutting them back. Those suckers should be torn off. Once removed, they're not likely to regrow. If cut back, they send out several more sucker branches where before there was only one.

The suckers that are left undisturbed rob the rose bush of some nutrients and eventually weaken the bush. In a long period of time the undisturbed suckers eventually kill off the good desirable finely bred rose.

The basal canes that look like suckers but are good, are the brand new canes which will replace an equal number of oldest woodiest canes when the gardener prunes the rose bushes during the winter pruning season.

They grow out in most cases from some bare part of the bud union area. Sometimes they grow out from the lower portion of old thick cane that has numerous secondary branches.

The bud union area is the slightly swollen portion of the bush which grew and developed the choice variety rose branches.

The trunk and the roots of the rose are the wild rose portion from which the choice variety rose obtains the vigor and growth. Some of the 1977 All America Rose Selections Awards include:

DOUBLE DELIGHT is a fragrant large flowered red and white hybrid tea rose, hybridized by Herbert C. Swim of California. He has spent his life breeding over 100 introductions of fine roses.

FIRST EDITION is a lovely coral color floribunda, introduced by Conard-Pyle Company (Star Roses), West Grove, Pennsylvania. It was created by Georges Delhard of France. This rose is good for showy hedge, also a lawn or driveway border.

PROMINENT is a bright orange grandiflora introduced by Jackson and Perkins Company of Medford, Oregon. It was bred by the famous German hybridizer Reimer Kordes. Though a grandiflora with typical candelabra type stems of blooms, it often throws many hybrid tea-like single stem roses.

As long as we're discussing colorful flowers, don't overlook some excellent perennials such as Transvaal daisies with single or double blossoms.

Water them only as they thirst but deeply, feed them at monthly intervals with a balanced fertilizer containing more phosphorus than nitrogen or potash.

They'll blossom off and on for about eight months or longer. They love the sun, but hate to have their crowns — knobby areas where leaves and blossoms spring forth — covered by soil. The crowns must be uncovered at all times.

Tulbaghia violacea with showy rosy-lavender star shaped clusters of flowers on 18 inches tall stems, towering over foot long gray green nearly half inch wide arching leaves, provides an interesting blooming clump plant.

It flowers from May into the fall season. The moisture on the leaves emphasizes the strong onion garlic like odor. It grows in sun to half shade and is a hardy perennial.

Jobs to do

Spray kills flea beetles

Flea beetles love dichondra lawns. The small black shiny beetles can cause a dichondra lawn to brown out within several days time. There are several stomach type pesticide sprays on the market. Ask the nurseryman which spray is sought out more than others, and purchase that one to attack those pests.

Foliage sharp spraying of plants that tolerate sharp hosing at about 10 days intervals. The spray dislodges old leaves that drop in the crotches of the plants. Such spraying removes possible dry pests nesting areas of plants which usually attract the pests.

Poinsettias particularly and hydrangeas too, are susceptible to spider mites infestation. The complaint of home gardeners at Christmas time when poinsettia flowers are cut for indoor decoration is ... "I can't understand why my poinsettias don't have any green leaves left on the branches!" It is due to gardener not foliage sharp water spraying underside of the leaves, periodically in the summer. Also spray with a miticide spray.

Hard spots in lawn may be due to sprinkler not wetting the particular area as do other sprinklers or sprinkler heads, therefore the lawn soil stays harder, hence poorer growth in those spots. Gardener should jab a spading fork into those hard areas, then slowly water well. Spread evenly about an eighth of an inch layer of the good steer manure or a top dressing then sprinkle well to settle it. Keep the area moist as though it had been newly seed sown until the area greens up. Check the sprinkler head.

Continue feeding roses, camellias, and azaleas. Soil must be watered well beforehand. The fertilizer must be lightly chopped into the soil with a cultivator, then watered well afterwards.

Watch for hybrid tea rose basal cane breaks. They are new canes that sprout out from the bud union area of the plant, or from lower base of older canes with many secondary branches. These canes then usually sprout out two new branches which produce long stems with lovely roses. The new growth that sprouts out below the bud union area or sprouts up from the rose root through the soil beside the rose bud, are no good. They should be torn off.

Cut carnation blossom stems well down into the leafy growth of the branches. The leafy branches have slightly swollen rings at intervals. Cut above one of the rings. Cut back thusly forces the plant to send forth several new branches that later will produce more flowers.

GARDENING

Sliding panels hide compost

If you like to make your own compost but find the pile-up an unattractive addition to your garden area, you might want to know about the new Accelerator compost bin that won the Design Council Award in 1975.

The attractive self-contained unit is designed to accept garden and kitchen wastes, preserve heat generated by natural biological action, and control aeration and moisture so that rich, crumbly, odorless, disease-free compost can be produced within weeks, for adding to garden and indoor plants as a fertilizer and soil conditioner.

Made from green interlocking panels, the Accelerator will fit into the smallest backyard space, and will do its job of producing compost silently and hygienically on either a paved surface or bare soil.

Arboretum

Queen Anne Cottage in the historical section of the Los Angeles State and County Arboretum will be decorated to commemorate the 4th of July and the Bicentennial year starting July 2...

The circular bin's interlocking panels slide up to allow access to the compost from the bottom. The circular construction ensures that internal heat generated by the process for decomposition, is evenly distributed throughout the pile for fast action.

The bins are available through the Rotocrop company, 58 Buttonwood St., New Hope, Pa. 18938. You may get information on the product by writing to them for a free booklet and a compost sample.

Estrogen linked to male heart attacks

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — A Columbia University physician has reported discovery of what may be a new factor predisposing to heart attacks, the nation's leading killer. He found that young men who were victims of heart attacks had unusually high amounts of a female sex hormone.

The levels of the hormone called estrogen were so high that seven of the 15 patients studied by the Columbia doctor at Roosevelt Hospital here did not have to shave daily. Some of the patients had also lost their sex drive and had slightly enlarged breasts, smooth skin and other forms of feminization, the doctor found. The men's levels of the male sex hormone, testosterone, were normal.

The physician, Dr. Gerald B. Phillips, a professor of medicine at Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons, said in the issue of the Lancet, British medical journal, published today in London that the findings could represent an important new risk factor for heart attacks in men.

Phillips said it was not known why the estrogen levels were raised and how they might cause heart attacks. But he theorized that physiological changes that influenced dietary and smoking habits could be among the possible explanations.

Other physicians described the findings as both surprising and exciting because they run counter to conventional medical thinking. Doctors long have believed that the high incidence of heart attacks in men meant that male hormones predisposed people to heart attacks, but relatively few studies have been done to relate hormone-test results to heart attacks.

Heart attacks in women generally occur after menopause, at which time the amount of estrogen in the body has diminished. For this reason, doctors have assumed that estrogen in some unknown way protects women against heart attacks.

Men normally have estrogen in their blood but in amounts much lower than that found in the men in the Roosevelt Hospital study. Doctors cautioned that a high estrogen level did not necessarily mean that an individual would suffer a heart attack or that the presence of a normal estrogen level would protect against a heart attack.

Phillips's report comes at a time when cardiology leaders contend an urgent need exists for reappraisal of current concepts about the cause of heart attacks and for development of a fundamentally new approach designed to reduce the impact of heart attacks on society. The American Heart Association says that Americans suffer 1 million heart attacks each year.

Phillips, who is a specialist in internal medicine with an interest in biochemistry and fat metabolism, said in an interview that his study apparently was the first to measure sex hormones in the blood of heart-attack patients. When he began his study two years ago, he said he was looking for new approaches to understanding the basic cause of heart attacks.

As a scientific short-cut to identifying previously unsuspected clues to heart attacks, Phillips said he purposely concentrated on meticulously examining young-heart attack patients.

"My style is to do careful studies on a few people rather than a large number superficially," Phillips said.

The first patient, a 38-year-old man, told Phillips that he shaved just every second or third day and had lost his sex drive over the preceding three years.

"The finding struck me as very interesting," Phillips said. "I mean masculinity had always been stressed as a factor in heart attacks." The second and third patients Phillips examined in the study also had feminizing characteristics. Accordingly, Phillips said, he decided to measure the amounts of various male and female sex hormones in the heart-attack patients. He studied 15 Roosevelt Hospital patients who had heart attacks between the ages of 32 and 42 and another 15 businessmen of comparable age and without serious illness who volunteered to serve as scientific controls.

What he learned was that the heart-attack patients on the average had higher estrogen levels than did the controls. Of the 15 heart-attack patients, 11 had none of the major known risk factors except for smoking in nine, and three of these had not smoked for three years before their heart attacks, Phillips said.

If other scientists confirm Phillips' study, he said, "the next step would be to discover the reason for the increased estrogen and to eliminate the hormone as a risk factor by drugs, dietary changes and other factors — that's the ultimate goal."

Power plants put on double fuel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Administration has issued orders to make sure 30 planned new power plants have the capability to burn both coal and oil to produce electricity.

At the same time, the agency said, it notified 48 other planned power plants that it intends to issue similar orders to them.

Water on Mars may ice Viking

By RICHARD SALTUS
AP Science Writer

PASADENA—The scanty Martian atmosphere may hold enough water vapor to form thin coats of ice on the Viking robot lander during the chill nights on Mars, a scientist reported Friday.

And the cameras mounted on the mechanical explorer may see morning ground fogs composed of ice crystals, said Dr. Crofton B. Farmer.

The scientist's report on amounts of water vapor being detected in the atmosphere confirmed earlier findings, which have been surprising because of the amounts detected.

The observations also fit his theory that liquid water could exist for short periods of time.

If true, chances of Martian life existing would be improved.

"Here we have a scenario in which small quantities of ice can go through a liquid phase daily and perhaps provide some water in the form Martian bugs would like," Farmer said.

EVER SINCE spacecraft from Earth got a glimpse of Mars a dozen years ago, the planet was thought to be incapable of containing liquid water on the surface.

Another report Friday seemed to confirm something about the planet's atmosphere that has been suspected only since a recent Soviet Mars mission—that it contains a substantial quantity of argon gas.

The importance of such a finding is that it would probably mean Mars once had a much denser atmosphere— which would have exerted sufficient pressure to allow water to exist in a liquid form. In fact, the planet might have been a very different place, complete with rushing rivers and moderate temperatures—factors that could have nurtured life.

Christ and Hatfield

MARK CLUTTER
RELIGION EDITOR

Oregon, that maverick state, has sent many strange, enchanted boys to Washington. Not across the river but to the District of Columbia.

One of the most enchanted is Sen. Mark Hatfield. He is a Republican, but that label is not typical for that party in the rest of the United States. Perhaps not entirely in Oregon.

The distinctive fact about Sen. Hatfield is that he is a Christian. He is not an ordinary Christian — a go-to-church-on-Sunday-if-there's-nothing-more-interesting-to-do type.

He takes his Christianity neat and bottled in bond. He has no use for mixed drinks containing the juices of social class, "culture," conformity or pragmatism.

Most politicians are "religious men." In hard-fought campaigns they tend to turn up at the more influential churches. Many are honest Christians and loyal members of their churches. Jimmy Carter describes himself as a "born-again" Christian, a state that he should describe in more detail.

Most politicians, hypocritical or devout, don't directly intrude Christianity into the "realities" of politics.

This radical Christian speaks his mind in season and out of season. He takes on the military-industrial complex in scathing terms.

Although he is a Navy veteran of World War II he is an almost total pacifist. He does not believe in "just wars." He concedes that the revolt of oppressed, poverty-stricken peoples against their tyrants is understandable.

Although nuclear weapons can destroy the world, he sees bureaucratic power as the greatest danger to the quality of life.

And yet, many of his ideas seem more like socialism than traditional Republicanism. People must care for each other. The hungry must be fed, the homeless sheltered. The rich must not wallow in luxury. We must all share with each other.

The senator has set forth his views in a new book, "Between a Rock and a Hard Place," (Word, $7:95.) I haven't read it yet, but I have read about it. His views are obviously open to criticism even from the most earnest Christians.

His answers raise more and harder questions. But so did the answers of his Master

RESURGENT CONSERVATISM

The United Methodist Church, like so many other institutions, has been torn for years between conservatives who seem to oppose change in all of its forms and liberals who want everything changed.

At the recent General Conference in Portland, Ore., the conservatives won a moderate victory. The truly rock-ribbed aren't entirely happy, of course, but the Methodist "hippies" were put to rout.

This is in keeping with the times. In almost every area of American society one can see a tendency to put on the brakes, if not to turn around and go back to the things we have left.

The young rebels of the 1960s are a lost generation. Some wander around a bit dazed at a world that is passing them by. Others have struck their colors and joined the "establishment."

If there is any generality that can be made about history, it must be this: Every action will create a reaction. This is not to say that society will become ultraconservative. It does mean that the ultraliberals are no longer having things their way.

LAST TESTAMENT: THE DIVINE YES

The late E. Stanley Jones was a dynamo of a man. He was a distinguished missionary to India. He was a world evangelist. He wrote 28 books, two of them best sellers. He studied the Bible two hours every day. He preached more than 60,000 sermons.

Dr. Jones at 87 made an evangelistic trip to Japan. He visited 45 cities and preached 154 times. He enjoyed the experience. He felt no exhaustion.

Then he left for a Christian Ashram in Oklahoma City. On the night of Dec. 7, 1971, he suffered a major stroke in his hotel room. His eyesight and voice were damaged and most of his muscles were paralyzed.

But he would not die. He had one more job to do. He wrote "The Divine Yes" (Pillar Books, paperback, $1:50). It was a heroic task. His handwriting had become illegible. He used a tape recorder, but his words were blurry. Only his mind and will were strong. The book would never have seen print without the editing of his daughter, Eunice Jones Mathews.

It is a positive affirmation of the joy to be found in the Christian life, even when everything seems lost because Everything with a capital E has been promised. This book should give comfort to all who see the shadows lengthening toward sunset. And even the vibbrant, heedless young could learn from this man who never permitted himself to whisper one word of self-pity.

Dr. Jones with treatment recovered a bit. He longed to see his beloved India again. He went with family help, pausing awhile in Europe. At the Sat Tal Ashram in the Himalayas he retrained himself to walk. He died in January, 1973

A QUESTION OF ETIQUETTE

What do you call "gentlemen of the cloth?" What are the appropriate ways to address them in person and in print? We invite ministers and others to answer the following questions of proper language:

In writing should it always be "the Rev. James Jones?" Or should the "The" be dropped?

In following paragraphs, should it be "the Rev. Mr. Jones," or "Mr. Jones," or just plain "Jones" Most newspaper editors hold that "Rev. Jones" is unsuitable.

In the Roman Catholic and some other churches clergymen of rank have complicated titles. A Catholic bishop, for instance, is "His Excellency," an aristocratic term that might embarrass many American prelates except on the most formal occasions. But is it proper to write simply "Bishop James Jones?"

Ministers of some denominations, such as the Church of Christ and the Society of Friends, reject "The Rev." We would like to hear from ministers who would rather not be called "The Rev."

Is it proper in public to address a clergyman as "Father Jim?" or just plain "Jim?"

The clergy today, like the general society, no longer cares for rigid and stuffy rules of etiquette. But there should be some rules, some formality, in recognition of their vocation. We would like to hear from many ministers on this small but important subject. What do you want to be called?

A postcard will do. Address it to:

Our beautiful churches

St. Matthew Roman Catholic Church, Seventh Street and Temple Avenue, presents a dignified, Spanish-influenced style. It is a very busy church with many Masses, weddings, funerals and other services. It operates a large parochial school. Its beautiful bells bring music to the neighborhood throughout the day.

Catholics talk on female priests

WASHINGTON (AP) — A task force on women set up by a Roman Catholic bishops' committee has concluded that women should be admitted to the priesthood.

The group of four nuns and two laywomen, formed by a bishops' ad hoc committee on women in society, was chaired by Sister Margaret Brennan, former superior general of the Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary. The report of its study said:

"Concrete steps ... should be set in motion to insure the admission of women to all forms of ministry in the church, including the diaconate and ordained priesthood."

Meanwhile, at the Vatican, the Pontifical Biblical Commission has voted 12-to-5 that Holy Scripture alone does not provide sufficient grounds "to exclude the possibility" of ordaining women. The majority of the organization of Bible scholars said the Church would not be contradicting Christ's intentions if it opened the priesthood to women.

Monastics cooperating

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — A contemplative order of the Episcopal Church, the Community of the Holy Trinity, has taken up residence in a building of a Roman Catholic center called "Chaminade" in a wooded coastal area here. The center is used by the Catholic order, the Marianist Fathers, for retreats, but members of the Episcopal order live there as caretakers.

Pessimistic about men

Founding Fathers believed in sin

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A tough realism, born of an ancient Biblical idea, underlay the founding of these United States — a conviction that human beings, including the most elevated statesmen of government, can go wrong.

They were regarded, in Scriptural terms, as subject to sin.

It's an old, old notion, and the term is not at all fashionable these days, however extensive the problem itself, but awareness of it tempered the building blocks of the nation.

On its 200th birthday this weekend, the national structure still holds, and much of the credit for it is given to the original scathing view of the human condition.

Historians say it's what distinguished the American system and made it last through all sorts of aberrations and upheavals, while other struggles for liberation often relapsed into tyranny.

IN SUCH cases, the masses took a rosy, trusting view of their leaders, whose authority subsequently turned repressive. But the American founders viewed those put in positions of power with a dour, critical eye.

That note of skepticism about the human tendency was written into the U.S. Constitution, with its checks and balances giving each branch of government — the President, the Congress, the courts — restraining reins on the others.

Each was limited in relation to the other, their functions so allotted that each was considered able to curb the others from excesses.

"There is a hearty Puritanism in the view of human nature which pervades the instrument," wrote historian-jurist James Bryce in describing the U.S. Constitution to the British in the new nation's first century.

"It is the work," he said, "of men who believe in original sin and were resolved to leave open for transgressors no door which they could possibly shut."

THE AMERICAN Revolution came shortly before another one in Europe, the French Revolution of 1789. While the objectives were similar, the throwing off of kingly rule, the outcomes differed radically.

The United States survived and flourished while the new French republic degenerated into the mass executions of the "Terror" and the military despotism of Napoleon Bonaparte that swept Europe.

Scholars cite various reasons for the difference, including the fact that the French Revolution was anticlerical, while in America, the clergy and religious influences figured both in the Revolution and the ensuing U.S. Constitution.

However, the basic difference cited involved the French "optimism" about human direction, versus American "pessimism." The mostly Protestant early Americans were sharply conscious of human fallibility — their perverse vulnerability to sin.

The implication was that society should not put full or final power over peoples' lives in the hands of any human sovereign or group, no matter how learned or illustrious; they were prey to corruption.

"Free government is founded in jealousy and not in confidence," Thomas Jefferson put it. "It is jealousy and not confidence which prescribes a limiting constitution to bind down those who we are obliged to trust with power."

IT IS a "government of laws," said John Adams, "and not of men."

It is a system of restricted powers, of reserved areas of action, possibly the only government in the world in which no human entity is given sovereign authority, and where the center of rule remains an intangible.

"We, the people of the United States ... " the Constitution begins. The guiding power was to work through them, out of their consciences, and however they define it, out of their own ultimate rule, their God.

GOINGS ON

Editor's note: The Bicentennial theme will be emphasized in most churches Sunday. Judging by the announcements much special effort has been made to give congregations something extra for the Fourth of July. Here are some of the events:

The Order of Holy Eucharist as observed in Episcopal churches in 1776 will be celebrated at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Colorado Street and Termino Avenue, in a combined service at 10 a.m., Sunday. There will be a massing of American and Church flags.

A sermon on liberty will be illustrated by a projector 10 a.m., Sunday, at Rehoboth Christian Reformed Church, 17921 Carpinterio Ave., Bellflower. At 6:30 p.m. there will be a concert of the combined choirs.

The Great Commission Company, sponsored by the Campus Crusade for Christ, will present programs at 7:45, 9 and 10:45 a.m. Sunday at Grace Brethren Church of Seal Beach, Central and Eighth Street. The theme is the American spiritual and historical heritage.

A prayer vigil for the future of the United States will be held today, noon to midnight, at Mount Olivet Lutheran Church, 4405 E. South St., Lakewood.

Congressman Del Clawson and Assemblyman Robert McLennan will speak Sunday, 10:50 a.m., at the patriotic observances at Trinity Baptist Church, 8219 Florence Ave., Downey.

Colonial music and a colonial sermon will be featured in an outdoor service, 10 a.m., Sunday at Geneva Presbyterian Church, 2625 E. Third St.

A patriotic pageant by Martha Chadwick will be presented at 10 a.m., Sunday, at Covenant Presbyterian Church, Third Street and Atlantic Avenue.

The Great Commission Company of Campus Crusade for Christ will present a program Sunday, , 6 p.m., at Community Grace Brethren Church, 5885 Downey Ave.

A Bicentennial concert will be presented by a 120-voice choir tonight at 8 p.m. , at the Long Beach Stake Center of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints, 37th Street and Elm Avenue. Participating will be the Sound of Youth and the Colonials.

The Order of Morning Prayer from the Book of Common Prayer of 1662 will be used Sunday, 10:30 a.m., in the All Saints Episcopal Church, 18082 Bushard, Fountain Valley.

The Mariners Club will take over pulpit and music Sunday, 9:30 and 11 a.m., at Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church, 11600 Los Alamitos Blvd., Los Alamitos. Dick Dickinson, marriage counselor, will speak.

A Bicentennial program featuring solos, the choir and youth groups will be presented Sunday, 9:30 a.m., at the Evangelical United Methodist Church, 1700 Temple Ave.

Don and Sue Skills, in colonial dress and riding in a 1925 Model T , will lead worshipers into the parking lot of Immanuel Lutheran Church, 345 Carson St., for the Bicentennial service of celebration at 10 a.m.

POSITIVE THINKING
by Norman Vincent Peale

Don't Want It Soft!

Anyone who knows anything knows that life isn't always easy. It can be filled with hard knocks and tough blows. But you can take one of several attitudes about a blow. You can fold and give up. You can be defeated. You can become bitter and angry. Or you can try to turn that blow into an asset.

Turn it into an asset? Yes, really! How will you ever lick a problem if you don't even try? A defeatist attitude never answers anything. When a difficult problem confronts you, never limit yourself to seeing the bad possibilities. Who knows — there may be tremendous opportunities in a rough problem if you look positively at that difficult situation and try to handle it.

I talked to a man who had successfully built up a fair-sized business over great odds and despite many difficulties. His story was both inspiring and fascinating. What was the secret of his success? He said it was the blows he experienced. "Adversity is a marvelous teacher," he told me; "Had I been pampered and prosperous all my life, I would have never become strong enough or developed know-how to meet my problems successfully."

It's a fact that too much pampering and prosperity can not only make Jack a dull boy, but a soft one and therefore a pretty unhappy one too! Remember the story of the baby princes who were watched over and coddled, surrounded by doctors, valets, and nursemaids? Heaven forbid the child should sneeze! The whole palace would be in an uproar for the child's health was an affair of state.

The Empress Catherine II of Russia writes in her memoirs that her little son, Paul, was "placed in an extremely warm room, swaddled in flannel and laid in a cradle lined with black fox fur. Over him was a coverlet of quilted satin, and over that was one of rose-colored velvet lined with black fox. Many times I saw him put to bed this way, with the sweat pouring from his face and his whole body, so that when he grew older, if he got in the slighest draft, he would catch cold and it would make him ill."

That poor little prince was destroyed with the wrong kind of care and the wrong kind of affection. Prince Paul wasn't allowed to move a muscle or do anything for himself, for fear that he might become overtired. He had to save his strength. It is sad indeed, for had the little fellow been allowed to use his strength, he would have grown into a strong man. He never had a chance to become anything but a weakling and so he was marked for life with the curse of failure.

Obviously this example may be extreme, but it is a fact that too much pampering either by self or others can make a person weak, chronically nervous, bored and unhappy. We may often think that things should be made a lot easier for everyone. But we had better not get too soft for that can lead to worse problems than difficulty, chief of which is the decay of strength.

The poet, Schiller said, "Genuine morality is preserved only in the school of adversity, a state of continuous prosperity may easily prove a quicksand to virtue."

It was Horace, the great Roman thinker, who said, "Adversity has the effect of eliciting talents which in prosperous circumstances would have lain dormant."

Never soften up, for there will come a day you will have to summon your strength. Meet life's problems sturdily all your life and you will handle problems OK.

Talks asked on merger

CHICAGO (AP) — The general board of the Christian Church (Disciples of Chirst) has unanimously approved resumption of unification talks with the United Church of Christ.

The 1.3-million-member Christan Church and the 2-million-member United Church had suspended union talks in 1966 to concentrate on a nine-denomination merger effort, but its slowed progress led the United Church recently to invite a resumption of the bilateral negotiations.

Anti-apartheid

NEW YORK (AP) — The Africa Committee of the National Council of Churches, citing the recent South African violence as highlighting the "brutally oppressive apartheid system," has urged the U.S. government to use diplomatic pressure to get South Africa to abandon its racial-separation policy.

Jews Hail Vatican's position

NEW YORK (AP) — Through the Synagogue Council of America, the three U.S. wings of Judaism have made their first official repsonse to recent Roman Catholic statements on relations with Jews — and call the new attitude heartening.

Taking note of the recent Vatican guidelines and the U.S. bishops' pastoral message on the matter, the council hailed church acknowledgment that an "anti-Judaic theology" had been at the heart of past hostilites toward the Jews, adding:

"In dealing with the old notion that the Jews were guilty of deicide, the pastoral letter makes a point of observing that the 'Jewish people never were, nor are they now, guilty of the death of Christ.'"

The council also commended the bishops for urging Christian understanding of the Jewish link to Israel — a bond which the letter says has pervaded Jewish "'writing and worship throughout the two millenia a longing for the homeland, holy Zion.'"

4th of July concert by famous band

The Los Angeles Congress Hall Band of the Salvation Army will give a Bicentennial concert Sunday, 6 p.m., in the First Baptist Church, Tenth Street and Pine Avenue. The band, founded in 1887, has appeared in the Hollywood Bowl, Rose Bowl, Los Angeles Music Center and for 45 years in the Tournaament of Roses Parade. It played for 110,000 in a Billy Graham rally. In 1971 the band made a well-received tour of the British Isles. Following the event there will be an old-fashion "social" of homemade ice cream and cake.

Antireligion crusade falters in Russia

By THOMAS KENT
Associated Press Writer

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Fifteen young Russians, led by their tour guide, paused by a papier-mache display at Leningrad's Museum of the History of Religion and Atheism.

The display showed a religious procession winding through the middle of a 14th century European village while stretcher-bearers carried off the bodies of villagers who had died of the Black Plague.

"It was thought that such religious processions would cause God to stop the plague," the young woman guide said with a wry smile. The visitors smiled, too.

"Of course, it didn't help at all."

FIFTY EIGHT years after the Communists took power, the Soviet Union is still campaigning to convince its people that religion is useless superstition.

The campaign is going "successfully," government propagandists say, but there is no complete box score to back the claim up. There are only scattered official assertions, such as one in 1973 that only 2 per cent of young Soviet citizens believe in God and another this year that at most 60,000 of the country's more than two million Jews actively practice their faith.

Just last year, Leningrad officials were alarmed to discover that only 61 per cent of schoolchildren surveyed had a "positive attitude" toward atheism, therefore could not be considered fully inoculated against religion.

THE MOST most common Western estimates are that the Soviet Union's 255 million people still include at least 30 million Russian Orthodox believers, 4 million practicing Roman Catholics, a million Baptists and 25 million Moslems.

The Soviet atheism campaign has a long and checkered history. A few enthusiasts started bulldozing churches immediately after the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution, but the state put a stop to that because it was causing resentment among the population and the buildings could be used for purposes other than religion.

The Communist Party waged a strong propaganda campaign against religion from 1925 to 1943, when dictator Joseph Stalin cut the effort off because he needed the support of churchmen in the war against the Germans.

The campaign was revived to an extent after the war and again in the late 1950s, when then Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev believed the country was on the brink of successfully molding the "new Soviet man."

Now, the antireligion campaign is again out of the national spotlight but remains active on lower levels.

The central press talks little about it, Communist leaders leave atheism out of their speeches and the weathervane theoretical journal Kommunist hasn't had a major article on atheism for a year.

Some speculation in Moscow links the low visibility of the atheist movement to the large amount of Western attention that claims of religious injustices here have received.

OTHER suggestions are that the Soviets are satisfied that religion is no longer a "mass problem" — despite the lines that form at churches at Easter and Christmas.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union's devout believers — "the unconvertible," propagandists of atheism say — claim pressure on them is as strong as ever.

They report difficulties getting religious materials, pressure to merge congregations and close churches and harassment of believers who try to pass religion on to their children — despite the Soviet Union's constitutional guarantee of freedom of religion.

"There is no religious literature and you can't even try to get it," says one young woman who is an active Baptist. "And the Russian Orthodox, their missal comes out every year in such small quantities that there's barely enough for one in each church."

MAY I HAVE A MOMENT OF YOUR TIME?

Dr. Kepner

Sunday Morning, July 4th, I am planning to preach "THE AMERICAN DREAM," a sermon I have delivered more than 40 times in churches, lodges, at service groups, and conventions. You will find it altogether appropriate for a worship service on the 4th of July.

Sunday Evening we will be privileged to have the Los Angeles Congress Band as our guests. The Band, organized in 1887 and having served continuously since that time, has appeared in many famous places for concert. We feel fortunate and are grateful that they will be with us this next Sunday Evening.

After the six o'clock service and after the Band Concert, we will have an Old Fashioned Ice Cream Social at which we will feature a huge Bicentennial cake with 200 candles. Plan to be with us. Commemorate the birth of our Country with us on the 4th of July!
Sincerely,
FRANK M. KEPNER, Pastor

"STAND FAST THEREFORE IN THE LIBERTY WHEREWITH CHRIST HATH MADE US FREE . . ."
Galations 5:1

This God-given freedom of spirit has been available to mankind throughout the ages. In 1776, our founding fathers must have realized this as they were inspired to claim their human rights. And this freedom is available today to all who turn to God for guidance.

To learn more about God's love for you, and the joy and freedom that come from such knowledge, the churches of Christ, Scientist in Long Beach would like to welcome you and your family to our Sunday services and Wednesday evening meetings. Your children are invited to attend our Sunday School where they will learn how a knowledge of the Bible can help them in their everyday activities.

was no way I could do it and take any money from George because you know that would be a thing that they could, uh, could nail on, you know, very quickly."

MAYER said he passed the project on to Kenneth A. Reynolds, a former Huntington Beach planning director who represented the landowners.

(Reynolds has said he has no idea why the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office, which handled the Mayer investigation, would consider the feasibility studies of the Carson project as an item of evidence.)

Coppedge: "He's (Reynolds) in it for Hart though, uh?"

Mayer: "He's doing it for Hart."

Coppedge: "Well, will (Richard) Gunnarson (Carson director of community development), approve that piece?"

Mayer: "Yeah, oh, that's all predetermined you know. . . . We worked it out. I worked it out with Gunnarson before I even went back to Hart and said that I have any interest.

"But then when it started with you, Hart was being investigated and all this other..., I just decided it wasn't worth it. So he's got the whole package where I would get some opportunity is for benefit personally is if later on down the line whoever takes the property over and develops it, does so in a manner that uh I could participate in where there was no, where George Hart was no longer involved in any way.

"IN OTHER words if he just separately represents the trust if the trust sell(s) it to a third party and I happen to have some involvement with that third party that's a different bag all together," Mayer continued.

Mayer, still on tape, urged Coppedge not to talk with Ken (Reynolds) at this point because "he is sitting on potentially a conflict of interest . . . not a legal one where he can, he can get any trouble, but he's supposed to be serving the consultants, serving the trust fund as a professional consultant."

Mayer said Reynolds could have no proprietary interest in the property but that "he'd like to end up owning the commercial site or a piece of the action whatever that piece might be, 10 per cent or 5 per cent or you know, whatever the traffic will bear and in so doing, uh, he'll split with me whatever the traffic will bear and in so doing, uh, he'll split with me later on down the line at a time when it's, uh, feasible for me to participate."

IN THE tape-recorded conversation, Mayer said he discussed the Long Beach city government investigations with City Councilman Wallace Edgerton.

Mayer claimed that Edgerton had a friend "involved in the FBI" and another friend who "works for the grand jury as one of its attorneys." These "buddies," Mayer said, had assured Edgerton that the investigations were over.

Mayer, describing Edgerton as a "swinger type," told Coppedge that Edgerton came to him "literally begging—it's pathetic—begging me to go out with him and fix him up and all this kind of ....which I am not doing, but I have met with him socially a couple of times."

(Edgerton has said he used Mayer's Marina Pacifica apartment to entertain dates on several occasions.)

MAYER said Edgerton expressed concern about "who to be friendly with in this city because of the rumors of additional indictments."

(Former City Councilmen Wayne Sharp and Bert Bond had been indicted, Sharp on a perjury charge and Bond on a charge of conspiracy to conduct an illegal gambling game. Bond has never come to trial.)

Mayer indicated that Edgerton questioned him about his (Mayer's) possible involvement and said he (Edgerton) was "playing it pretty cagey about developing friendships . . ."

Discussing Mayer's role as Long Beach planning director, Coppedge said Mayer handled the job differently than similar executives in other cities.

"In many communities the planning director is a—I mean, the planning director is kind of a fact-finder and makes recommendations, but the ultimate body in terms of making the decision is the planning commission.

"IN CANDOR, I must state that condition does not obtain in Long Beach or did not obtain, and that the recommendations of Mr. Mayer were just virtually rubber-stamped by the planning commission. . . ."

Coppedge, asked if Mayer had absolute power over the success or failure of any substantial real estate development in the city, replied "without any question whatsoever."

Outlining the technique Mayer used to elicit bribes from the architects, Coppedge said Mayer would tell the architects there was a crisis in a development and he needed payment.

The crises would involve such things as density or plot plans and would miraculously disappear as soon as Mayer got his money, Coppedge claimed.

The transcript reveals that Coppedge told the grand jury that a representative of M. J. Brock and Sons, the firm which had planned to build a hotel and several restaurants in the Pacific Terrace project, proposed a payoff to Mayer even before Mayer had approached the architects about bribes.

COPPEDGE said Mayer had asked the architects if they knew developers "of substance," someone capable of taking on a project of the magnitude of the one proposed at Pacific Terrace. Coppedge and Ballance proposed Brock, a subsidiary of Insurance Company of North America, and Brock indicated an interest.

Coppedge said the man assigned by the Brock organization to negotiate with the city to obtain a lease on the property in Pacific Terrace, asked "what Mayer would expect, if anything."

". . .at that time I indicated that I wasn't aware of anything he would expect," Coppedge told the grand jury.

But the Brock representative suggested that a trip to Acapulco or Hawaii would be "a nice thing for all of his (Mayer's) efforts in behalf of the Brock organization," Coppedge said.

THE Brock development in Pacific Terrace didn't materialize, but soon after the conversation with Reddick, Mayer's solicitation of bribes from the two architects began.

Mayer indicated he wanted a landscape architect firm, in which he was a principal in at the time, to play a part in the Pacific Terrace project, Coppedge told the grand jury.

Then when the project didn't come off, Mayer approached the architects and said he could get other jobs for them and expected to be paid for doing so.

Coppedge said the first payment of $200 was made in December 1971 or January 1972, and the payoffs continued until Mayer's arrest last May 14.

Before that date, the architects testified, they paid Mayer more than $26,000. An additional $25,000 in Mexican gold pesos was in Mayer's possession when he was apprehended.

Smithsonian cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford signed a bill Friday authorizing appropriations of $1 million each for fiscal years 1978, 1979 and 1980 for the Smithsonian Institution.

Child trapped

Rescuers struggle with twisted metal of a car in which Fredrick Stark, 11, of 4517 Ironwood Ave., Seal Beach, was trapped for 45 minutes after an accident at 4:40 p.m. Friday at Katella Avenue and Lexington Drive in Los Alamitos. Police said the boy suffered only minor injuries. He was a passenger in a car driven by his mother, Solveig Stark, which was turning left when it collided with a car driven by Richard Pacheco, 20, of Garden Grove. No citations were issued pending further investigation.

detector test if that was desired, Platt said.

None was desired and the matter was dropped.

No more was heard of it until Friday when Deputy Chief Hill told Platt there had been an inquiry about it and that details would be made public, Platt said.

Platt said the incident had been resurrected to spotlight his refusal to join those who oppose Calkins.

"I can't stand poor losers," Platt said. "I wouldn't go along with the opposition for the simple reason that Calkins is a fine policeman, a real pro with a fine record. He would be an asset to any department. And much as I would have liked to see the job go to one of our men, he was the choice and I respect the choice and think we must abide by the selection process."

The opposition movement has also tried to enlist the support of the Police Officers Association but without success, Platt said.

"I don't understand what they think they will gain by all this," Platt said. "The decision is made. I can't imagine what anyone or any group could or should do to change it."

Chief Kortz, on a three-week vacation in a motor home, could not be reached for comment.

BICENTENNIAL

One group of wagons reached Philadelphia on Friday after a cross-country trek that started in California. "I wanted to see the country and I wanted to do something for it," said Tom Gabel, 17, of Redlands, who was a blacksmith on the journey. "You know," he commented, "it's still America, a place where people still think the way they used to and still have pride."

Philadelphia officials, however, were a little worried. Attendance was below expectations. Visitors to Independence Hall, where the Declaration of Independence was signed July 4, 1776, found there was no waiting line Friday morning. Normally, there's a 10-minute wait.

The number of marchers signed up for the city's official parade on Sunday dropped from 70,000 to 35,000 and some officials expressed concern that planned protest parades and warnings of huge crowds had scared people off. The union representing garbage collectors and some other city employes called a strike.

The festivities in the nation's capital officially begin today with the American Bicentennial Grand Parade down Constitution Avenue. It won't be the nation's largest parade — Los Angeles is claiming that it's eight-hour march will win that honor.

The President's Bicentennial schedule started two days earlier at the Capitol, with the opening of a centennial safe, a sort of time capsule sealed in 1876.

Here's a look at the rest of Ford's schedule: today, an "Honor America" entertainment at Kennedy Center; Sunday, church services, the Valley Forge speech and appearances at Philadelphia and New York; Monday, a visit to Thomas Jefferson's home, Monticello, at Charlottesville, Va.

New York City focused its celebration on the arrival of the armada. The parade of naval vessels up and down the Hudson River separating New York and New Jersey was expected to draw millions of viewers to vantage points in both states.

Mayor Charles Miller of Weehauken, N.J., said, "We anticipate as many as 200,000 people. We don't know if those antique railings (along the cliffs) can hold, and frankly we expect fatalities."

In Boston, the U.S.S. Constitution will sound a 21-gun salute — the first time her guns have been fired in 100 years. Earlier, light from the star Epsilon Lyrae — which is 200 light years away — will be focused through a telescope at the Mauna Kea Observatory in Hawaii.

The light will be focused on a sensor, which will trigger a switch transmitting a current to Boston to light the "one if by land and two if by sea" lantern in the tower of the Old North Church.

Another outer space Bicentennial spectacular didn't quite work as planned. The American spacecraft Viking I was supposed to land on Mars on July 4. But the proposed landing site was unsuitable and the touchdown has had to be rescheduled.

Canal defense needs outlined

WASHINGTON (AP) — A force of 100,000 men would be needed to defend the Panama Canal against an all-out Cuban-backed Panamanian attack, a State Department report estimated Friday.

In the absence of a new Panama Canal treaty, the United States "could not expect much sympathy from Latin American countries" that are partners in the Inter-American Treaty on Reciprocal Assistance, the report said.

NATO allies of the United States "would probably view a conflict between the United States and Panama as a bilateral or Western Hemisphere affair and not be disposed toward involvement," it added.

The report, which supports the idea of a new treaty and a "friendly and cooperative relationship with Panama," was made public by Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa.

The department said the report was drafted in consultation with the Defense Department and CIA.

DEATH PENALTY

In two rulings Friday, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the death penalty but restricted the states' power to make it mandatory punishment without considering circumstances of a case.

One ruling struck down laws in North Carolina and Louisiana which make the penalty mandatory for several crimes.

But death penalty supporters said they hoped the state death penalty law gives juries enough discretion in considering the facts of a case to make California fit within the high court's death penalty ruling.

"It is discretionary for the judge and jury to see if the circumstances of a case fit the criteria in the statute," argued state Sen. H.L. Richardson, a conservative Arcadia Republican who was a sponsor of Prop. 17.

If the state death penalty is overturned by a state court ruling, Richardson said he would wage another campaign through the Legislature or by initiative to reinstate the death penalty.

In his remarks at an El Monte news conference, Brown said: "I will observe the law as it is written and upheld by our courts."

He said if a case warranted it, he would use the clemency power vested in his office.

Death penalty supporters hailed the ruling, as expected, while foes saw the ruling as a grim setback.

"The death penalty is discriminatory and it provides no justifiable benefit to society other than the infliction of vengeance. I don't think it is government's business to be our official avenger," said Mike Callahan, assistant executive director for the American Civil Liberties Union in Northern California.

J. Anthony Kline, Brown's legal adviser, said that the decision "is going to have an adverse impact on the state Supreme Court's chances of overruling the death penalty, but it doesn't rule it out."

Deputy state Atty. Gen. William James, who argued before the U.S. Supreme Court that individual states should have the right to decide on the death penalty issue, said:

"From what I have heard, it sounds very favorable. Now I think we can go ahead with at least the knowledge as far as the U.S. Constitution is concerned that this form of penal sanction is permissiable."

Under the state death penalty, a jury must decide if the circumstances in a case fit the "special circumstances" described in the state law, such as murder in commission of a robbery.

Then in the penalty phase of the trial, if they find that the case does fit these circumstances, they then are required to return the death penalty against a defendant.

Richardson said that if the state law is overturned by the state court, "I am sure we are in a position to pass the necessary legislation or initiative to bring us into line with court decisons.

"I don't believe Californians would tolerate playing around with the death penalty in the sense of not imposing it. It's a very strong issue in this state. It's a gut issue in California."

Thirty-four states have enacted death penalty laws in the last four years and still have them on the books. Over half of them make death mandatory for specified crimes.

Of 630 persons who were on death row according to the latest count by The Associated Press, at least 43 were condemned for nonfatal crimes such as rape or kidnaping and robbery.

Congress has also passed legislation providing a mandatory death penalty for airplane hijackings resulting in loss of life. No one has been sentenced under this law.

Most major churches, both Protestant and Roman Catholic, as well as the three wings of Judaism have opposed restoration of the death penalty.

Some smaller conservative church bodies have supported capital punishment, but the predominant weight of U.S. religious organizations has gone against it.

American Roman Catholic bishops took a stand against it two years ago, following similar stands by a dozen individual Protestant bodies and the National Council of Churches, involving most major Protestant and Orthodox churches.

President Ford, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter all have said that they approve of capital punishment in some circumstances. Carter and Reagan both signed capital punishment legislation into law as governors while Ford said recently he favored the death penalty under certain circumstances.

A Gallup Poll conducted in April found that more than 60 per cent of those polled favor capital punishment for murder. Gallup said the percentage was the strongest support registered in 25 years.

To Terry Medgebow, the Supreme Court undoubtedly had made the right decision in upholding capital punishment. To Charles Proffitt, who must die for killing Mrs. Medgebow's son, at least he finally knew his fate.

And there appeared to be little doubt the court ruling Friday upholding the concept of capital punishment for murders brings the court a lot closer to the thinking of most Americans. Polls have consistently shown strong support for death penalty for murderers.

"I want the world to know that the decision the court has made is the right one. If this will deter anyone else from killing, they had made the right decision. I feel very strongly about it. I am not talking about any one case or any one person," Mrs. Medgebow said.

Proffitt, 30, said, "I've expected it from the very beginning, to tell you the truth."

"At least we know what's going down," Proffitt said from his Death Row cell. "We know where we stand and we know what we have to do. I expected it."

Air conditioning key complaint in jails' study

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

Poor air conditioning in the Long Beach city jail was cited as a matter of "major concern" in the final report of the 1975-76 grand jury's jails committee, released Friday.

The committee said it understands that in the summer months temperatures at the jail on the two upper floors of the police building "rise to nearly unbearable levels which affect the performance and morale of staff as well as the attitudes of inmates."

The report also noted there are some minor problems in the gun locker area and in the multiple-occupancy, safety, and isolation cells which "can be easily corrected."

It noted previous grand juries had pointed out problems at Long Beach and other city jails, adding that the current panel felt "the problems of past years have not been corrected and are important enough to comment upon again."

Capt. Douglas Drummond, chief of the police department's jail division, was unavailable for comment Friday. However, Lt. Otto Olsen, chief executive officer of the division, and Acting Sgt. Delno K. Sheely, in charge of the jail Friday night, agreed with the report's observations on the temperatures.

"The floors they are referring to are the fifth and sixth," the lieutenant said. "The exterior walls are made of translucent glass that magnifies the heat, and on a hot day it can really be bad."

Both men said it would be "very expensive" to air-condition the floors and said they could only presume it is a budgetary problem the City Council will have to wrestle with sooner or later.

Olsen said he believed the problem relating to the gun locker and cells had been solved. However, he added, he couldn't speak with certainty without seeing the report.

"Inspectors objected to the gun lockers in the basement being inside the doors of the tunnel leading to the booking area, and we have moved them outside.

"The problems with the cells were minor, and I can't remember just how but they were solved after considerable correspondence with the state," he said.

Los Angeles' Parker Center also came in for criticism by the grand jury committee because of unsatisfactory air conditioning. The committee noted budget requests to air condition the jail area have been repeatedly denied since at least 1973 when the then-grand jury recommended acceptable air circulation be provided.

The Pasadena city jail, the committee said, is old and inadequate and the group urged the city to go ahead with plans for developing a major renovation of its jail facilities.

The committee also noted, Los Angeles' 77th Street station was "almost 50 years old, undersized, ineffective in operation and short of parking and storage space." It urged the city to expedite construction of a planned new South Los Angeles police facility.

County supervisors in conjunction with Sheriff Peter Pitchess were urged by the committee not to close down the Hall of Justice and Biscailuz Center facilities when the new addition to the county Central Jail is completed.

Closure at the two facilities would place unreasonably high demands on available bed space for the current inmate population and any sizeable increase in the population would force an overcrowding of Central Jail, the committee said.

It recommended the board use the Hall of Justice facilities to house about 450 male and female weekend inmates and 100 men and women on work furlough programs. The conversion could be done with only minor remodeling work, according to the committee.

The committee chose not to comment extensively on the Sybil Brand Institute for Women because of a class action suit by inmates there alleging improper conditions.

Citing overcrowding in holding cells in court buildings, the committee said efforts should be made to see that standards calling for cells providing 8.4 square feet per prisoner be maintained.

Under its general recommendation for law enforcement programs the committee called for development of inmate vocational programs of short duration and programs allowing inmates to continue their rehabilitation on the outside.

Noting that alcoholism has reached epidemic proportions, the panel strongly recommended that a "large financial committment be made to set up a sufficient number of detoxification programs and facilities to remove public inebriates from the criminal justice system."

Citing duplication occurring because of numerous municipalities with separate police agencies, the commmitte urged local authorities to pursue vigorously consolidation of special functions such as crime labs, homicide, narcotics, burglary and helicopter surveillance.

Supervisors also were urged to press for the establishment of a countywide "911" telephone system which would enable the public to obtain any kind of emergency service by simply dialing those digits.

Smog-sampling balloonists in test flight

By HERB SHANNON
Aerospace Editor

"Atmosat America," a 33-foot pressurized helium balloon carrying two Aerospace Corp. pilots, lifted off its launching site in Rancho Palos Verdes at 10:27 a.m. Friday for a weekend test flight.

Dr. Thomas F. Heinsheimer of Rolling Hills, the pilot, and Peter C. Neushul, a former Long Beach State University psychology student, are scheduled to conduct a 48-hour simulated smog-sampling experiment over the Los Angeles basin.

The flight was delayed 24 hours by unfavorable wind conditions Thursday.

The balloon is the same one used by Heinsheimer and Neushul on two previous flights this year, one of which carried them into Mexico, across the Gulf of California and back to a safe landing north of the border at Lukeville, Ariz.

Following the initial test flights, a new gondola of aluminum and fabric replaced the conventional wickerware basket in order to reduce weight by about 200 pounds. The lighter, lighter-than-air craft can fly at higher altitudes and carry additional scientific equipment.

On Friday, the Aerospace balloonists evaluated the balloon's ability to maintain desired altitudes. They also tested the efficiency of controlling their flight path by using on-board observations and weather data relayed by radio from Federal Aviation Administration facilities.

Today they hope to be flying east or northeast from the launch site at altitudes between 8,000 and 10,000 feet. By operating without intentionally venting helium, the crew will be able to measure the exact rate of loss of the gas due to any small leaks in the balloon skin.

Heinsheimer and Neushul will be in radio communication with an Aerospace chase vehicle on the ground, following the path of the balloon. They also will radio technical data and trajectory information to the Aerospace Control Center in El Segundo.

Next month the balloonists plan to start a series of flights in the "America" to monitor smog levels in the Los Angeles basin.

The current flight is part of an Aerospace program to develop a much larger unmanned atmospheric satellite (Atmosat) which will measure air pollution and other environmental phenomena at 60,000 feet around the world for durations of up to a year.

Aerospace Corp. provides scientific, technical and engineering services to government agencies. Sales last year totaled approximately $96 million.

His cue to theorize on dismantling

Pool-table theft gets fuzz on Ball

By BRAD ALTMAN
Staff Writer

When two antique pool tables were stolen from the 11th floor of the Omar Hubbard Building in Long Beach last summer, police investigators turned to Harold Ball for help.

Investigators went to Ball, 47, because he had repaired the two tables before their disappearance and he has been associated with the billiard-table business for 30 years.

In 1971 he became owner of the West State Billiard Supply Co., 33 Locust Ave. Before that, he was a partner in the store with his father, who bought it in 1946.

ON TUESDAY the City Council called for an investigation of charges that city employes stole items—including the pool tables—from the Hubbard Building before it was razed in April.

In an interview Friday, Ball said he went to the building last July to appraise the pool tables before they were to be be sold to the city's Recreation Department for its clubhouses. That's when they were found to be missing.

Ball estimates that one of the pool tables is worth no more than $1,000. The other, a Brunswick baby grand built between 1900 and 1920, may be worth as much as $2,500, he said.

Each table is 4 by 8 feet, a standard commercial size, and weighs 1,000 pounds. They have been described as of classic design, with ornate carved legs.

HOW WAS a ton of pool tables removed from the building's 11th story?

"They were dismantled," Ball hazarded. "To do that, someone must have used a special tool that we call an adjustable bolt wrench. It's an uncommon tool, normally owned by people in my business."

Ball said he had ideas on who could have stolen the tables but would elaborate no further: "It does no good to speculate. But whoever did it had to have spent some time around a pool hall."

Ball said he grosses about $100,000 a year from selling pool-table supplies. His name is an asset: "Sort of fits the business, doesn't it?"

West State Billiard is located in a 5,000-square-foot basement. Its access door, off Locust Avenue, is squeezed between two adult bookstores.

"I got a museum and antique store down here," he said, referring to the cluttered basement that has an ancient ambience. Customers come in and barter for the old, dusty chairs that have been in the room for decades.

The building was condemned in 1968, said Ball, adding, "Eventually with urban renewal I'm gonna have to get out of here."

The basement was a pool hall from the end of World War II until 1974.

BUT WHEN the Navy left town in 1970, "our walk-in business went from pretty good to nothing—in six months—and that's the truth. We turned in the billiard licen in 1974."

"I remember when there were half a dozen halls at the Pike and 20 along Anabeim Street between downtown and Joe Jost's bar."

Ball was graduated from the University of Southern California in 1950 with a business-administration degree.

"I planned to climb up the corporate rungs," he said, "but then my dad became ill and needed my help with the business."

HE LIVES in Los Alamitos with his wife of 20 years and two teenage daughters.

"I'm a rare bird," he said. "Where else are you going to find a college-graduate pool-table mechanic who likes Beethoven?"

Does he play billiards often?

"Not once in the last 25 years—and that's the truth."

L.B. department heads curbed on release of data

By ROBERT GORE
Staff Writer

Long Beach city department heads have been ordered by Acting City Manager Robert C. Creighton to restrict their contacts with the press and report all conversations with media representatives to his office.

The order also told the department heads to leave all comments on city policy to the manager's office. It was issued at a Thursday meeting of department heads, according to City Hall staff members.

The new policy came to light when an Independent, Press-Telegram reporter was told that his request for an interview with a department head would have to be reported to Creighton's office.

HARRY Fulton, the city manager's special assistant who watches over public relations, said, "We are not trying to be censors. I like to be informed, and there have been a lot of things coming out in the papers that I don't know about until I see it in print.

"We want department heads to converse with reporters," he continued. "If they (reporters) ask for facts—give 'em the facts.

"I just want to know what the reporters were told. The same information. That's all it boils down to," Fulton said.

But one high-ranking staff member assailed the new policy saying, "If we were running a respectable ship, we wouldn't be in the position of worrying about that. We shouldn't have to screen information."

CREIGHTON'S order also applies to issuing information to the public as well, said the staff member, who requested anonymity. A citizen seeking opinions on ordinances or other matters should be referred to the city manager, the source said.

If the interview requested by a reporter appears to inolve a major or in-depth topic, the session must be reported to Creighton's office in advance, it was learned.

"All policy statements are to be channeled through Harry Fulton," said Deputy City Manager Barney Walczak, who is in charge of personnel.

"Any comment with an overall (city) implication must come from the city manager's office, but this is not an attempt at muzzling," Walczak said.

"We are still allowed to comment within our areas of expertise," he added.

Walczak noted that Creighton was "trying to pull things together" following the recent events that have shaken City Hall, including the indictment of former Planning Director Ernest Mayer Jr. on bribery charges and the resignation of former City Manager John R. Mansell.

"It's the critical times that generated this," Budget Director James Phelps said. "That's what is on everybody's minds.

"Bob Creighton feels his office is being challenged by the public for not being frank, and he wants all of us to be candid," Phelps said.

"If the information requested is public information or the manager's position has been made clear" then the department head can comment, Phelps said.

Council OKs 5 agencies to run summer programs

Five local agencies have been approved by the Long Beach City Council to run recreation programs this summer for boys and girls aged eight through 13 years.

Individual allocations were $16,138 to the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities, $9,539 to the North Long Beach Neighborhood Center, $8,960 to Westside Neighborhood Center, $9,941 to the East Long Beach Neighborhood Center and $6,252 to Youth Development Project, Inc.

Acting City Manager Robert C. Creighton said the city had invited proposals from interested agencies under the 1976 Summer Youth Recreation Program grant from the federal Community Services Administration.

The number of agencies selected was limited to five, Creighton said, because it was felt a larger number would "fragment" available funds and jeopardize quality of service. The program will operate for nine weeks.

Arts fete highlights L.B. ceremonies

An arts festival involving more than 1,500 persons from 42 local organizations will be held today and Sunday in the Long Beach Civic Center to celebrate the Bicentennial and dedicate the new 14-story City Hall.

Formal dedication ceremonies for the City Hall will be held Sunday at 1:30 p.m. in the plaza on the north side of the tower.

The dedication of the new Main Library, on which construction is to be completed about Oct. 4, will take place in late October or early November, along with an open house for both the City Hall and library.

Entertainment this weekend will run continuously from 10:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. both days. The Recreation Department will supervise a children's entertainment area from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. both days.

Free public parking will be available in the Lincoln Park underground garage. Spectators at the arts festival and dedication ceremony should enter the garage from Broadway, eastbound between Cedar and Pacific avenues.

The public entrance to the City Hall plaza, where the arts festival and dedication will take place, will be from Ocean Boulevard between Cedar and Pacific avenues.

The festival is sponsored by the Long Beach Regional Arts Council, in cooperation with the Long Beach Bicentennial Committee.

Entertainment during the two days will feature music, drama, opera, dances and singing. The largest single event days will be Sunday at 3 p.m. when Alberto Bolet will conduct the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra and the combined choirs of five churches.

Neither the City Hall nor the Main Library will be open to the public this weekend.

Bids to prosecute Korshak fruitless

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — More than 35 years after his activities in organized crime first came to the attention of the government, Sidney R. Korshak is now the prime target of a major federal investigation.

Officials said in recent interviews that the FBI was accumulating evidence on Korshak's alleged involvement in a labor racketeering scheme in Southern California.

So far, however, no indictments have been presented in the case. Indeed, Korshak's name has surfaced in connection with more than 20 organized crime investigations over the years, and he has testified or been subpoenaed to testify before at least six federal and state grand juries. But he has never been indicted.

Korshak's friends and associates have quoted him as boasting about the government's inability to produce evidence of criminal activity by him. "I've been investigated by more congressional committees than anybody," one associate recalled his saying during a 1968 business meeting, "but nobody's got anything on me."

SOME officials attributed the failure to convict Korshak to a lack of high-level commitment in the government to organized crime investigations and a chronic reluctance to seek the indictment of lawyers who represent underworld figures.

Officials said, however, that in recent months the Justice Department had begun a major reexamination of its efforts against sophisticated economic crime and labor racketeering, focusing on Korshak and a number of others.

Jay C. Waldman, deputy assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's criminal division, said in an interview that new emphasis would be placed on tracing the underworld's infiltration of legitimate business.

"Organized crime is no longer a bunch of characters hanging around ethnic neighborhoods," he said. "If you're talking about what the feds should be doing, it's going after the big-time criminals who are operating like most legitimate businessmen."

A SENIOR FBI official pinpointed the importance of Korshak to such an effort. He characterized Korshak as "the one individual who, I always believed, could blow organized crime wide open in Chicago, Las Vegas, New York and California" if he were convicted and granted immunity.

One FBI agent who has studied Korshak's links to the business world and to organized crime gave this summary of his role: "He's undoubtedly the best contact organized crime has in the United States today."

Korshak's shrewd methods of operation and his careful attempts to insulate himself from direct criminal activity undoubtedly account for some of his success in avoiding prosecution.

IN A series of interviews, however, a number of Justice Department officials and former officials saw the department's own bureaucratic weaknesses as the reason for its ineffectiveness against sophisticated economic crime.

G. Robert Blakey, a former department official who now directs the Institute on Organized Crime at Cornell University, described the "conspiracy of circumstances" that makes the prosecution of organized crime difficult: "manpower, talent, time, organization, lack of legal tools and resistance from politicians on state and local levels."

He added that the conviction of leaders whose activities are far removed from actual street-level crime — such people as lawyers, planners and money movers — requires "an enormous amount of grand jury time, prosecutors' time and cooperation between investigating agencies."

MANY federal officials are pessimistic about the prospect for convictions in such cases.

"If you're going to take on the Sid Korshaks," one lawyer in the department's organized crime division said, "you're going to have to commit one hell of a lot to it. Maybe if we committed the whole Federal Strike Force to it, we might be able to nail the guy. But there are four or five guys who are equally as important (in organized crime), so what are you going to do? It's just a matter of choosing up sides and smelling armpits."

6th in Series

This official and others argued that the Justice Department had traditionally given top priority to statistics — to maximizing the number of criminals investigated and successfully prosecuted. This policy, the officials argue, has led to numerous convictions of low-level and middle-level criminals at the expense of more complex and difficult white-collar prosecutions.

"IF YOU'RE going after someone who seems big to you but nobody else knows who he is," the lawyer said, "and if you strike out — and particularly if he has friends in high places, like a lot of guys do — then you've got a lot of problems."

This sense of frustration was echoed by Robert J. Campbell of Kansas City, Mo., a former Strike Force leader in the Justice Department. Campbell recalled breaking off in the early 1970s an investigation into a number of high-level organized crime figures, including Korshak.

"If you call yourself a prosecutor, then you've got to prosecute," said Campbell, who is now in private law practice. "You just can't sit there and study papers all day. We had to slide down" to less important people "and make some figures" — the statistics with which the department justifies its budget requests.

AN ADDITIONAL complication in the Korshak case, Blakey and others said, is Korshak's frequent citation of the confidentiality of attorney-client discussions during his interviews with law enforcement personnel. Under the law, the government cannot question a lawyer about his discussions with a client unless the client specifically agrees.

Korshak testified before a federal grand jury in the late 1950s that he had been asked for a "legal opinion" on a much-investigated contract between Tony Accardo and Premium Beer Sales Inc. of Chicago. The contract specified that Accardo was to be paid $65,000 annually as a salesman, although he had no sales experience and did not seem to do any actual sales work. The prosecutors theorized that the contract was part of a scheme to make Accardo's underworld income seem legitimate.

KORSHAK told the FBI, according to Bureau documents, that his role had been limited to studying the contract to determine "whether it was a good contract or not."

One Justice Department official recalled in an interview that the government suspected that "the idea" for the unusual employment contract had come from Korshak. But because he was able to cite the attorney-client privilege, the prosecutors could not question him directly.

When federal agents have approached him on various cases, according to FBI documents, Korshak has been deft at deflecting their inquiries. Sometimes he was belligerent, occasionally gracious and always adept at suggesting the extent of his influence.

AN AGENT had been ordered by a Senate committee to serve a subpoena on a Chicago hoodlum named Gus Alex, who was known to be a close Korshak friend, a federal official recalled. The committee's chief counsel was the late Robert F. Kennedy.

The Los Angeles police found that Alex had briefly lived in an oceanside villa near Los Angeles that had been leased by Korshak. The police also said that Alex had been driving an expensive convertible that belonged to Korshak.

The agent questioned Korshak, who explained Alex's use of his car and villa by saying that Mrs. Korshak and Mrs. Alex were close friends.

Korshak stalled when the agent sought to interview his wife about Alex's whereabouts.

"Give me a week," the agent recalled Korshak as requesting, "and I'll find him and give him my professional advice and come and answer the subpoena."

A WEEK later, Korshak urged the agent to call his wife directly, adding: "She's having dinner with Peter Lawford and his wife. If you want to deal with that, go ahead." Mrs. Lawford was a sister of Kennedy.

The agent informed FBI headquarters of Mrs. Korshak's whereabouts and requested permission to interview her at the restaurant. Headquarters told the agent to try to serve the subpoena later. It was served later in Chicago.

COLUMNIST WILSON BECOMES INTERVIEWEE

By JOE CLARK
Ridder News Service

PHILADELPHIA—Earl Wilson understood the situation. He'd been in the same fix many times. During his 33 years as a New York Post columnist, Wilson has interviewed thousands of personalities. Many were duds, people who talked but said nothing.

"What do I in a suitation like that?" Wilson said, repeating a question. "I want for the SOB to open up."

In this particular case, however, Wilson was the interviewee. And because of the columnist's busy schedule, the interviewer didn't have much time for him to "open up."

"Besides," Wilson smiled, "I'm a lousy interview."

OK. A pearl Earl's not. But he's not a hunk of glass, either.

Sinatra has filed a $3-million suit, charging the book will detract from his own biography, which he hopes to publish some day.

"He says the book is going to interfere with his," Wilson said, adding he started to write the book three years ago because "someone asked me to and I know his life as well as anyone in the field.

"I've known him for 30 years. Since I first saw him with Tommy Dorsey in Meadowbrook, N.J. I was always a great admirer of his. I still am," Wilson added. "In many ways the book is very complimentary to him."

Some people say the 69-year-old Wilson is too complimentary to too many people. In an article in the recent issue of New York magazine, Wilson is likened to a "toothless vampire" because he seldom criticizes people.

The description is correct, says Wilson.

"I'm not a vampire columnist. I'm not from the knock-knock school of journalism. I'm not in the knocking business. My business is making friends. Rapping people is not my way of doing a column."

Wilson noted some "knock columnists" have gone the way of the nickel newspaper, but he's still around and intends to stay "for a while."

Wilson takes umbrage with being tagged a "gossip" columnist. "I'm not a gossip," he says. "I have a news and personality column. Gossip is rumor. The material I use is factual. If I write a rumor, I say it's a rumor."

And despite the words of a West Coast columnst—"Columnists who make friends, lose readers"—Wilson's column appears in some 300 papers today.

Smile is something Wilson doesn't do much of. He's a small man (5 foot 6½ inches, 158 pounds), and doesn't come across as a person who has probably rubbed just about every elbow worth rubbing.

He comes across as modest, extremely quiet, sedate.

"I found out a long time ago you learn to being quiet," he said. "I could never understand how Walter Winchell got his news."

Summer reading

From among the choicest of the summer books:

The Baseball Encyclopedia: The Complete and Official Record of Major League Baseball. Macmillan, $25. Revised, expanded, up-to-date, and packed with an endless amount of information.

Airships: An Illustrated History. By Henry Beaubois. Illustr. By Carlo Demand. Two Continents, $35. Lighter-than-air craft, from the earliest designs (some shaped like birds or fish), to the present; the triumphs and the disastrous crashes.

Melville: A Biography by Edwin Haviland Miller. Braziller, $15. A superb new biography of a superb writer, showing the impact of his family life on his career.

Studies and Executed Buildings. By Frank Lloyd Wright. Prairie School Press, 12509 S. 89th Ave., Palos Park, Ill., 60464, $40. The famed Wasmuth drawings of the master architect, finally available between book covers; their influence in the first 25 years of the 20th century, especially on the modern movement, was incalculable.

Voices of the Civil War. By Richard Wheeler. Preface by Bruce Catton. Crowell, $14.45. An engrossing military history of the Civil War, based on participants' accounts of the land and sea battles.

Imogen: Imogen Cunningham Photographs 1910-1973. ($7.95). Imogen Cunningham: Photographs ($7.95). Both Univ. of Washington Press. One of the most remarkable of American photographers, Imogen Cunningham, died last week, aged 93. These two volumes of her work show the great artistry of her camera.

The Lives of Bats. By D. W. Talden & P.A. Morris. Quadrangle/N. Y. Times Book Co., $9.95. Bloodthirsty-and shy; these are th vampire bats, whose ways are chronicled, along with those of many othjr varieties, in this fascinating book.

Hustlers and Con Men: An Anecdotal History of the Confidence Man and His Game. By Robert Bash. Evans, $14.95. They're the elitists, the real artists of the criminal world, and it's no come-on to tell you that this history of the con men (and women) is both entertaining and valuable.

The Art of Easter Island. By Thor Heyerdahl. Doubleday, $35. The man who wrote "Kon-Tiki" led a team of archaeologists to mysterious Easter Island, site of 600 giant, puzzling monoliths, and they discovered new facts about the giant statues. This big book about the expedition offers 336 pages of photographs.

The Parks, Squares and Mews of London. The Cottages and Castles of Ireland. The Rooftops of Paris. The Sidewalks of New York. The Canals of Amsterdam. Vienna: Coffee Houses and Palaces. Bobbs-Merrill, $12.95 each. The photographs (a welath of them in each volume), are grand; the texts are vivid. This year's best bargains in armchair travel.

Phyllis Diller's face-lift gets a going over

PHYLLIS DILLER

By Mary Daniels
Knight News Service

Phyllis Diller agreed to talk about her 5-year-old face-lift, and even allow photographs to be taken, but she couldn't resist wisecracking in a tough voice to the photographer, "If you're looking for scars, baby, take an X-ray of my soul!"

With a complete lack of self-consciousness, she showed a small group of women her scars, or rather where they are supposed to be. By now, they are so faded they are difficult to find. She pointed to the area above the upper eyelid, then below the lower lids, to the area behind her ears, and then to the back of the neck near where the hairline approaches the ears.

"They literally redrape your face," she explained. "They bring your chin around and tack it up."

Do they make any "cuttings?" one onlooker asked.

Does it last? "It doesn't," she answered succinctly. "It's already drooping. The minute they finish, it starts dropping. Gravity is our main problem."

Will she do it again? "Sure, I will. I'll do it many times. I'll do it as often as I need."

Has the drooping changed any of her initial enthusiasm?

She does advice not having a face-lift before you really need it. "The longer you wait, the more years you can have it done over and over again when you really need it." The rate of droop, she added, depends on each individual.

What was the biggest exterior change? "I pay much more attention to how I dress and make up, to my clothing and my hair. I didn't care that much, before."

Does she feel a face-lift is worth the price? (Hers cost $4,000.)

"Yes. Because of a woman's attitude toward herself, it's the most important thing in her life. It regulates what you are going to be and do, and if you can change your attitude toward yourself with any device, I say GO."

The photographer asked for a profile. "The post office shot," Phyllis comments as she complies. "I have a great line: If you look like your passport photo you need the trip. Great? Ahahahahahaha," she emits that trademark laugh which is part chicken cackle, part machine-gun stutter.

"You name a spare part, I'm wearing it," she joshed, leading into another change which followed the face-lift. "You know I got my teeth done, too. My two front teeth were indented. Jackie (Onassis) has it, and so does Cher. When they took pictures it looked like I had two missing teeth. I got all the witch jobs with the nose and the teeth."

One day after the face-lift, "I woke up and found black marks at the top of my teeth. I went to my dentist and I told him, I've heard of black roots, but only in my hair.

"He explained that my lower teeth had been banging against my upper teeth for years and they were finally wearing away. He sent me to an orthodontist. I have young bones that can still be straightened."

As for the rest of her, although Phyllis deprecates herself as flat-chested in her act, she is anything but that. She nods when this is mentioned to her, explaining how she disguises her full figure with raglan sleeves, and jokes that she ought to emblazon across her front, "This space available."

"I'm gonna have a boob job, maybe," she announced.

What about a derriere lift? someone asked. She feigned surprise, and said, "I'm never gonna have that! Who cares? Once I'm leaving the room, I don't care what they think!"

But despite her clowing around, it's no joke that her face-lift has uplifted her image as well.

"Do you believe it?" asked the attractive woman who has made a sight gag of her own appearance with wigs and props. "He's looking at bones," she decided.

But actually Ashley qualified his choice saying, "Her youth, beauty, and vitality keep her a top entertainer." He seemed to have looked more than skin deep, a great compliment coming from him, as he is the plastic surgeon who performed Phyllis' face-lift. (The head of the plastic surgery department at UCLA, he also repaired Ann-Margret's face after she smashed it in a 32-foot fall onstage in Reno two years ago.)

YOUR HOROSCOPE
by JEANE DIXON

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY

Your birthday today: Finds you and the U.S.A. moving up to a higher level of consciousness, against resistance and problems (some of them self-made). Your urge to try imaginative new methods brings mixed results mostly beneficial. Relationships depend more on fundamental principals and less on personal superficialties. Today's natives are industrious, preoccupied with detail. Those born this year will be ambitious specialists seeking their place in history.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Early hours go smoothly. By evening you're into everybody's hair if you aren't careful. Don't be overly sensitive. Try for a sense of humor.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Like you, others are caught up in their own pursuit of happy experience. Give all space to move. Understanding keeps the peace and saves future prospects.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Set a limit on spending. Okay to buy inexpensive luxuries; long-use necessities should already be on hand. Enjoy diversity, don't insist on people joining in the same activity.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Avoid efforts to be spectacular. Just be yourself. Supply intangibles that make it possible to share today's activities with those you really care for.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): For a change, it's better not to have a large audience or conduct serious business. Minimize travel. Try to get some relaxation at solitary hobbies.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Indulge in comfortable old habits and pleasures, and let others have similar quiet enjoyment. If you avoid formal celebrations, little is said of it.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Where you made choices, stick to them; where you didn't, let nature take its course. Many so-called choices aren't really voluntary, being strictly limited.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An impulse to tease brings adverse reactions. You waste much energy getting the situation back to normal. If you're curious, candidly ask to be heard.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Social or official functions dwindle from projected importance. Avoid extreme thrift, but don't blow all your cash to get the most glamorous spot.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Leave business out of your program. Tact is essential; don't indulge in practical jokes. Get extra rest, and encourage others to do likewise.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Little is gained by compromise; nobody is satisfied. Go your route, and leave the way clear for others to pursue separate, ultimately clashing, goals.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Dropping out of the mainstream is an intriguing idea. With luck, perhaps you can achieve it for awhile. The choice is there awaiting your decision.

Instant, nationwide

Designed to provide businesses anywhere, coast to coast, with instant business credit reports on existing and potential customers, the new service was activated by the National Credit Information Service (NACIS) from its headquarters in Long Beach.

Operated by TRW Business Credit Services for the National Association of Credit Management (NACM), the service will be available this month only to subscribing companies which have teleprinter terminals capable of accessing the NACIS computers in Anaheim.

Starting Aug. 2, all of the NACM's 40,000 members will be able to use the service to purchase business credit reports by contacting NACM-affiliated associations in 47 cities which also will have teleprinters linked to the central file.

"NACIS, which was developed in response to today's rapidly changing economic condition, represents the first major breakthrough in business credit reporting in more than 100 years," said James H. Holly, vice president and general manager of TRW Business Credit Services.

"For the first time companies will be able to instantly receive credit information on other firms that is comprehensive, highly accurate and totally objective," he said.

NACIS reports contain specific information on how firms pay their bills to suppliers and banking relationships, where available.

Details on open accounts, date of last sale, payment terms, recent high credit, amounts currently owing and past due amount's in 30, 60 and 90-day categories will be included, as well as a trend analysis of a firm's payment record for the previous six months.

The information is extracted from the automated accounts receivable data provided by contributing firms every 90 days. It is expected that approximately 2,500 firms eventually will be providing data on some 2,500,000 million companies.

COMPUTER TAPES containing credit information on thousands of firms nationally are shown through other tapes as operators prepare to feed data to central computers at the National Credit Information center, Anaheim. It is operated for the National Association for Credit management in Long Beach.

L.B. oil concern to sell its assets

Ralph Edgington, chairman of Edgington Oil Co. of Long Beach has announced the company has signed an agreement to sell $47 million of its assets, including the capital stock of its subsidiaries, Sahuaro Petroleum & Asphalt Co. and Hercules Oil Co. of San Diego, to an affiliate of Buckeye Pipe Line Co., a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania Co.

The agreement and a plan of liquidation will be submitted for approval to the Edgington stockholders as soon as appropriate proxy material has been cleared by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The closing date of sale is scheduled Aug. 31, following which Edgington proposes to liquidate pursuant to section 337 of the internal revenue code. Consummation of the transaction also requires government approval.

Edgington officials said the facilities will continue operations under Pennsylvania Co. ownership if the deal is consummated.

The total amount available for distribution to stockholders will not be ascertainable until after provision has been made for liabilities. However, the company presently estimates that between $37 to $43 per share will ultimately be distributed to stockholders. Common stock outstanding — 1,666,174 shares.

Scientists attempt to harness fusion

Gains told in quest for endless energy

By JOHN C. EAGAN

LIVERMORE (AP) — On a former cattle ranch 50 miles east of San Francisco, researchers are attempting to harness fusion — the energy source of the sun and stars — for generating clean, inexhaustible energy on earth.

"We've got a long way to go, but we've already come a long way," laser fusion research chief John L. Emmett told reporters this week on a tour of the University of California's Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

A key tool for the research, being conducted for the Energy Research and Development Administration, is the newly completed $3.5 million Argus laser generator.

Emmett said the Argus, a third generation laser generator covering space about the size of a football field, is capable of producing twice as much energy as all the power plants in the United States combined. Argus experiments began June 1.

A fourth-generation laser, called Shiva and 10 times as powerful as Argus, is under construction now at Livermore. The $25 million Shiva is scheduled for completion in October 1977.

Dr. Roger E. Batzel, head of the laboratory which has a $202 million budget and 6,000 employes' said Lawrence scientists are studying both lasers and magnetic confinement as methods to create fusion.

The concept is that heat from the fusion — a continuing series of tiny thermonuclear explosions — would heat a fluid, creating steam to drive electrical generators. Batzel said it appears possible that an experimental laser fushion power generating system will be operating by the late 1980s.

"My opinion is that the solution to our long-range energy problems may well depend on the success of either or both of these methods," Batzel said.

"We've got to pursue both options now to be sure we have one that works around the turn of the century. It's beginning to look like both will work — although we can't be certain. If both work, each may have novel complementary applications."

Emmett said advantages over present-day nuclear power plants include that fusion burns cleanly with no radioactive waste, core cooling hazards are not a problem, and the fuel is heavy hydrogen — almost inexhaustible on earth.

Some radioactivity could be expected from the plates surrounding the core, Emmett said. Those plates would have to be replaced periodically, but the radioactive disposal would be substantially less than with present nuclear generators, he said.

Business Week

FTC in major tobacco probe

Business Week magazine has disclosed that the Federal Trade Commission has quietly launched "what promises to be the most intensive investigation of the tobacco industry ever undertaken."

In its issue of July 5, the magazine said that subpoenas have been served on the six major tobacco companies and that these demand that by July 15 all of the market research conducted by them during the past 12 years must be turned over to the agency.

The six companies served are: American Tobacco Co.; Brown & Williamson Tobacco Co.; Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.; P. Lorillard Co.; Philip Morris, Inc.; and R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

Business Week said tobacco industry officials have no confidence in either the objectivity or confidentiality of the FTC probe and are claiming that the voluminous materials sought are literally impossible for them to produce by the federal deadline.

"In addition to market research, the FTC has demanded copies of every advertisement prepared by the industry during the past decade. The agency will also examine, for the first time, the various promotional events the companies sponsor — music festivals, auto racing, and tennis tournaments," Business Week said.

IT POINTED OUT that while company executives are simmering over the subpoenas, they are closely watching several bills in Congress, including one introduced by Sen. Gary Hart (D.-Colo.), that also could disrupt their operations. "The most devastating bill, in the eyes of the tobacco companies, is one that creates a health tax based on the tar and nicotine content of cigarettes," Business Week said.

The publication said further that tobacco men fear the FTC "undoubtedly will join in the effort to regulate tar and nicotine content. There also could be recommendations to bar advertising in print media with female and youthful audiences. Others could be to exclude all cigarette advertising that depicts scenes of models frolicking in festive surroundings, or ads that attempt to leave the impression that certain cigarettes are safer than others."

Company officials are claiming they can not meet the FTC's deadline. At Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp., the industry's third biggest, a spokesman says the documents demanded would make a stack 483-feet high. R. J. Reynolds, the giant of the industry, says the scope of the subpoena represents "thousands of manhours" and one ad agency, which handles only two of the 135 brands on the market, claims that to comply would mean turning over 250,000 pages of documents.

Business Week said the FTC subpoena calls for "all documents, including but not limited to marketing, advertising or consumer surveys, experiments, or other research, prepared by or for the corporation or any other party between Jan. 1, 1964, and the date upon which return to the attached subpoena is made."

CARSON MAY GET NEW BANK

By BOB ANDREW
Staff Writer

Attempts are being made by a group of South Bay business people to form a state-chartered bank in Carson with an initial capitalization of $2 million.

That information became known with a champagne party at the Ford dealership of Don Kott, one proponent of the Carson City Bank, to celebrate the completion of documentation for the charter application.

"The city of Carson was gracious enough to let us use its VIP mailing list which starts with President Ford and runs down to the members of the city's Bicentennial committee," said another proponent, Kathrryn T. Burns, Palos Verdes Penninsula realtor and businesswoman.

Others involved in the proposal are Carson businessman John Peoples; David Isa, a Torrance certified public accountant; John M. Mills, a Los Angeles businessman and 20-year teacher of economics at El Camino College; and attorneys Anthony John Ward and Robert Gaunt, both of Torrance.

Capitalization for the project would come from sale of 200,000 shares of stock at $10 per share with each of the directors committing up to $75,000 and outside investors limited to less than five per cent of the stock each. Minimum purchases of 50 shares are proposed with a maximum investment of $10,000 each for non-director stockholders.

The economic feasibility study prepared by Ruegg Research Associates points out that the need for an independent banking operation in the Carson area received the highest level of endorsement in 1973 when the United States comptroller of the currency approved the formation of Harbor National Bank in the same general location — the vicinity of the Carson Mall at Avalon and Del Amo boulevards.

That approval was later suspended because of problems with the directorship of the proposed bank.

"Few areas, on balance, can claim such an extensive list of compelling economic and market factors — as well as philosophical and other reasons — which support the establishment of a proposed commercial banking operation," the Ruegg report declares.

The report identifies a prime banking area with a population area of 79,080 within the city or 94,104 including nearby unincorporated areas.

In addition, Carson has a very extensive industrial community and a rapidly growing retail-commercial community, according to the report.

This area is now served by only five banking institutions, which means an average population of 15,684 per bank if Carson City Bank is approved, as compared with an average of 6,649 in Los Angeles County and an estimated 5,560 per bank statewide.

WEEK'S TRANSACTIONS

Mild gain restores balance

Stock market stays even

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, down 7.94 on Thursday, rebounded 5 points to 99.84, closing out the week exactly where it stood at the previous Friday's close.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, came to 19.61 million shares as of the close in New York.

Three — DuPont, Union Carbide and Allied Chemical — were bouncing back from a sharp selloff Thursday that was attributed to reports of analysts' negative appraisal of the group and Du Pont's comments on its dividend plans.

The fourth, Anaconda, jumped more than 3 points on word of plans for a merger of the company with Atlantic Richfield.

Arco shares rose a fraction.

Analysts said investors interpreted a decline in the money supply reported late Thursday by the Federal Reserve as a good sign for the interest rate outlook.

On a less favorable note, the government reported Friday morning that the unemployment rate rose from 7.3 to 7.5 per cent in June for its first increase since last September.

But White House spokesman Ron Nessen maintained that the upturn was largely the result of "faulty" calculation of seasonal influences. And he said administration economists still expected the rate to go below 7 per cent by year end.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose .52 to 104.11, and the NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks added .26 to 55.57.

Alcoa lost more than a point. The company announced plans for a 5 per cent price increase on some types of aluminum used in making beverage cans.

Robintech, among the most active American Stock Exchange issues, rose more than a point. The company said it had developed a new manufacturing process that would reduce its costs by more than $3 million a year.

Business Briefs

New housing starts in California increased sharply in May to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 188,000 units, the Bank of America reports. The increase was 23 per cent more than April starts and 50 per cent more than the same period last year.

Union Pacific Corp., which has paid dividends on its common stock 76 consective years, declared a quarterly dividend on its common of 70 cents a share, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 7.

William R. Howell has been appointed western regional manager of the J. C. Penney Co., based in Buena Park. He replaces Robert R. Van Kleek, promoted to a top-level management position in New York.

Trusting Tom Hartman ends season of trauma unmarked

By Lee Winfrey
Knight News Wire

Mullavey plays Mary's husband Tom, a factory worker and ex-baseball player. Both of these characteristics were drawn from Mullavey's own past.

"That's the joy of working for Norman Lear," Mullavey said in Los Angeles. "He lets you put yourself in the character."

Lear, TV's most successful producer of situation comedies, created "Mary Hartman" last year as a satire on soapy operas. The result was stunning: "Mary" — earned rank with "Saturday Night Live" and "Rich Man, Poor Man" as one of the three brightest new programming innovations of the season.

The warm-up jacket and baseball cap that Tom Hartman wears on the show are familiar attire for Greg Mullavey. Mullavey's father, who had the same name, coached the old Brooklyn Dodgers from 1959 to 1968. The younger Mullavey used to work out with the Dodgers frequently, taking infield practice with them.

"Fernwood, Ohio, the scene of "Mary Hartman"," is modelled on real-life Lordstown, Ohio. The site of one of General Motors' biggest auto factories. Mullavey gained perspective on that kind of place by youthful work, first in a window frame factory, and later in a plant that made ball bearings.

Mullavey said he has never been troubled by sexual impotence, though, an affliction that befell Tom Hartman in one of the show's most-discussed plot developments last season.

"I've gotten letters from men," said Mullavey, "who said they were impotent with their wives because of their wives' increased sexual agression. They wrote thanking me for portraying the problem."

Mullavey is visibly very proud of his show. "It's part of an English course at Yale," he said. "A professor made it required viewing. He calls it a modern House of Atreus."

In Greek tragedy, the House of Atreus was smitten by almost ceaseless disaster. In a typical plot line, Clytemnestra murdered her husband Agamemnon, and then was slain in revenge by her son Orestes.

Looking forward to "Mary Hartman's" second year this fall, Mullavey said, "The only thing I've heard is that they're going to give me a couple of girl friends. So I guess we (Mary and Tom) will probably separate for a while. The plan is to give us every possible marital conflict."

Mullavey said the show will make no explicit use, however, of the recent arrest of Louise Lasser, who plays Mary Hartman, on a charge of cocaine possession. That's too bad, for Mullavey's explanation of how Ms. Lasser got arrested sounds like a plot line straight out of "Mary Hartman."

"Louise had gone to the boutique (where she was arrested) to buy a present, a doll house, for the wardrobe girl," Mullavey related. "Somebody had put some cocaine in her purse four months before as a present, and she had completely forgotten about it."

New character for Nancy Walker

By JIM O'BRIEN
Ridder News Service

"My husband has been heard to say I'm as funny as a cry for help."

That's Nancy Walker's response to the question of whether she is as funny at home as she is hilarious on the tube. The question did not really need to be asked because it was obvious during a Hollywood interview that Miss Walker is one of those comediennes who find making people laugh is a very serious business.

Miss Walker will star in a new situation comedy series for ABC next season, "The Nancy Walker Show," in which she will play a Hollywood talent agent whose Navy officer husband, at sea during most of their marriage, suddenly retires and returns home.

Miss Walker's character is also the mother of a hapless daughter who has given her mother three grandchildren and has a fourth on the way. It is evident in the pilot show that Miss Walker plays a character totally unlike the Jewish mother in "Rhoda."

"I told them in this show I wanted to have a W. C. Fields attitude toward young children."

Does she feel that way about youngsters in real life?

"I like them when they get to be 18 and have jobs and can hold a conversation."

How does she feel about chicken soup?

"Well, I'll never give that up."

Miss Walker is giving up her supporting roles in "Rhoda" and "McMillan and Wife" now that she has her own show.

"I'm doing one more 'Rhoda' for next season. I was amazed when Fred Silverman (program chief at ABC) told me it was all right with him if I continued in 'Rhoda' but it would be just too much work."

The actress will continue to do commercials.

Someone asked how she felt having the responsibility of her own show rather than being a "second banana."

"I never use that expression. I've always worked hard and I expect to do the same in my own show."

The new series follows the highly popular "Laverne and Shirley" on Tuesdays but is opposite the equally popular "MASH" on CBS. Does that worry her?

"I don't worry about things like that. All we can do is work hard and do the best show we can manage."

There is a gay character in her show, an out-of-work actor living in her home and acting as the agent's secretary.

Miss Walker said the Norman Lear production firm had consulted a gay organization on the character.

"We will handle that with good taste and understanding. I don't expect any complaints."

Millions of her TV fans may not know or remember that during her long career on Broadway she was a first-rate singer and dancer as well as a comedienne.

U.S. recants on Olympic withdrawal

Associated Press

A top official of the U.S. Olympic Committee retracted a threat to pull the Americans out of the 1976 Olympic Games Friday.

The change of heart came after the official learned that the International Olympic Committee would not remove its sponsorship of the Montreal Games.

There had been reports that the IOC would not sanction the Games, leaving it as a mere international competition, if the Canadian government carries out its edict that Taiwan athletes can compete, but not under the Nationalist China flag.

Don Miller, executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said Friday night: "If we understand to be a fact that Lord Killanin has said the Games will be official Games, then we believe we will participate in the Games."

But Miller then added the following qualification: "provided there are no other restrictions placed on the Games."

Miller said if more political footballs are tossed around threatening the integrity of the Montreal Olympics, "We're prepared to give our next step very careful consideration."

But "careful consideration" is much different than a walkout, which the USOC threatened over a non-political issue that surfaced Thursday.

The USOC, after hearing reports that the IOC might declare the 1976 Games "not to be official," said such an action would "seriously question United States of America's participation." This statement was part of a telegram sent Friday from USOC president Philip O. Krumm to Roger Rousseau, president of the Montreal Organizing Committee.

"Since the president of the IOC has clarified his position that the IOC will not withdraw recognition, sanction or patronage of the Games, there should be no longer a question of U.S. team participation in Montreal."

Killanin, due in Montreal on Monday to prepare for IOC executive board and full IOC sessions beginning July 10, said from Lausanne on Friday that "press reports regarding proposed sanctions in regard to the world Olympic and medal presentation according to IOC rules and regulations attibuted to an officials of the IOC are incorrect.

"The position (of the IOC) is that the decision of the Canadian government is under consideration by all concerned."

Canada's decision to bar Nationalist China as a nation was made public after a letter dated May 28 was sent to Killanin in which Mitchell Sharp, Canada's acting secretary of state for external affairs, said that the Canadian government would not allow Nationalist China's athletes to compete if they use the team designation that includes the word "China" or if they display the Nationalist Chinese flag.

Sharp said in his letter to Killanin that Canada "discourages all official contact with the Republic of China" and does not want to compromise its China policy formulated after official ties were established with the Peking government in 1970 and relations were severed with Taipei.

Henry Ksu, Nationalist China's representative to the IOC, criticized the Canadian government for its attempts to bar his nation's team. "It is ridiculous for the Canadian government to back out from its written undertaking to allow entry of all national Olympic delegations, thus acting contrary to the IOC rules and the Olympic spirit."

Padre fireworks dazzle Dodgers

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO — There were fireworks before Friday night's game at San Diego Stadium and there were fireworks afterward, but unfortunately for the Dodgers, there were few fireworks in between.

They lost again to the fast-closing San Diego Padres, 6-3, who now trail the Dodgers by a half-game in the National League West and are only five behind first place Cincinnati.

The Dodgers suffered their sixth loss in seven tries against the Padres, the one-time doormats of the division. It is the Dodgers, not the Pads, who are playing pitifully poor baseball at the moment.

Dodger of day

STEVE YEAGER homered and tripled in 6-3 loss to Padres.

The events of Thursday evening, when the Dodgers missed signs, let San Diego runners advance on the bases and failed to advance themselves, prompted the manager to address his team. Apparently, he pulled few punches.

"We were out-hit, out-pitched and out-hustled," Alston said following the closed-door session, referring to the lethargic 5-3 loss to the Padres Thursday night. "We're going to get out-hit and out-pitched once in awhile but there's no excuse for not hustling."

His words lasted until the first inning.

The Dodgers got a runner to second but no further in their half of the first, then contributed an error by Dave Lopes and another bobble by centerfielder Lee Lacy with three Padres hits collected off loser Don Sutton and, just like that, San Diego had a 2-0 lead.

The Dodgers struggled to tie the score, getting two of the runs on Steve Yeager's eighth homer in the fourth. Two innings earlier they managed two triples and a single off former teammate Alan Foster, yet settled for one run.

"The thing that worries me is that we haven't played well for several days," said Alston. "All we can hope for is that the Reds go into a losing streak so we can stay close until we come out of this thing. If we don't, then we don't deserve to win it."

The Dodgers' woes began five weeks ago, just after they had won 23 of 27 games, jumping 13 games over .500 to lead the Reds by 2½ games. They are only 16-22 since then, and have lost seven games in the standings.

He is now under .500, 7-8. In his last three starts, one of which he won, he's surrendered 24 hits and 14 earned runs in 18 innings, a 7.00 ERA.

"His stuff appears to be as good as it ever was," Alston said of Sutton, "but he's been battling to find his rhythm or groove or whatever you want to call it."

After the Dodgers got even at 3-3 in the top of the fourth, the Padres' Doug Rader homered to lead off the bottom of the fourth. San Diego got two more runs before the inning ended on three singles and a passed ball.

He failed to last four innings against the Reds in his previous start, and in the prior outing didn't survive the first.

Ali is 'much improved,' but remains hospitalized

SANTA MONICA (AP) — Kicks by Antonio Inoki in a much-criticized World Martial Arts match in Japan last week have sent heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali to a hospital with blood clots around his knees.

The clots were found to be superficial Friday, but Ali must remain hospitalized.

"Medical tests revealed superficial thrombi around both knees with no evidence of any deep vein thrombosis at this time," said Dr. Robert Kositcheck.

Ali suffered the injuries last Friday in Tokyo, where he fought Inoki in a 15-round martial arts match. Inoki's principal attack was kicking.

Dr. Kositcheck said there also was severe anemia produced by bleeding into the leg from the vessels in the leg, but Ali's over-all condition was less serious than first believed.

"Ali is much improved and responding well to treatment," said Jeremiah Shabazz, the champion's administrative assistant.

He described the treatment as medication and elevation of the legs.

"There is nothing worse than damage to the muscles and quite a few blood vessels busted," Shabazz commented. "I anticipate Ali will be out of the hospital in a few days."

Ali made a reported $6 million for his dull bout with Inoki in which the Japanese wrestler fell to the canvas and started kicking at the beginning of each round and Ali landed only six blows during the entire fracas.

"They said the match wasn't for real but this proves how real it was," said Angelo Dundee, the boxer's trainer. "Inoki laid on his butt kicking just to survive. If he'd have stood up, the champ would have landed one and we'd all have been out of there.

"The pain was so bad that we put ice packs on them (Ali's knees) between rounds just so he could go back in there," Dundee said. "But Inoki kept kicking and Muhammad took a bad rap from writers who said he was faking it."

The 34-year-old Ali is scheduled to defend his boxing title in Yankee Stadium on Sept. 28 against Ken Norton in another multi-million dollar affair.

Hassler suffers 17th loss in row

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — Andy Hassler must be wondering when the law of averages are going to work out in his favor.

The beleaguered Angel left-hander dropped his 17th game in a row, a 6-5 decision to the Minnesota Twins, despite a brilliant six-inning relief stint during which he permitted the Twins only one run and three hits.

Angel of Day

BRUCE BOCHTE drove in three runs with homer and double as Angels fell to Minnesota, 6-5.

But that one run—coming on a two-out walk to Butch Wynegar and successive singles by Lyman Bostock and Craig Kusick in the fifth—was enough to beat him and move him within two of the league record for consecutive failures on the mound.

Down 5-0 after two innings as Rod Carew hammered a two-run homer and doubled in another run off an ineffective Don Kirkwood, the Angels blitzed back and scored five times in the third inning which featured a game-tying three-run homer by Bruce Bochte.

Vic Albury, who replaced starter Jim Hughes for the Twins, went the final six innings and checked the Angels on two hits, thereby ending the visiting team's mini winning streak at three games.

But Friday the Twins were playing games of another sort.

Alarmed by the increasing number of people who are turning their backs and their bank accounts on his Minnesota Twins, vice-president Clark Griffith decided Friday it was time to sell, sell, sell.

So Griffith put an ad agency under contract—Kaufman-Spicer, Inc.—to carry his message throughout the Upper Midwest.

Evert winner in 'battle of minds'

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Chris Evert came in from the center court at Wimbledon where she had battered the ball for two hours to beat Evonne Goolagong, 6-3, 4-6, 8-6 and said she had won "a battle of the minds."

"I think more than actual physical tennis it was a question of who was going to hang in the longest and who was going to rise to the occasion the best," Evert said after winning her second title in three years. "I played smart tennis when I had to on the big points. I don't think Evonne played the big points as carefully as I did."

It was the first time that Chris had ever beaten Evonne on grass and she acknowledged that had been weighing on her mind.

"Before, when I played Evonne on grass, I just gave up," she said. "I knew I'd be thinking about this match all year. I wanted to put everything I had into it. I just never gave up. I stayed in there and tried to guts it out.

"After winning a couple of important points, I looked across the net and told myself 'Hey, she's human.' That helped."

Chris said that she felt the capacity crowd of 17,000 banked around the green and brown grass of the center court had been with her opponent. "But it didn't matter to me," she said. "I knew my family and my friends were with me and that's all that mattered."

At one point she said she glanced up to the box where Billie Jean King and Rosemary Casals were sitting and they gave her the "go" sign to lift up her spirits.

Goolagong said: "I don't think either of us played the best match we've played against each other. I think I just tired out at the wrong time. She was tougher at the end."

Evert said she was determined not to rush her shots, and walked around the baseline and bounced the ball to calm her nerves and give herself a chance to compose her thoughts.

Evert won $17,500 for the victory, with the opportunity for much more from endorsements and other off-court income. When asked how much the title might be worth to her, Evert had a quick answer. "I don't care."

'Red Machine' falters—drops two

Associated Press

Cesar Cedeno's tie-breaking, two-run double in the eighth inning led the Houston Astros to a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds and a doubleheader sweep Friday night.

Cedeno's 14th-inning, two-run homer lifted the Astros to a 10-8 victory in the opener.

Despite the double loss, the Reds maintained a 4½-game advantage over the Dodgers, who dropped a 6-3 decision to the San Diego Padres. The Padres closed to within 5 games of Cincinnati in the National League West.

In other National League games, pinch hitter Bill Robinson hit a bases-empty home run in the 10th inning to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 10-9 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies, the New York Mets won their eighth game in a row with a 2-1 decision over the Chicago Cubs, the St. Louis Cardinals blanked the Montreal Expos 3-0, and Atlanta beat San Francisco 7-2 behind ex-Dodger pitcher Andy Messersmith.

Joaquin Andujar, 4-4, a former Reds' farmhand, outdueled Fred Norman as he beat Cincinnati for the third successive time. Norman, 6-2, permitted only five hits while suffering a rare loss at Riverfront Stadium. He is 28-7 lifetime at Riverfront, and 10-4 vs. Houston.

Ed Herrmann doubled with one out in the Cincinnati eighth and was replaced by pinch-runner Skip Jutze. Jutze advanced to third on Andujar's infield single and Enos Cabell walked to load the bases. After Rob Andrews dribbled an infield grounder that forced Jutze at

Houston had taken a 1-0 lead in the fourth when Cedeno doubled, moved to third on Watson's infield grounder, and scored on Leon Roberts sacrifice fly. The Reds tied it in the fifth when Rose singled and went to second on an error and scored on Mike Lum's single to center.

Houston trailed 4-1 before rallying to tie the first game with three runs in the seventh, two on a double Jose Cruz.

The Astros went ahead 7-4 in the 11th, with Jerry DaVanon delivering a two-run triple. But the Reds scored three times in the bottom of the 11th as Johnny Bench, who had struck out four times, tied it up with a two-run, two-out double.

Foster extended his hitting streak to 17 games for a career-high with a two-run double in the first inning. He sat out the nightcap with an aggravated shoulder.

Robinson's leadoff homer that gave the Pirates their victory spoiled a determined rally by the Phillies, who overcame an early 8-2 deficit with the aid of a grand slam homer by Dick Allen and three ninth-inning runs.

Robinson's 11th homer of the season came off losing relief pitcher Gene Garber. Robinson batted for Pirate reliever Ramon Hernandez, who yielded the third Philadelphia run of the ninth on Terry Harmon's single that tied the score at 9-9.

Messersmith pitched a six-hitter and belted a pair of run-scoring singles, pacing Atlanta to its victory over San Francisco.

Messersmith, who banged out three singles and a sacrifice at the plate, lifted his pitching record to 8-6.

Bubbling with enthusiasm

Just give Dusty Walter a mouthful of bubble gum and a starting block and he's ready to dust off his competition. The 7-year-old sprinter from Albuquerque, N.M. says, "My coach yells so loud it hurts my ears, but it's worth it when you win something." Perhaps a gold medal in Moscow, 1980?

Catfish wins 10th

Royals pound Oakland, 8-5

Associated Press

"Its going to be spring training all over for me, I guess," said a disappointed, philosophical Vida Blue. "But I'll get it."

The Oakland lefthander made his first appearance Friday since June 11 and was shelled for six runs—four in the first inning—by the Kansas City Royals, who went on to an 8-5 victory over Blue and the A's.

AMERICAN

Blue's inactivity, ordered by A's owner Charlie Finley after his $3.5 million sale of Blue and two other players was voided by baseball commisioner Bowie Kuhn, obviously didn't have his rhythm in the early going.

"More than anything I was worried about my control. So what do I do? I throw everything right over the middle of the plate and they hit it all over the field," said Blue.

After falling behind 5-0 in the second inning, Blue settled down to retire 10 batters in a row. He was charged with six runs on seven hits and was relieved in the sixth.

"After the first couple of innings he was throwing as well as anyone can throw," said Oakland manager Chuck Tanner.

"No, I definitely did not consider taking him out in the first. What am I going to do? Take him out after one inning the rest of the year? The only way he's going to come back is to pitch."

George Brett's single began the four-run first inning against Blue (6-7), but the Royals needed John Mayberry's steal of home and towering home run to nail down the victory after blowing their early five-run advantage.

In other American League games, Catfish Hunter won his 10th game of the year as the New York Yankees blasted the Cleveland Indians, 7-1; the Boston Red Sox blanked the Milwaukee Brewers, 3-0; the Chicago White Sox shaded the Texas Rangers, 1-0, and the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Detroit Tigers, 2-1.

The triumph, coupled with Texas' 1-0 loss to Chicago, stretched the Royals' lead over the second-place Rangers in the American League West to four games. Defending champion Oakland is third, 9½ games behind.

Chris Chambliss slammed a three-run homer and Lou Piniella added a two-run blast in the New York conquest of Cleveland.

The victory ended New York's losing string at three games and moved them seven games ahead of the second-place Indians in the American League East.

Hunter, who improved his season record to 10-7, gave up six hits, including George Hendrick's 13th home run in the second inning.

Dick Pole and Jim Willoughby combined on an eight-hit shutout and Bobby Darwin homered in the second inning to lead Boston to its victory over Milwaukee. Darwin clouted his third home run of the year well into the leftfield bleachers for the only run the Red Sox needed.

Bart Johnson maintained his mastery over Texas as the White Sox hurler blanked the Rangers on five hits. Johnson has a 7-0 career record against Texas.

RANDY JONES VS THE DODGERS AT DODGER STADIUM
TOMORROW • 1 PM

DODGERS

He is reported to be experiencing arm trouble but, as Alston said, "I don't know what he's throwing up there, but it doesn't make much difference if you don't hit it."

DODGER DOPE: Unbeaten Rick Rhoden shoots for his eighth win in a row tonight at 7 when the Dodgers and Padres continue their home-and-home series in Dodger Stadium. He'll oppose Dave Freisleben (6-2). A fireworks show will follow and a sellout crowd is expected . . . Sunday afternoon the Padres' 14-game winner, Randy Jones, will start against Tommy John . . . Bill Buckner's hitting streak was snapped at nine when he went hitless three times and walked Friday night . . . Reggie Smith, in rightfield after missing two games because of his sore shoulder, explains the injury this way: "The right shoulder is a muscle problem; the left shoulder is something else that I'd rather not advertise in order to keep it from the opposition."

How they scored

PADRES FIRST

DODGERS SECOND

DODGERS FOURTH

PADRES FOURTH

With two out, Rader homered to center, his fifth. Kendall singled. Hernandez singled. Foster got an infield single to third and when Cey threw wild to first for an error, Kendall scored and Hernandez went to third. Hernandez scored on a passed ball. Grubb struck out. Three runs (one earned), four hits, one error, one left.

PADRES SIXTH

Twins defeat Angels

"We need you and you need the fun," is the campaign slogan. Griffith did not say how much the Twins, not renowned for their magnanimity, are investing in the promotional arena but he did say it would not be enough to buy Joe Rudi.

At the same time, Griffith, son of owner Calvin Griffith, declared that the Twins were dedicated to the proposition of remaining in the Twin Cities, where rumors have abounded in recent years that ownership was casting about for greener pastures.

The Twins celebrated this declaration with their one-run victory over the Angels Friday night but there weren't many celebrants detected in the stands.

Only 6,235 showed up on a faultless summer evening — nary a cloud in the sky and temperatures in the high 70s.

"We've emphasized winning and losing so much, people have forgotten how much fun it is to come to the park," the young Griffith said in his best Cal Worthington manner.

"We figured the quickest way to get the greatest numbers into the park was the broad spectrum of the television medium," he went on.

So people like Rod Carew, Roy Smalley, Butch Wynegar and Dave Goltz can be seen daily on a commercial saying things like, "It's more fun to play where there are people there to watch us."

"This is a bold step for us," Griffith said. "It's contrary to our earlier philosophies."

Those philosophies were rather basic. Put a team on the field, open the gates and wait to be enriched.

The marketing program was decided upon two weeks ago in the midst of another dismal year at the turnstiles for the Twins. With American League attendance up 13 per cent and the major league total 1.2 million ahead of last year, the Twins find themselves 25,000 below last season's pace, which was the worst in the majors. Including Friday, they have played 34 home dates and have yet to reach the 300,000 plateau.

"I hope," winked Griffith, "that I have an easier time selling the product than I did selling the idea to my dad."

To which a Minnesota reporter snickered and said, "Yeah, I come out to the park every day and laugh myself silly."

ANGEL ANGLES: Nolan Ryan threw briefly on the sidelines Friday and pronounced himself fit enought to face the Twins this afternoon...Ryan missed one turn with what he described as a "catch" in his right elbow, the first problem he has encountered since undergoing surgery on the elbow last September...Ryan's opponent will be his former sidekick in the Angels' starting rotation, Bill Singer...Billy No-No is 2-2 with a 4.65 ERA since joining Minnesota in the Bert Blyleven deal...Bobby Bonds, his average at a season low of .268, was rested Friday night until he was called upon to pinch-hit in the seventh inning and stayed in the game...Speedster Dave Collins was forced out of the game in the five-run Angel third when he pulled a groin musle in his left leg running the bases.

How they scored

TWINS FIRST

TWINS SECOND

ANGELS THIRD

TWINS FIFTH

EVERT WINNER—

The two-hour duel in the hot sun was far from being a classic tennis match. More points were lost on errors than won by positive strokes.

But it boiled to an exciting climax. The crowd cheered and countercheered as the players missed their chances with victory in sight. The final was in doubt until Evert's final, cool winning lob.

Evert, president of the Women's Tennis Association, told reporters she will defend her title next year only if the All-England Club meets WTA's demands for equal prize money with the men.

Goolagong, whose attacking net play has made her a favorite with the Wimbledon fans, was pinned back for most of the match and scored with fewer volleys than usual. Evert hit deep, and the Australian seemed overcautious.

In the crucial 13th game of the final set Goolagong led 40-30 on service, but finally lost the game with a terrible backhand that landed among the crowd. That made it 7-6 for Evert.

Brian Gottfried and Raul Ramirez won the men's doubles title, defeating Ross Case and Geoff Masters, 3-6, 6-3, 8-6, 2-6, 7-5.

Williams hurls 1-hitter

Jack Jernigan led off the seventh inning with a single that spoiled Stan Williams' attempt at a no-hitter but the Long Beach Cardinals lodged an easy 11-1 Connie Mack victory over Motor Patrol Friday night at Blair Field.

Jernigan eventually came around to score, wrecking Williams' shutout as well. The Cards improved their record to 9-0 with the offensive help of Kevin Miller (2-for-3, 3 RBI) and Tim Bjelland (2 RBI, 1 run scored).

The Douglas Jets scored six runs in the seventh inning to rally for a 7-6 win over Lakewood in the second game.

Singles by Rick Diffine, Chris Clark and a sacrifice fly by Scott Spehar were the key hits for Douglas.

Olympic Village: What hath fear wrought?

By STAN HOCHMAN
Knight News Service

He carries an automatic rifle slung over his right shoulder. He walks, slowly, exactly six feet away from a 12-foot chain link fence. The Sherbrooke Rd. traffic grumbles and hisses beyond the fence.

The XXI Olympiad does not begin for another 15 days and the soldier has already worn a path in the thick grass. The path is narrow. Now, it is light green, like his shirt.

There is the scent of fear at the Olympic Village, pervasive as the nasty smell of fresh paint. You cannot chase the smell by opening windows. You open a window and you look out and there is that Canadian soldier with his automatic rifle walking that path of trampled grass.

The light green of Canadian troops, the dark-gray of State Police, the powder-blue of city cops, that's the color scheme for the XXI Olympiad, colors muted by sadness, pastels darkened by tragedy.

"Nothing's gonna happen this time," Bob Ranson said.

"Nothing's gonna go wrong. You watch and see. We got 300 police in this building alone. Twelve hours on, twelve hours off. Seven days a week. No days off from now 'til it's over.

"I'll tell you how it's gonna work," he said. "Look down there, in the parking lot. The bus comes in with the athletes, it pulls in there and they jack it up.

"They search underneath the bus. The soldier on board, he's got a long rod with a mirror. He can check in the roof of the bus to make sure no one's up there.

"The bus pulls in to a check point. Everybody goes through the metal detector. Everybody files through that clump of trees there for one more search. No one, but no one, except police, state cops and the soldiers may carry a gun.

"The athlete won't mix with the public if his event is in the stadium or the swimming place or the velodrome.

"They walk out the door and go down a tunnel, come out the other side of Viau St. down another tunnel, and out the other side of Sherbrooke, and into the stadium."

What hath man wrought? An Olympiad with athletes crammed like rabbits in depressing little warren-like rooms, barely blinking at the sunlight before tiptoeing into tunnels on the way to run and jump and throw.

Or, if they ride the bus to a distant game site, hunkered down in their seats while an armed guard scans the traffic for terrorists.

"It's better this way," Ranson said. "Better to have a soldier on the bus than have an athlete sitting there, scared, wondering what might happen."

The scent of fear ... what will it do to the runners, the jumpers, the throwers? It is not something you can measure the way you could measure the thin oxygen in Mexico City.

Nor can anyone forecast what the cramped ugliness of the Olympic Village will do to performances in the XXI Olympiad.

Twelve athletes to a two-bedroom apartment, skittish as race horses. Thin walls barely muffling the grumbles in the next apartment. One man's stereo invading another man's silence.

Short, narrow beds. The mayor claims the village will be a place "of residence, where comfort which is less important, will give way to a living humanism and continuous animation."

Twelve men to a shower. Who knows about living humanism, but the situation calls for continuous animation.

The apartments are dumb little boxes barren of privacy because the corridors are on the outside and people will be walking by, peering into windows at all hours.

Escape from this wretched environment won't be easy. Slow, small elevators groan down from 17, 18, 19. Capacity is 16, but that's 16 jockeys. Athletes on the upper floors are doomed to endless waits or leg-knotting walks.

The memories come pounding back. The Olympic Village in Munich, building 31, the bullet-shattered door, the blood stain on the sidewalk that would not be scrubbed away.

The wind swirls about us on the roof. It is thick and damp with the threat of rain. I pray for Bob Ranson's vigilance and for the soldier who walks that solitary path six feet from the fence, and for the athletes who will be living in those joyless cells.

...and the winner is Russia (says Russia)

MOSCOW (AP) — A top Soviet sports official predicted today that his country will again walk off with the most medals in the Olympic Games.

"There is every reason to believe that Soviet athletes will win in the unofficial team qualification at the Montreal Olympics."

He pointed out that the Soviets set a record in Munich in 1972 by winning 50 gold medals.

He predicted that the United States and East Germany will give Soviet athletes the greatest challenge. He said the Soviets are pinning their hopes on those sports in which his country has consistently done well: wrestling, gymnastics, weightlifting, shooting, fencing, canoe and kayak races, modern pentathlon and team sports.

Hunt grabs early Grand Prix pole

LE CASTELLET, France (AP) — Ferrari's domination of Formula One racing faces its first clear challenge of the season in the French Grand Prix Sunday.

Britain's James Hunt, returning to top form in the Marlboro McLaren, grabbed the provisional pole position in the opening qualifying sessions Friday from Ferrari and world champion Niki Lauda of Austria.

The six-wheel Tyrrell of France's Patrick Depailler pushed Lauda's Swiss teammate, Clay Regazzoni, into fourth spot. The top six for the day were completed by cars remarkably improved since the early season races — Brazil's Carlos Pace in the Alfa-Romeo engined Brabham and Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., in the JPS-Lotus.

The Ferrari drivers may have been slightly disconcerted when their morning practice times were disallowed as front brake cooling ducts were ruled illegal and had to be hastily changed. They will have a chance to try for an Italian-red front row in the final qualifying session today.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Davis Cup postpones draw

WIMBLEDON, England — The Davis Cup ruling committee, in disarray after the resignation of the United States and the withdrawal of Britain and France from the 1977 tennis competition, has postponed the draw for next year's tournament.

The draw was scheduled to be made today at the All-England Lawn Tennis Club but will not be held until July 29 at headquarters of the International Lawn Tennis Federation in London.

It was believed that other nations might be rethinking their future status with the Davis Cup in its present form, and there was no certainty all nations which had originally sent in their entries were sure they wanted to play.

U.S. has 'pat' win formula

HAMILTON, Ont. — Pat Roberts and Pat Head scored 14 points each as the United States women's basketball team remained undefeated in the pre-Olympic tournament with an 89-73 victory over Cuba.

The top two teams in the tournament earn Olympic berths and Poland and Bulgaria share the No. 2 position after the Poles scored an 83-76 victory Friday.

Suddenly, Ozark is brilliant

"I haven't changed. I'm like I've always been," the Philadelphia Phillies' manager replied as the two met before the Pirates and Phils kicked off a four-game weekend series.

Ozark, a former Dodger third base coach, may be the same but his team isn't. Philadelphia has been the major leagues' hottest team all season and entered the Pirate series with a nine-game lead in the Eastern Division.

Though on top now, Ozark has not always been popular. His skills as a manager have been frequently questioned by fans and the media, he was severely criticized last season when he told a writer he didn't realize his team had been eliminated from the division title race the night it happened, and earlier this season he nearly came to blows with a writer in the Philadelphia clubhouse.

But Ozark maintains that he's still the same.

"I haven't changed in my social life, I haven't changed in my feelings toward people and I don't want to change regardless if we win this thing or not."

BRIEFLY: Holy Spirit High of Absecon, N.J., the United States' schoolboy rowing champions, stroked their way into the semifinal of the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup Friday. They defeated England's Hampton School by two lengths and face Tabor Academy of Massachusetts today. . .Five Americans scored victories in the U.S.-USSR junior meet in Russia: Michael Kee in the 100 meters (10.0), Tony Lee Darden in the 400 (46.8), William Martin in the 800 (1:51.4), long jumper Larry Doubly (24-8) and Allene Parker in the women's 100 (11.5). . .Approximately 30,000 last-minute visitors to the Olympic Games expected to arrive without reservations will be able to find accommodations through 15 special information booths at Quebec entry points, the Quebec Lodging Bureau said Friday. . .More than 1,000 athletes have moved into the Olympic Village and although they have voiced some complaint concerning their accommodations, the prevailing attitude is one of confusion rather than discontent. There has been little complaint about the food, but conditions are crowded and lacking in privacy. Furthermore, the Village handbook is printed in only two languages — French and English. . .Norwegian King Olav V was denied a handsome 73rd birthday gift when he placed third behind the Australian yacht Arunga and the American Sundance during the sixth day of the world championship yachting races in Hankoe, Norway.

Cal McLish: $150 a day...once a month

By DICK YOUNG
Knight News Service

NEW YORK — I'm listening to Cal McLish in the Brewer dugout the other day, and I'm thinking how funny it is that we older guys brag about our early deprivations. It's one thing to say that today's athletes are spoiled by the big buck—the quick buck, which they are, a good many of them—but it's another thing to wear poverty on your sleeve, like some badge of honor, to brag about having been cheated.

"I signed my first contract with the Dodger organization," coach McLish was saying, so that Danny Frisella could hear it, and Don Money, and the other beneficiaries of our affluent society. "It was a minor league contract, because I wasn't supposed to make the Dodgers, but it was a war year, and there I was, pitching in the bigs at age 18.

"I relieved a few games and then I remember Leo Durocher sending Cholly Dressen over to tell me I was gonna start."

The way Dressen broke the news to the kid was this!

"I can't," said McLish.

"You can't what?" said Dressen, startled.

"What! You got paid yesterday, didn't you?"

"Yeah, but I paid my hotel bill with it."

"Where you stayin'?" said Dressen.

"At the St. George with the other guys," said McLish.

"How much you makin'?"

"Not much!" screamed Dressen.

"Hundred-fifty," whispered McLish.

McLish laughs at the 1944 memory, laughs with a certain pride. Dressen, he says, went to the Dodger manager with the story, and Durocher went up to the office to see Branch Rickey.

"Do you know you have a pitcher on this ball club who I'm starting, and he's making one hundred fifty dollars a month?" Leo said.

"What's his name?" said Rickey, playing it blank.

"McLish."

"Well, he's only 18. Suppose we make it five hundred," said Rickey.

Before the year was out, Cal McLish found himself in the Army. "I learned that $150 was pretty good," he said in the Brewer dugout. "The Army paid me $52 a month!"

I suppose if there's a moral there it's that the players started their union not much later.

NEWS ITEM: Cash Gifts From Colleges, Says Schoolboy.

We all know, or suspect, the improper use of gifts, cash and otherwise, to build collegiate powerhouses in sports. The NCAA tries to police it, finds an occasional violation, slaps an occasional wrist, and goes on to the next violation. Obviously, the punishments are not sufficiently severe, or why would the violations continue so prevalent? Why would coaches and universities, these institutions which devote courses to ethics, continue to take chances by bribing high school kids to come with them?

One thing struck me about this latest case: The player involved is as ethically inconsistent as the pedagogues who are offending his sense of morality. The youth is screaming at the top of his lungs that something should be done to stop this evil, but he refuses to finger the culprits who lined his pockets with the filthy lucre.

COMMENTARY

"Young athletes are being treated like animals at an auction," agonizes Karlton Hilton, a much-coveted basketballer from Norfolk High. "I had always heard this sort of thing, but I didn't believe it till I saw the money. It should be stopped."

He said that in one breath. In the next breath, young Hilton said: "I'm not going to give any names."

How uninvolved the outraged can become. If he truly wants it stopped, let him supply names and amounts and cite instances. Let him help the NCAA put a stop to the tawdy commercialism he so deplores.

Until he does, there is something that rings not quite true about young Karlton Hilton, just as something else he says:

"The money usually would be slipped under the door of the motel where I was staying. I'd just pick it up off the floor and put it in my pocket. There wouldn't be any name on the money or identification. You just can't go to the hotel clerk and ask them to page somebody asking if anyone lost an envelope with $150 in it, can you?"

No, but you know what school invited you, and put you up at that motel, and you can give them back the money, and then you can tell the NCAA who did it.

If you haven't spent the money by then, you can.

Hawaii gets reprimand by NCAA board

KANSAS CITY (AP)— The University of Hawaii has been reprimanded and censured for violation of National Collegiate Athletic Association rules, the NCAA Committee on Infractions announced Friday.

The action resulted primarily from involvement of some members of the school's basketball squad in a television commercial for a Honolulu automobile dealer. Another factor, the NCAA said, was the university's failure to enforce NCAA rules, permitting four players to compete in one game while they were ineligible.

The NCAA said it also found that two basketball squad members received expenses during a team trip not permitted by NCAA regulations.

Sprinters vie in Hollypark Express today

Shirley's Champion, back in the form which earned him three Hollywood Park stakes victories two years ago, will face a field of six smokin' sprinters today in the $32,850 Hollywood Express.

The 5½ furlong dash kicks off a three-day Bicentennial racing card at Hollywood Park, a schedule that features the $81,950 American Handicap on Sunday afternoon and the $50,000 Cortez Handicap in a special Monday racing program.

Joining Shirley's Champion in today's featured eighth race will be some of the fastest thoroughbred steeds in the West—False Prophet, Oriental Magic, Sporting Goods, If You Prefer, Cherry River and Sawtooth.

A victory will be worth $19,350 to the winning owner and Shirley's Champion would like nothing better than to equal his performance of 1974 when he won the race in track record-equalling time of 1:02 1/5.

Given a rest by trainer Bobby King late last summer, Shirley's Champion made his '76 debut five weeks ago at Golden Gate Fields in the five-furlong grassy All-American Handicap.

ON SUNDAY, Ancient Title, one of the most popular Western campaigners since Native Diver, will try again to win his first grass race in the American Handicap.

Three of Ancient Title's challengers hail from the powerful stable of Charlie Whittingham—Causasus, King Pellinore and Riot in Paris.

With six starters, the race will gross $81,950, of which $48,200 will go to the winner.

TULSEA, with Francisco Mena aboard, held off a late charge by Minnesota Gus Friday to win the $12,000 Rincon Purse. Tulsea carried 120 pounds in the event for 2-year-old colts and geldings, and returned $8.20, $3.20 and $3 after holding off Minnesota Gus by three-quarters of a length.

Expect 900,000 at tracks

Holiday races draw crowds

Associated Press

More than 900,000 persons are expected to turn out for the three-day holiday activities at horse race tracks across the nation this Bicentennial weekend.

If the similar three-day Memorial Day weekend is a reliable past performance, they'll wager in the neighborhood of $90 million at the flats and the trots.

The $111,000 Cornhusker Handicap at Ak-Sar-Ben highlights the thoroughbred card Saturday. On Sunday, the $100,000 American Derby at Arlington is the headliner. To climax the big weekend, Forego, the two-time Horse of The Year, goes in the $100,000 Suburban Handicap at Aqueduct on Monday.

Master Derby, beaten only a neck by Forego in the Met Mile at Belmont May 31, is favored in the Cornhusker. The 4-year-old son of Dust Commander is top weighted at 125 pounds in the 1⅛-mile stake that drew a field of nine. The others entered include Neilbueh and Bold Trap, each assigned 119 pounds, Sharp Gary, Dragset, Fiftieth Star, Methdioxya and the Jack Van Berg entry of Pondelli and Shiney Sun.

Other stakes on Sunday, in addition to the American Derby, are the $75,000 American Handicap at Hollywood Park, the $40,000 Grey Flight Handicap at Aqueduct, the $30,000 Caesar Rodney at Delaware, the $20,000 Bicentennial at Suffolk and the $15,000 Independence Day Handicap at Longacres.

Forego will lug 134 pounds in the second leg of the Handicap Triple Crown, the Suburban, on Monday. Other stakes that day include the Juvenile at Ak-Sar-Ben, the Monmouth Oaks, the Stars and Stripes Handicap at Arlington, the Cortez Handicap at Hollywood, the Americana Handicap at Caaalder, the Fort McHenry Handicap at Pimlico, the Independence Handicap at Keystone, the Mayflower at Suffolk, the Parlo at Delaware and the Bicentennial Pageant on the night card at Atlantic City.

AQUEDUCT— Pantomime closed with a rush along the rail and won the $20,000 Channelette Purse Friday. The 4-year-old, ridden by Jorge Velasquez, carried co-top weight of 117 pounds over six furlongs in 1:10 2/5 to score by a neck over Hooray Hooray. Video Babe was third. An outsider in the betting with the crowd of 18,195, Pantomime returned $13.80, $6 and $3.40. Hooray Hooray paid $4.60 and $3.40, and third place Video Babe returned $3.

PIMLICO— Shaneoruski, a 17-1 longshot, won the feature race Friday by a length over Radio Commercial. The winner took the early lead and held on for a 1:11 4/5 score in the six-furlong dash. He paid $36.80, $19.40 and $5.40.

MOMOUTH PARK— Royal Fleece posted his first grass triumph in scoring by a half-length over Family Doctor in the feature race. He paid $9.60, $4.60 and $1 after covering the 1 1/16 miles in 1:45 1/5 under 112 pounds.

ARLINGTON PARK— Miss Cigarette set a fast pace from the start to win the $22,600 La Petite Stakes by five lengths over Fancy Gambler and Don't Cry Barbi in the field of 11 two-year-old fillies. The winner paid $4.20, $3.20 and $2.40.

SUFFOLK DOWNS— Smiling Faces won Friday's featured eighth race, covering the six furlongs in 1:11 4/5 and paying $8.60, $3.80 and $2.60.

KEYSTONE— Miss Gallant Dae scored a three-length triumph in a six-furlong feature Friday and paid $3.80, $2.40 and $2.10.

MAHERAS broke cleanly to get a clear lead on to the main track with little need of urging, went to the middle of the track in the better footing, responded after entering the stretch and held. RAISE TIP T, in the middle of the track, had a mild bid through midstretch and made headway to the finish. ALBERT H B broke alertly, dropped off pace and hung in the drive.

Scratched—Neat Claim.

TULSEA broke alertly to be close to the leaders from the outside into the far turn, rallied steadily through mid stretch to move clear then was all out while drifting in the final strides to hold over MINNESOTA GUS. The latter needed time to find his full stride, rallied from the outside to finish fastest. I'M A ZIPPER took the lead from PALOPODIUM soon after the start, responded in the drive but was not good enough. VIBRANT GLOW used the rail and hung. POSITIVENESS fell back steadily after the break and raced on the rail through the stretch. PALOPODIUM was urged at the break to hold a slim edge and faltered. RUN'N PRINCE had his head turned in the early running.

Scratches.

Good bet at Los Alamitos

Cooper boasts a 'full house'

The Independence Day is part of the Bicentennial celebration at the track with the $10,000 Double Bid scheduled to complete the weekend of quarterhorse racing on Monday night.

Cooper has vaulted to the top of the trainer standings at the current 82-night summer season and his status doesn't figure to suffer any in the 350-yard Independence Day dash, saddling favorites in each division of the race for 3-year-olds.

Vim And Vigor and Danny Cardoza continued their "love" affair that began in August at Ruidoso Downs in the rich All-American Derby Friday night when they become the fastest qualifiers for next week's $93,000 Vessels Maturity.

The richest running daughter of Go Man Go never trailed in the 440-yard dash as she posted a three-quarter length triumph over longshot Alachic and heavily-favored Little Blue Sheep.

Vim And Vigor turned in a blistering 21.61 timing—the fastest ever run in a maturity trial or finale, bettering the 21.7 record set by Charger Bar in 1972—while dashing to the second division victory.

Just one more little gift for The Cowboy

To Gene Autry, it seems reasonable enough that he asks only one more thing from his sashay through life before he rides off into the sunset one last time.

Admittedly, Autry is a man who has seen the elephant and heard the owl but he would ask this one favor of the fates — an American League pennant.

The Cowboy, as he is known on the boulevard, is not an undeserving soul. He is in favor of motherhood and the Salvation Army and against dope and prostitution and never walked past a tin cup in his life.

In his movies, Gene always put the boff on the bad guy and never kissed the heroine on screen least the young buckaroos got the notion that one thing leads to another.

BUD TUCKER

Neither has Autry been an undesirable owner. Since becoming proprietor of the Angels, he has always kept his infield scrapped and his outfield mowed and his seats dusted.

The man at the gate never fails to say, "Welcome to Anaheim Stadium" and the bartender in the stadium club pours an honest shot and the suggestion boxes are emptied regularly.

SO IT IS, then, you bestow your blessing when Autry asks this one little item. After all, there are far less deserving guys who have had several American League pennants while Autry has never had a single one, which is all he asks.

The closest The Cowboy ever came was in 1962. The Angels, with a strange collection of infants and codgers, were in first place on the fourth of July and finished a strong third.

As the ensuing years sped by, your hopes for Autry's pennant diminished steadily. The other day, they vanished.

What was all the more sorrowful, The Cowboy seemed to throw up his hands in despair.

Reluctantly, but in all honesty, Autry was required to admit that his present ball club is so bad it could not be helped by the acquisition of Vida Blue, Rollie Fingers, Joe Rudi and Gene Tenace.

As you know, Charles O. Finley, the Oakland philanthropist, aware of The Cowboy's yearning for a championship, offered the foregoing assortment to Autry. The package would have been delivered F.O.B. Anaheim for $4½ million, or thereabouts, a small price to pay for a pennant.

"You are my friend," Charlie told Gene, tearfully, "so I give you first shot."

"It would not put us into instant contention," was Autry's mournful reply, and you detect a tone of terrible finality.

FINLEY LATER proved he was not putting Autry on. He tried to unload Rudi and Fingers to the Boston Red Sox and Blue to the New York Yankees, but the commissioner halted the deal.

Clearly, the Red Sox and Yankees think they can win pennants.

The Red Sox won one last year and baseball applauded the fates for the kindness lavished on old Tom Yawkey, an aging man who is baseball to the core and had only one championship in 28 years and surely deserved one more before going to his other reward.

The Yankees used to win pennants all the time but have not championed the American League since 1964. However, there is no known sentimental reason why New York should ever win again.

Where the sentiment lies is obvious.

Gene Autry wants to have a pennant. Charlie Finley wants him to have a pennant. You and I want him to have a pennant. Indeed, the world wants The Cowboy to have a pennant.

Hopefully, we will all live to see it. But the lamentable fact is that nobody lives forever.

HONOLULU YACHT RACE LURES FIVE

Their destination: Diamond Head, Honolulu.

Seal Beach Yacht Club is in charge of starting the boats. The Outrigger Canoe Club, with the assistance of the Waikiki Yacht Club, will handle the finish off Diamond Head.

Entrants are hoping for strong, true winds—unlike the previous five sailings—with a chance of breaking the elapsed time record of eight days, 19½ hours set by Bob Hanel's 45-foot catamaran Seabird in 1974.

Hill ends slump

Zoeller fires 66 for lead

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Fuzzy Zoeller fired his second successive 66 for a 12-under-par 132 total and a one stroke lead on Dave Hill after Friday's round of the $130,000 Greater Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament.

Zoeller, tied with Hill and two strokes behind first-round leader Ken Still following Thursday's play, birdied four of his first six holes Friday en route to the third best 36-hole score on the tour this year. Ray Floyd had a 13-under 131 before winning the Masters and Roger Maltbie was 12-under at 130 in Phoenix.

Hill, who recently had considered leaving the tour for the year because of a slump, played his second consecutive round without a bogey for a 67.

Still, whose first day 64 was one stoke off the course record, slumped to a 73—137.

Zoeller, medalist in the 1974 PGA qualifing school, even surprised himself with his birdie parade. He had eight for the day and six birdies and an eagle on the par-five holes for the two rounds.

"There were so many birdies, I don't know what to think," the 24-year-old former Indiana amateur champion said. "It was almost birdie at will, I guess. This is unusual for me."

Zoeller, 24, earned only $7,318 as tour rookie last year and started this tournament ranked 100th on the 1976 earnings list at $11,779. He survived the cut in nine of 20 tournaments this year and his best finish was a ninth place tie at Tallahassee.

"I've had three decent rounds in a week this year, but a fourth has been a problem," he said. "I'm hitting the ball well again and putting well, so maybe this is the week.

"Last year I played in too many tournaments," he said. "I'm laying off a little more this year and its helped my mental attitude. I'm an easy-going guy and I don't think the pressure will bother me. I just go out, hit the ball and go find it again."

Hill, ranked 38th on this year's earnings list, used a new set of irons but said that couldn't explain his emergence from the slump.

"I've played so badly the last 17 months that I don't know what the difference is."

"I was just about ready to fold it up for the rest of the year because I was hitting 300 to 600 balls every other day and nothing was happening. I was just awful so I haven't been practicing at all for the last three weeks."

New X rays of pipeline loom

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., said Friday it may become necessary to dig up and X-ray virtually every underground weld on the trans-Alaska oil pipeline, delaying its completion.

Melcher said that a private auditing company hired by the Interior Department to sort out valid weld X rays from questionable or missing X rays on the pipeline has found the records so confused that it could not carry out the audit.

Melcher said he received "the bad news" from John E. Latz, technical assistant to the undersecretary of the Interior, and from John Kyl, assistant interior secretary for congressional and legislative affairs, in a hearing Friday of his Public Lands subcommittee.

Interior Department officials could not be reached for comment.

With the 800-mile pipeline nearly two-thirds complete, more than 245 miles of pipe have been installed underground, and more than 27 miles of pipe have been laid beneath river crossings.

Melcher said the pipe is welded every 60 to 80 feet.

Unless Alyeska, the oil consortium building the pipeline, can "pull some rabbit out of the hat to prove it has X rays properly identified," said Melcher, it may be forced to re-X-ray all of the roughly 18,000 underground welds, and the above-ground welds as well, on another 200 miles of installed pipe.

Above-ground welds, comparatively accessible, would offer few problems, Melcher said, but it would be necessary to dig down to each underground weld to X-ray it.

"It's a sad day," Melcher said after hearing interior's testimony, "because this jeopardizes the schedule of the pipeline."

The problems of welds on the pipeline first emerged last August when Alyeska found discrepancies between the findings of the quality control agents of Bechtel Corp., the major contractors, and the reports of a subcontractor hired to X-ray the welds before the pipe was installed.

Interior Undersecretary Kent Frizzell said it appeared that X rays of some welds were duplicated and falsely used to represent inspections of other welds.

Alyeska checked its records and placed some 3,000 out of 31,000 welds on a suspect list.

Melcher said the auditing firm of Arthur Anderson Associates was hired to determine which welds were properly X rayed and certified and which were not.

Melcher said he would hold further hearings later this month to find out who was responsible for checking the quality of pipeline construction.

The Interior Department and Alyeska have been looking into the possibility of checking underground welds from inside the pipe, with a new technique called "acoustical holography," which would avoid digging down to the outside of the pipe.

But Melcher said he doubted that Interior could legally accept such a substitute for X ray, which is specifically required in the department's stipulations for pipeline construction.

Action seen on Teamsters' fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government appears ready to take whatever action is necessary to clean up a Teamsters Union pension fund, ranking members of the Senate Labor Committee said Friday.

Chairman Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., also said the federal probe does not appear to have been compromised by Labor Secretary W. J. Usery's recent public praise of Teamsters officers.

However, they both called Usery's comments unwise.

Another member of the panel, Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H., said Usery's comments already had tainted the investigation. He called for Usery to "give serious consideration to stepping aside as secretary of labor."

Durkin also urged formation of a select Senate panel similar to the former Senate Watergate committee to probe the scandal-plagued union.

The senators commented after a closed-door briefing on the progress of a joint Justice-Labor Department investigation into the union's $1.4-billion Central States Pension Fund. That probe is focusing on allegations that organized-crime figures have benefitted from loans made by the fund.

"I was left with the solid feeling that the investigation is proceeding efficiently, effectively, with force and vigor," Williams said.

Both he and Javits said they are convinced the government will prosecute any wrongdoers in the case and act firmly to protect the stake of rank-and-file Teamsters members in the fund — even if it means the government itself has to step in and run the program.

"The remedy will be tailored to the situation," Williams said.

They also said the Internal Revenue Service, which recently revoked the tax-exempt status of the fund, apparently without checking first with Labor Department officials, has now agreed to cooperate more fully with the two other agencies in the probe.

Javits, the committee's ranking Republican, said a recent federal law requires the IRS to share its tax files with the Labor Department in all matters involving pension funds.

"We have called that to the attention of all concerned," Javits said. "They have heard us loud and clear."

Rickover loses claims battle— and his voice

By JOHN W. FINNEY
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON—William P. Clements Jr., the millionaire Texas oil driller who became deputy secretary of defense, had a showdown this week across a Pentagon coffee table with Hyman G. Rickover, the outspoken, politically powerful admiral. Clements apparently won.

As described by Clements, he believes he succeeded in silencing Rickover in his criticism of the Navy's shipbuilders; in particular the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., which builds most of the admiral's nuclear-powered warships.

IF SO, Clements will have succeeded where all his predecessors have failed in taming the admiral, 76, who has relied upon his influential congressional support to give him a sort of immunity in challenging and sometimes defying the policies of his civilian superiors in the Pentagon.

A personal test of political power had developed between the two men, both of whom pride themselves on their toughness and independence.

In congressional testimony, Rickover had openly opposed Clements' proposal for settling some $1.8 billion in claims against the Navy by rewriting the shipbuilders' contracts to give them additional cost escalation. Never one to mince words, the admiral suggested the proposal could turn into "one of the biggest ripoffs in the history of the United States."

On Tuesday, Clements called Rickover into his Pentagon office and sat him down at one end of a down-filled sofa. On the other end was Adm. James L. Holloway III, the Chief of Naval Operations. Across the coffee table in his captain's chair was Clements.

CLEMENTS' appeal was to Rickover's vanity and his place in history. He suggested the admiral wanted to go down in history as the father of the nuclear Navy and not as the man who blocked the expansion of the Navy.

But, he continued, the admiral was going to gain the latter reputation if the Navy was not able to work out its problems with the shipbuilders, who, in their annoyance over the unsettled claims, are threatening not to build Navy ships.

The advice was accompanied by an order to the admiral to step aside and keep his silence as the Navy attempted to work out its claims problems with the Virginia company, a subsidiary of Tenneco Inc.

THE COMPANY has filed claims totaling $894 million — all on nuclear-powered ships and submarines built under Rickover's supervision — and has threatened to stop work on a fifth nuclear-powered aircraft carrier under construction, unless there is a prompt and reasonable settlement of its claims. In congressional testimony last month, the admiral protested that the company's claims were "inflated," terming many of them "absurd."

"I think Rickover realizes his usefulness in settling these claims has reached point zero," Clements said in an interview Friday night. "I think it is going to work out — after considerable persuasion, to put it politely."

Rickover, in an uncharacteristically subdued voice, said he did not wish to comment on Clements' statements that he had agreed to remove himself from the claims dispute.

EXCLUSIVE

"I don't want to get into an argument," he said in a telephone interview.

TO A DEGREE, Rickover has prevailed with his contention that, rather than rewriting the contracts, the shipbuilders should be held to their contracts and required to settle their claims through the normal claims settlement procedures of the Navy.

Newport News, along with Litton Industries, last month rejected the contractual relief proposed by Clements as inadequate. That forced the claims back into the settlement procedures of the Navy, which the shipbuilders have protested are too cumbersome and time-consuming.

Clements said he had come to the conclusion that, if the claims procedures were to work, it was necessary to "remove the two parties that have been providing most of the acrimony" — namely Rickover and John P. Diesel, president of Newport News.

Diesel was on vacation and not available for comment.

As a sequel to the Tuesday showdown, the Navy on Friday night announced the creation of a special three-man board with an independent mandate to reach an accelerated settlement of the claims by Newport News.

Soybean sale to Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sale of 800,000 metric tons of U. S. soybeans to the Soviet Union by an American firm during the 1976-77 marketing year was announced Friday by the Department of Agriculture.

The department declined to name the American company involved in the sale.

The sale will total more than $200 million, a department spokesman said. He said it will amount to 29 million bushels, and since a soybean carryover of 100 million bushels from past crops is anticipated the United States "can handle the sale easily, and more."

Officials said the sale was part of a larger Soviet purchase totaling one million metric tons, and the U.S. share may be slightly more or less than 800,000 tons. A metric tons equals 2,205 pounds.

Pugil-stick case 'crumbling'

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Marine Corps dropped charges of aggravated assault and negligent homicide Friday against one of the drill sergeants blamed for the death of Pvt. Lynn McClure.

A general court-martial scheduled for Sgt. Henry E. Aguilar was reduced to a special, with lesser penalties, and his attorney said the whole case may crumble.

If S/Sgt. Henry Wallraff is acquitted—as Sgt. Harold Bronson was on Monday—"I wouldn't be surprised if they drop all the charges," Capt. Charles Ryan said.

"The acquittal of Sgt. Bronson brought them very close to dropping against everybody but because of the pressures, wherever they are, they want to avoid the look of a whitewash," Ryan said. "The best case they had was against Bronson."

The three drill instructors were handling a special platoon to which misfits were assigned at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot when McClure, 20, was forced into an hour of pugil-stick combat for an hour last Dec. 6. He died unconscious March 13.

Aguilar earlier was charged with negligent homicide, three counts of violating a lawful general order and two of dereliction of duty as well as assault but now faces only two counts of violating orders and one of maltreatment.

A possible maximum penalty is now only six months in prison, forfeiture of pay and a bad conduct discharge.

If Aguilar had been tried by general court martial and convicted, he could have been sentenced to five years in prison.

The drill instructors' captain, Cecil V. Taylor of Orlando, Fla., has been charged with violating orders, dereliction of duty and assault, but no decision hs been announced about a trial. Two of his supervisors were given letters of reprimand.

Wallraff, 27, of St. Croix, Minn., faces a special courtmartial trial July 14 on charges of dereliction of duty and violating a general order in allowing the combat.

No trial date has been set for Aguilar, 23, from Hanford, Calif., who now faces only two charges of violating orders and one of maltreatment.

A "reassessment" of the case against Aguilar came after Bronson was acquitted of all charges including involuntary manslaughter and assault after a two-week general court martial before a board of five officers and three enlisted men.

Vietnams reunited, with Hanoi capital

By DENIS D. GRAY

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — North and South Vietnam were officially reunited Friday after more than 20 years of internal war. Hanoi was declared the capital. Radio Hanoi said leaders of the new Socialist Republic of Vietnam were elected by ballot.

The radio said an "explosion of applause" greeted the announcement in the 492-member National Assembly.

The former North Vietnamese flag, anthem and emblem were approved as symbols of the country.

"A new page of Vietnamese history has been turned," the broadcast said. "At this moment, 8:30 a.m. (9:30 p.m. EDT Thursday) on July 2, 1976, the Vietnamese nation is officially considered as a unified country from Cao Lang to Cao Mau."

Cao Lang is the northernmost point of what was formerly North Vietnam and Cau Mau is the southern peninsula of the former South Vietnam.

The formal reunification announcement was something of an anticlimax, since Hanoi and Saigon have described Vietnam as one during the past year. But the two halves maintained separate government machineries and leaders until Friday.

As many Western observers had anticipated, all but one high government office went to North Vietnamese leaders rather than to those who had fought in the South.

The exception was Nguyen Huu Tho, former president of the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam, who will be one of two vice presidents. The other will be Nguyen Luong Bang, North Vietnam's vice president since 1969.

Truong Chinh, a hardliner and reputedly pro-Chinese, will be chairman of the standing committee of the Assembly.

There was no initial indication that changes would occur in the highest ranks of Vietnam's Communist Party, the Lao Dong, where all major decisions are made and where real power lies.

Most Vietnam watchers say the top five men in the party's 11-man Politburo are First Secretary Le Duan, followed by Chinh, Dong, Southerner Phan Hung and Nguyen Vo Giap, the general who routed the French at Dien Bien Phu.

The top leadership is composed of aging veterans, most of them in their late 60s. Almost all helped found the Communist Party, fought the Japanese and the French and finally directed the struggle against the United States and the Saigon governments it backed during the last war.

Vietnam was divided by the 1954 Geneva agreement that followed the French defeat at Dien Bien Phu. The last Americans were withdrawn from the South on April 30, 1975, following the Communist victory.

Since then, the United States has refused to recognize either Vietnamese government and has vetoed their applications for membership in the United Nations.

F48—President Ton Duc Thang held the same position in North Vietnam since the death of Vietnam's revolutionary giant, Ho Chi Minh, in 1969. At 88, he is not considered a significant figure and is not a member of the all-powerful party Politburo.

His anti-French activities as a leader of student strikes forced him into exile. He returned to Vietnam in 1927 and enrolled in Uncle Ho's Revolutionary Youth League. Thang later spent 15 years in jail for complicity in murder and sedition. He was one of the more extremist members of North Vietnam's Communist Party.

Tass points out America's shortcomings on birthday

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass took a sour look Friday at America's Bicentennial Fourth of July.

The official Soviet news agency said the event is marred by seven million citizens out of work, inflation, street crime, drug abuse, racial tension and corruption in high places.

The Tass report said: "Owing to a number of objective factors and a fortunate concurrance of circumstances, the United States has grown into a big capitalist power with a highly developed economy, science and technology."

But it added, "The gap between America's aspirations and reality is still great and ... America is still very far from attaining the goals it set before itself 200 years ago." This view, it said, was expressed even by President Ford in a Bicentennial statement.

"Millions of Americans find no occasion to celebrate this year. There are over seven million jobless in the country, inflation is on the increase, prices are soaring while purchasing power is falling. There are also many social problems such as crime, drug addiction, alcoholism, strained racial relations and many others. Corruption is widespread in top political echelons.

"Bourgeois propaganda keeps harping on 'American liberties,' 'democracy' and 'equal opportunities.' The worth of these things was well demonstrated by the recent exposures of criminal activities by the CIA, FBI and other governmental services."

The Washington-datelined article, written by correspondent Nikolai Pakhomov, was carried on Tass' Russian language service, indicating that it was intended for Soviet readers.

Tass said U.S. official figures show 40 million Americans live in poverty, 12 million of them starving, and about 100 million are living on incomes much below the national average.

"The gap between the rich and the poor in America keeps widening," Tass said, citing a University of Michigan report.

Robbery-murder trial of 3 suspects delayed

The trial of three young Los Alamitos men on murder and robbery charges stemming from a holdup attack during which the victim died of a heart attack was postponed Friday until July 9.

The three were arrested April 14 in connection with the March 11 death of Nathaniel J. Hersperger, of Long Beach.

Hersperger collapsed and died in his East Seventh Street home while struggling with one of two intruders who tried to rob him at knifepoint.

The two men, apparently frightened by Hersperger's attack, fled in a waiting car driven by a third man.

Prosecutor Paul Marin alleged during the preliminary hearing for the three suspects that the bandits in the house were Gunnerson and King and that Pumroy was the driver of the car.

Cory names tax referees

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Edmund Casey of Santa Ana and Gary Proctor of Tustin Friday were named state inheritance tax referees by Controller Kenneth Cory.

Referees are appointed to four-year terms, and serve nder assignment from county probate courts in appraising estates to determine inheritance taxes due the state.

Dial for Dollars

Everybody's got things around they no longer need . . . and they'd like to sell. And the place to advertise those things is the I,P-T Classified Section. To prove the point, we've listed some recent Classified ads below. Next to them are listed the number of calls the people received — and the number of people who are still looking for similar items.

| RECENT ADS | NUMBER OF CALLS | PEOPLE STILL LOOKING |
| John Novak of Cerritos sold his Chevy camper with a weekend ad. | 14 | 13 |
| Peter D. Smith, Long Beach, was overwhelmed with the response he got with his ad for a color TV. | 80 | 79 |
| Mrs. Lee Smith, Long Beach, "didn't realize that everyone reads the classified" when she advertized her lawnmower for sale. | 20 | 19 |
| Mrs. Joe Schultz was very pleased with the results of her ad for a housekeeper. She found one the first day. | 29 | 28 |
| Larry Miller was "just real pleased" with the response he got on his ad for a Triumph motorcycle. | 15 | 14 |

Give you some ideas? We hope so. Because there just isn't a better place than the I,P-T Classified Section, with it's over 400 classifications, for reaching just the people that are looking for the goods or services you've got to offer. Give us a try

Younger hopes for executions

Ruling upholding death penalty hailed, assailed

ATTY. GEN. EVELLE YOUNGER

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger said he hoped the U.S. Supreme Court death penalty ruling Friday would quickly clear the way for executions of California's 58 death row inmates.

The state's top law enforcement official said at a San Francisco news conference that he thought the court's 7-2 vote, which ruled death for murder is not a cruel and unusual punishment as prohibited by the Constitution, upheld the 1972 California state death penalty statute adopted by a 2-1 vote of the people.

"I hope we can get down to where there is an orderly carrying out of executions in the near future," Younger said.

However, there was a great deal of uncertainty among legal experts about how the high court ruling affected California's death row population and the state's own death penalty law.

Because the U.S. high court ruling was not on a California case, it did not directly uphold or strike down the state death penalty law, which is based on state constitutional grounds.

That state law is being challenged by a pending case before the state Supreme Court, which once before, in 1972, ruled a California capital punishment law unconstitutional.

And in addition to its ruling upholding the death penalty, the U.S. Supreme Court struck down laws in two states that, like California's, make capital punishment mandatory for specific crimes.

At San Quentin, where the state's apple-green gas chamber is located, prison spokesman Bill Merkle said:

"We'll probably have to order supplies for it — sulfuric acid and cyanide."

The last execution in that chamber took place in April 1967 when inmate Aaron Mitchell died, and Edmund Brown Jr. was among the protesters standing outside San Quentin's gates.

Since becoming governor, Brown has said that although he personally opposes the death penalty, he will uphold the law. He added Friday he would consider each plea for clemency on its merits.

Legal experts said they did not expect the state Supreme Court to rule on the challenge to the state death penalty statute until the fall — delaying any executions until after that decision.

In the pending state case, Donald Bernard was convicted of killing a teen-age San Bernardino couple. The state court has accepted written arguments in the case. The court declined any comment Friday.

California has had a mandatory death penalty since 1974, when Prop. 17 went into effect requiring capital punishment for 11 specific crimes, including first-degree murder of an on-duty policeman.

U.S. kicks off Bicentennial

Associated Press

With pride in their past and hope for the future, Americans this weekend kicked off the nation's 200th birthday party — a multimillion-dollar Bicentennial extravaganza as diverse as the country's heritage.

Five Bicentennial wagon trains converged on Valley Forge, Pa., and a fleet of ships, led by 17 square-riggers, was en route from Newport, R.I., to New York City and "Operation Sail," a Sunday display of naval vessels unmatched in decades.

Much of the attention was focused on the East Coast cities that played a key part in the United States' early history — Boston, Philadelphia, New York and Washington.

But the spirit of independence and individuality was, perhaps, best displayed in the thousands of events — some sober, some silly — in towns and cities across the country starting Friday and running through Monday.

There was something for everyone: recreations of revolutionary events and dedication of a landing site for flying saucers. Sports and speeches. Parades and parties. Fireworks and frisbees. Organizers boasted of plans for the longest this, the largest that, or the first of something else.

The White House said more than 10,000 persons would be sworn in as naturalized U.S. citizens in special Bicentennial ceremonies in over a dozen cities on July 4. Some 7,000 persons are expected to take the oath in Miami alone.

The government estimated that federal expenditures so far for the Bicentennial have totaled $400 million, including $51.8 million to the American Revolutionary Bicentennial Commission.

A key event on July 4 will be the pealing of bells, starting at 2 p.m., supposed to be the exact moment the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia announced the Declaration of Independence. The Liberty Bell itself is too fragile to be struck, but members of the Pennsylvania Society will make do with a ring of the Centennial Bell.

Other bellringers across the country will follow suit. "Let every American resolve that this nation, under God, will meet the future with the same courage and dedication Americans showed the world two centuries ago," said President Ford in urging the bell-ringing.

There were some discordant notes: protests in several cities, labor troubles in Philadelphia and Detroit, smaller-than-expected crowds in some areas, worries about fatal accidents in New York.

But the over-all mood of the country as the year-long parade of Bicentennial events came to a July 4 climax was one of exuberance.

The Bicentennial wagon trains — some 2,000 persons in 200 covered wagons representing all 50 states — planned to make camp Saturday afternoon at Valley Forge, where George Washington wintered with his troops.

Ford, in one of six speeches scheduled for the five-day period that started Thursday, planned a Sunday visit to Valley Forge to sign a bill making the area a national park.

L.B. police feud over new chief

By MOLLY BURRELL
Staff Writer

Evidence of bitter dissension in the Long Beach Police Department over the recent appointment of outsider Carl Calkins as assistant chief surfaced Friday.

It focused on an apparent scapegoat—Deputy Chief Willis Platt.

Platt said the dissension is led by at least five officers who have tried to muster support to oppose the selection of a man outside the department as heir-apparent to the job now held by Chief Ralph Kortz, 65.

Calkins, whose appointment was announced June 14, is to assume duties Aug. 1. He is the former director of community safety for Carson. In 1974 he retired as captain after 20 years with the Los Angeles Police Department.

His selection ended a nationwide hunt for someone to fill the No. 2 spot. He was picked from a list of 184 which included six top officers on the Long Beach force.

The four finalists included Long Beach Capt. William F. Stovall; Walter Pudinski, former California Highway Patrol commissioner, and Inspector John Graham of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department.

THE five men spearheading the opposition to Calkins are Deputy Chief Robert Hill, Stovall, Lt. Doug Bostard, Sgt. Bill Barfield and patrolman Arnold Summers, Platt said.

Because he has refused to join in the opposition movement, Platt said Friday, he has become the target of a reprisal move designed to discredit him.

The reprisal move, he said focuses on an incident 2½ years ago during which Platt told a watch commander to invesigate a complaint from a downtown bar owner about police "rousting."

"I told the watch commander, Capt. Forrest Smith, to look into it and if it looked like a vice-squad roust to hold it until I could talk to the chief about it," Platt said.

Platt said he had called Smith after several complaints from the same owner that his bar, the Safari Room, 120 Long Beach Blvd., had been singled out for harassment. Platt said he had told the man to call him the next time officers appeared to be harassing him.

"We can't have that. No one should be rousted in this or any town," Platt said Friday. "I discussed the matter with then-Chief William Mooney two days after the incident and the matter was subsequently dropped."

At the time, Platt said, someone had interpreted his action as a "fix" or protection in return for a payoff. Thus he had made every effort to discuss it fully with the chief and volunteered to take a lie

Transcript reveals Mayer fear

By JOANNE NORRIS
Staff Writer

Former Long Beach Planning Director Ernest Mayer Jr. backed out of a plan to help a prominent Long Beach attorney with a development in Carson because he feared investigations of corruption into Long Beach city government, according to a grand jury transcript released Friday.

Part of the transcript, a taped conversation between Mayer and Long Beach architect James Coppedge, said Mayer stepped out of the deal with attorney George Hart because he decided it "wasn't worth it."

Mayer said in the conversation that he had turned the project over to former Huntington Beach Planning Director Kenneth A. Reynolds.

The transcript in which the taped conversation was entered was taken from proceedings before the Los Angeles County grand jury last May.

Mayer was indicted by the jury June 2 on two counts of bribery stemming from his alleged acceptance of more than $50,000 in bribes from Coppedge and another Long Beach architect, Claflin A. Ballance.

According to another section of the transcript, Coppedge and Ballance testified that Mayer had what amounted to "dictatorial" powers over the Long Beach Planning Commission, which "rubber-stamped" his recommendations.

"If you wished to have a project developed in Long Beach, you had to have his approval or you (got) no further," Coppedge told the jury.

". . . The planning director had assumed over the years a posture where his recommendations were couched virtually as a fiat to the commission," Coppedge said.

The Carson land development project was discussed in a tape recording made Jan. 23, 1976.

Mayer—unaware that he was being taped—discussed the development with Coppedge and said he had been drawn into involvement in the project by attorney Hart.

Copies of feasibility studies on the project, 70 acres south of the frontage road for the Artesia Freeway between Main Street and Avalon Boulevard, were found in Mayer's apartment shortly after his arrest.

The Carson City Council recently rejected an appeal on a zone change for the land which is controlled by Union Bank and Title Insurance and Trust Co. as trustees of an estate.

In the taped conversation, Mayer describes it as a "fine piece of property" and says Hart "led me to it and wanted me to do the work on (it) but after thinking about it, the investigations (probes of alleged civic corruption in Long Beach city government) that were a problem at the time and everything I decided that there

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A powerful bomb ripped through the lunchtime crowd in a dining hall for federal antiguerrilla police Friday, killing 18 persons and injuring 66, the army reported.

A spokesman said 11 of the injured were in grave condition.

A source said authorities had difficulty counting the dead and injured because the bomb had literally shredded bodies. Another said the blast caused the dining hall ceiling to cave in.

"DEBRIS IS STILL being removed" from the heavily damaged building, an army communique stated. More than 100 policemen were estimated to have been in the hall at the time.

The explosion, in a seven-story downtown building, occurred several hours after troops and police reported killing 17 guerrillas in a clash around Argentina's biggest army base.

In another development in Argentina's continuing political troubles, 27 Chilean exiles took refuge at the Canadian embassy in Buenos Aires, an official there said Friday. He said the refugees felt threatened in Argentina.

The government said three soldiers were wounded in the predawn battle with guerrillas outside the Campo de Mayo army base, 20 miles north of Buenos Aires.

The army said guerrillas opened fire and hurled grenades at a military truck traveling near a camp arsenal. The soldiers, with police support, returned the fire, killing 12 attackers, then pursued those fleeing and killed five more, the army said.

The deaths raised to 37 the number of guerrillas reported killed in three days of fighting between leftist insurgents and the forces of Argentina's military government.

Ford vetoes bill delaying base closures

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford vetoed a $3.3 billion military construction bill Friday, saying he objected to a provision that gives Congress a review of military base closings. It was Ford's 50th veto.

The President told Congress the bill is generally acceptable in providing a comprehensive construction program for fiscal year 1977. "One provision, however, is highly objectionable," he said.

He said the objectionable section "would prohibit certain base closures or the reduction of civilian personnel at certain military installations, unless the proposed action is reported to Congress and a period of nine months elapses, during which time the military department concerned would be required to identify the full range of environmental impacts of the proposed action."

The Pentagon had recommended that Ford veto the bill because it said it would be forced to delay shutdowns or cutbacks at some 16 military bases for at least a year. It would delay the elimination of 10,000 military and civilian positions and prevent the military from saving about $150 million in the year.

Ford also said the provision was not sound government policy because it would substitute an arbitrary time limit and set of requirements for the current procedures under which base closures and reductions are effected.

He said the current procedures comply with the national environmental policy act and adequately take into account all other relevant considerations, and afford extensive opportunity for public and congressional involvement.

"By imposing unnecessary delays in base closures and reductions the bill's requirements would generate a budgetary drain on the defense dollar which should be used to strengthen our military capabilities," he added.

The President also said the section "raises serious questions by its attempt to limit my powers over military bases. The President must be able, if the need arises, to change or reduce the mission at any military installation if and when that becomes necessary."

He added that the bill provides only a limited waiver of the requirements in case of military emergency or national security.

The Pentagon said the bases subject to delayed closure or reduction under the bill were:

The Army's Jefferson Proving Ground in Indiana, Ft. Devens, Mass., Ft. Hamilton-Totten, N.Y., Ft. Indiantown Gap, Pa., the Army Aviation Maintenance activity at the New Cumberland, Pa., depot, the Army Aviation Research and Development Command, an Army troop support and aviation material readiness command, both in St. Louis; and Ft. Buchanan, Puerto Rico.

Also, the Key West, Fla., Naval Air Station, the Navy Resale System Office, Brooklyn, N.Y., the Naval Ship Repair Facility on Guam, the Defense Clothing Factory in Philadelphia, Craig Air Force Base, Ala., Loring Air Force Base, Maine, Webb Air Force Base, Tex., and Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base, Mo.

Boston bus foes claim bombings

Combined News Services

BOSTON — A telephone caller claiming to represent a militant antibusing group said Friday that his organization was responsible for two of three predawn bombings in the Boston area. No one was injured in the blasts, which occurred over a three-hour period. An airliner and a National Guard truck were destroyed, and one of the nation's oldest working courthouses was heavily damaged. The telephone caller, who said he was a member of the South Boston Defense League, also threatened to disrupt a Bicentennial ship parade into Boston Harbor on July 10. "We've been afraid of this," the FBI agent said. "There have been rumors for months that something like this could occur. The Bicentennial weekend is very important to this country. Any group that's trying to get its message across knows that this is the time when they'll get attention."

Uranium export approved

WASHINGTON — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission announced Friday its approval of an initial shipment of low-enriched uranium for a nuclear reactor site in India, but it held open the issue of continued exports. U.S. export of enriched uranium has been opposed by three U.S. citizen groups, concerned that India, which has developed an atomic bomb, is building a reprocessing facility at Tarapur which could upgrade fuel-level uranium toward concentrations suitable for bombs. The Sierra Club, the Union of Concerned Scientists, the Natural Resources Defense Council and the Justice Department all agreed not to object to the approval of an initial uranium shipment provided the NRC did not treat it as a precedent influencing its later decisions.

Bicentennial affront

PHILADELPHIA — The City of Brotherly Love has run afoul of the Chinese-American community here by trying to dress up Chinatown for the Bicentennial. First of all, the Chinese Benevolent Association, comprised of leaders of various regional, family and business associations in Chinatown, says it was not consulted about the "dolling up." Then the city painted intersections elsewhere in center city red, white and blue. But, in Chinatown, the intersections were painted yellow and green. Finally, the city hung banners on poles throughout Chinatown, but the banners are the same as those used by the Chinese to signify the death of an elderly member of the family. These affronts to the Chinese in Philadelphia come on the heels of a flap over assignment of the Philadelphia Dragon Club group to the "foreign nations" section of the July 4 parade.

Blue flu ends, 22 fired

DETROIT — The two-day Detroit police blue flu strike ended Friday, but at least 22 officers were fired for faking illness to protest department policies. Another undetermined number of officers face loss of pay if they cannot substantiate the ailments they claimed kept them from reporting for duty Wednesday and Thursday. The department said absenteeism Friday was below normal and police were patrolling city streets in the same force they did before the work stoppage The blue flu broke out in protest over police layoffs, a federal court order protecting the jobs of women officers, the department's affirmative action program to hire and promote members of minority groups, and the recent suspension of officers accused of living outside the city in violation of city laws.

Lebanese agree to new cease-fire

CAIRO — All parties in the Lebanese civil war have agreed to a cease-fire starting Friday night, the Middle East News Agency reported from Damascus. It said Arab League Secretary-General Mahmoud Riad declared the cease-fire, the 49th since the civil wa began in April 1975, would go into effect everywhere in Lebanon simultaneously. But at 1 a.m., there was no indication that the it had taken hold, although radios controlled by both sides repeated announcement of the truce throughout the night. Earlier in the day, a Palestinian relief column punched down from the mountains to ease pressure on crumbling defenses of a Palestinian refugee camp besieged by rightist Christians in a major battle. The surprise Palestinian attack from the rear slowed the 11-day-old assault on the Tal Zaatar camp, although 6,000 rightist soldiers continued to stage repreated assaults.

Arab protester slain

TEL AVIV — Israeli troops opened fire on Palestinian protesters Friday in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, killing one person and wounding about 30, Arab sources said. The slain youth was the 11th Palestininan killed this year by security forces in demonstrations against Israeli rule on the West Bank. The latest protest was prompted by a new Israeli tax. A journalist in the West Bank town of Nablus reported troops fired on hundreds of demonstrators swarming through the Christian sector of the city.

Hijack negotiations

KAMPALA, Uganda — Diplomats negotiated with pro-Palestine hijackers Friday on the fate of 110 hostage passengers and crewmen of an Air France plane held since Monday at Uganda's Entebe airport. Most of those held are Israelis. The hijackers, who released 148 hostages on Wednesday and Thursday, have demanded freedom by 7 a.m. Sunday for 40 extremists imprisoned in Israel and 13 others held in West Germany, Switzerland and Kenya. No developments were reported in the long-distance negotiations reaching back to Paris and Tel Aviv.

Soviet factory deal

PARIS — A French firm signed a contract Friday with the Soviet Union to build what it said will be the biggest aluminum plant in the world. The plant will go up on the shores of the Black Sea at a cost of $255 million and produce 1 million tons of aluminum a year, the firm of Pechiney Ugine Kuhlmann said. Production is to begin in 1979. The world's largest aluminum plant now is in Canada.

Sudan coup crushed

CAIRO — The Sudanese government said Friday it had crushed a daylong military rebellion against President Jaafar el-Numairi that involved heavy fighting in the streets of Khartoum, the Middle East News Agency reported. The government in Khartoum issued a statement saying, "The situation is entirely under the control of Sudanese security forces."

Large utility bill settled for small change

Combined News Services

When Betty Johnson learned that her electric bill was $89.43, she decided to protest. So she marched to a bank and then to city hall and then paid her bill — in dimes, nickels and pennies.

"I think everybody in city hall paraded down to see who the nut was with all the change," Mrs. Johnson said Friday in Homestead, Fla., after the incident at Homestead Utilities, the municipal power service.

She used a beach bag to carry the rolls of change. "The change was so heavy it ripped the beach bag," she said. "It weighed so much I had to take a pill for my heart."

"Oh, my God," said city cashier Mercedes Sepulveda. "I couldn't believe what my eyes were seeing...It took an hour and a half to count it all. I just couldn't understand it. All that money and there wasn't one quarter — not even one."

Goldwyn

Frances Howard Goldwyn, onetime actress and high-fashion model who was married to the late Samuel Goldwyn for 49 years, has died, a family spokesman said Friday in Los Angeles.

Funeral services are pending at Forest Lawn in Glendale.

Before Goldwyn died two years ago at age 91, he once described his wife as "the best man I've got on my staff." In Goldwyn's later years, his wife effectively ran his motion picture enterprises.

Mrs. Goldwyn gave up her own acting and modeling career when she married Goldwyn in 1925.

Her duties at the Goldwyn studios in the later days consisted mainly of supervising the frequent rentals of the old lot and the re-release of older Goldwyn movies — such as "Wuthering Heights," "The Best Years of Our Lives" and "Guys and Dolls."

Postponed

The NAACP board of directors voted Friday to postpone until September a decision on whether Roy Wilkins will be forced to retire Jan. 1.

But the 75-year-old executive director of the nation's oldest civil rights organization disagreed with both the reasoning behind the postponement and the postponement itself.

Wilkins, who for 22 years has headed the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, wants to remain on the job until the 1977 convention in St. Louis, his hometown.

Wilkins threw the annual convention into an uproar Thursday when he took the podium and announced that he did not, as the association previously announced, want to retire Jan. 1. He asked the delegates for their support in his efforts to remain on the job until next year.

Wilkins has been an employe of the NAACP for 44 years. His name has been synonomous for two decades with the organization that brought the school desegegation issue, as well as other equal rights questions, successfully before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Boatbuilder

Niklas Koltri, in Seattle on a cultural exchange visit, plans to build a 19-foot boat that looks like a Viking ship in two weeks, if celebrating doesn't interfere.

Kolti, 67, a master boatbuilder in his Faeroe Islands home in the north Atlantic, was asked to construct the wooden craft for permanent display in the predominantly Scandinavian community of Ballard, Wash.

"I'm having such a good time on this visit, it's going to be difficult to complete the boat by July 12 when we are scheduled to go home," he said. "If I don't get invited to too many celebrations, I'll make it."

Anonymous

An anonymous private buyer paid $1.8 million at an art auction in London Friday for a painting of the crucifixion by the 13th century Sienese artist Duccio di Buoninsegna.

The picture, sold by Mary Countess of Crawford, of Colinsburgh, Scotland, will probably go to the U.S., a spokeswoman for Christie's art auction house said.

But art experts said there is little doubt a major effort will be made to keep the picture in Britain. This has been done before with other works through legal curbs on the export of art masterpieces.

Libel

Henry Wynberg, a former boyfriend of actress Elizabeth Taylor, Friday filed a $4.5-million libel suit against the National Enquirer newspaper.

In a federal court suit in Los Angeles, Wynberg accused the tabloid of libel and slander in implying that he was using his relationship with Miss Taylor for financial gain.

Wynberg's suit seeks $1.5 million in general damages and $3 million in punitive damages. It claims the article has caused him to be "shunned and avoided."

Ebsen

Ebsen, 68, was undergoing tests to determine if the pains are caused by a mild attack of phlebitis, sprain or strain, said a spokesman for Quinn Martin Productions, makers of the television series.

Kesey

A federal judge in Portland, Ore., has ruled that novelist Ken Kesey, author of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," cannot sue the producers of the Academy Award-winning movie based on the book for fraud.

Judge Otto Skopil of U.S. District Court also ruled that Kesey, of Pleasant Hill, Ore., cannot sue for $100,000 for emotional distress caused by an alleged breach of contract.

The movie, based on Kesey's 1962 novel, won five Academy Awards, including one for the best picture. Kesey is suing for 5 per cent of the film's gross profits, $750,000 in exemplary and punitive damages, and $19,000 he says he is owed for writing a screenplay.

Movie

Universal Pictures said Friday in Los Angeles that it had acquired rights to "The Melvin Dummar Story," a film about a man named in a purported Howard Hughes will.

Art Linson, co-producer of the film, said it will be centered on the lives of Dummar, his first wife, Linda Dummar, and Hughes during 1968, the time when Dummar said he picked up Hughes in the desert and befriended him.

Dummar, a gas station attendant in Willard, Utah, was named as an heir to an estimated $165 million in a will filed in Las Vegas.

Linson said both Dummar and his former wife were paid for the rights and would participate in the profits of the film. He declined to say how much they had been paid, but said it was less than a rumored $300,000.

Threat

A telephoned death threat against movie actor Richard Dreyfuss was made after the actor, working on a film in Mobile, Ala., denounced the Ku Klux Klan as "the enemy of everything I believe in."

News Director Carlton Cordell of WALA-TV in Mobile said a male voice made the threat in a Thursday night telephone call to the television station switchboard operator.

Indicted doctor may still practice

Associated Press

A Los Angeles Superior Court judge said Friday that a doctor charged with killing 17 infants at his cut-rate baby clinic may continue to practice medicine.

Judge Charles Vogel ruled that Dr. Joseph Emory, indicted on multiple murder charges in the deaths, could continue to practice, but only under strict supervision.

And, Vogel said, Emory, 55, could not deliver any more babies.

Emory and his wife, Harriet, 52, were still in county jail Friday, held on bail of $200,000 each. Their son Alan, 32, was being held on $100,000 bail.

Following a lengthy hearing, Vogel also ruled in a related case that the State Board of Osteopathic Examiners could not suspend Emory's probationary license without a hearing.

Emory, whose license was reinstated after a second-degree murder conviction 16 years ago, has been indicted by the county grand jury on 51 counts, including murder, conspiracy and child endangering. His wife and son have also been indicted, as well as six other persons.

In his ruling, Vogel said Emory had to refrain from "performing or assisting in any obstretrical, gynecological, or surgical procedure" pending a trial on a civil suit brought by the state health director.

The judge said if Emory continued to practice surgery and obstetrics, "there would be a substantial risk to the community, and the public's health would be jeopardized."

But he indicated a total ban on Emory's medical practice might jeopardize the doctor's rights to due process.

Less for more?

I recently read that 400 water companies in the state are going to distribute to their customers devices that will help conserve water. Each device will cost the companies only $1, but the California Public Utilities Commission is going to allow these firms to increase their rates to recover their expenses. I could understand a one-time-only charge of $1 for each customer, but I'd like to know why these companies will be allowed to impose permanent increases. As far as I can figure, I will be forced to use less water and pay more for it. Mrs. E.K., Lakewood.

Municipal water companies, such as the ones in Lakewood and Long Beach, are not involved in the program you referred to. The 400 private water companies affected by the PUC ruling will be allowed to pass along the cost of their water conservation plans to their customers, but the firms won't get permanent rate increases because of these programs, according to a spokeswoman for the state commission. The PUC does not regulate municipal utility companies. The commission ordered the private water companies to distribute water conservation kits or to develop comparable programs to limit water use, but customers are not required to participate. The conservation kits consist of plastic containers which are immersed in toilet tanks, and fittings for shower beads to reduce the size of the spray. If you want to practice conservation on your own, you can limit the amount of water used by your toilet by placing a brick or open plastic bottle in the tank.

Arrangements

When a person with no money and no relatives dies, how long is his body kept in the morgue? Do his friends have enough time to try to come up with the money for burial or does the county bury or cremate him? N.S., Long Beach.

By law, an unclaimed body must be held at least three days and if friends want to handle the burial arrangements, the body could be held up to two weeks. According to Arthur Graham of the Los Angeles County public administrator's office, the agency that usually takes over when a person dies leaving no heirs or relatives, "We will give the friends time if they have indicated a desire" to handle the arrangements. Normally, a body is held from one to two weeks, allowing time for an investigation by the public administrator's office. If no friends come forward, and if the investigation finds that there are insufficient assets in the deceased person's estate to cover the cost of a traditional burial, the body will be cremated at county expense unless his religion forbids it. If he was Jewish or Catholic, the public administrator's office will notify either the Jewish Free Burial Society or the Catholic archdiocese which provide burial arrangements for their members.

Paint problem

Aug. 5, 1975, I had my car painted for $158 at Anderson's Body Shop, 935 Hill St. Two days later, the paint began to chip and peel. Since I was due to leave for college then, the owner, Eligh Anderson, said that the next time I was home for vacation, he would repaint my car. When I came home this summer, I immediately took my car back to Anderson's. The paint on the hood, doors and half the trunk has almost completely chipped away. Anderson told me that his son, who originally painted the car would have to do the work and he would be there June 7. I took my car in on that date, but the son never showed up. I was told to come back the next day, which I did, but he still wasn't there. I was told to come back June 12 and leave my car, but when I went back that night, the car hadn't been touched. The owner said to come back the next day and his son definitely would be there, but he wasn't. The owner finally said he'd call me and let me know if I would get my car repainted or get a refund, but he never called. I have a two-year guarantee on the paint job. Can Action Line help? C.W., Long Beach.

No. Anderson maintains "the paint was damaged in a sandstorm" and he'll repaint your car only if you pay another $45. He claims he never told you he would redo the entire job at no charge, and he won't give you a refund. "I saw only one little chip after the car was painted, and I told him I would touch it up, but I'm not responsible for the sandstorm damage," Anderson said.

Proposes withholding part of funding

Hahn opposes new smog board

From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn Friday said he would fight to withhold county funds from a regional smog control board brought into being when Gov. Brown signed AB250 over the objections of county supervisors.

Hahn said he believed the state should take over the whole problem of smog control because "smog knows no boundaries, is a statewide problem, and should therefore be controlled by the state at state cost."

He said he will move Tuesday to have county officials draft legislation amending AB250 to provide for the state takeover and state funding.

He described the newly formed South Coast Air Quality Management District spawned by the bill as "taxation without representation." Under the new agency, Hahn said, Los Angeles County would have to pay 73 per cent of the cost while having only 20 per cent of the representation.

"This is unjust, unfair and wrong. I for one would be willing to withhold county funds from the new agency and let the matter go to the courts," he told a press conference in his office.

Earlier in the day Brown traveled to El Monte to sign the bill which creates a regional district comprising Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties.

The regional district would become effective in February 1977 and would permit local authorities to shut down businesses which pollute the air.

Its board would be made up of two Los Angeles County supervisors, one each from Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties; one Los Angeles city councilman; one city councilman from some other city in Los Angeles county; one council representative from Orange County; one councilman from a city in either San Bernardino or Riverside counties, and one representative of the governor.

During budget deliberations earlier this week, supervisors expressed their dissatisfaction with the makeup of the new board and urged Brown to veto the bill.

Meanwhile, the board voted to set aside the bulk of its 1976-77 funding commitment for the present four-county voluntary smog control district in a reserve fund. Los Angeles county's financing commitment for a full year would have been $5.7 million.

Supervisors, however, agreed to put only one quarter of this in the budget to enable temporary funding of the voluntary district. The remaining three quarters was placed in a reserve fund and can only be released with four affirmative votes of the five-man board.

Hahn noted the primary cause of smog still is the automobile, for which the state already has complete responsibility.

Fishermen off Mexico face arrest

Sports fishermen headed for Mexican coastal waters this weekend were warned by the U.S. State Department that they may face arrest, the impounding of their boats and a maximum fine of $24,000.

In June, Mexico extended its offshore jurisdiction from 12 to 200 miles. Negotiations are underway between the U.S. and Mexico on a pact to allow both commercial and sports fishermen from the U.S. to operate in Mexican waters.

The warning was printed in the Local Notice to Mariners, a publication of the 11th District Headquarters of the Coast Guard.

Fire destroys car parts firm

A fire of undetermined origin caused more than $40,000 damage to an auto parts warehouse and its contents in county territory north of Lynwood Friday before fireman brought the blaze under control.

The 5:15 a.m. fire at Schwartz Auto Parts warehouse at 10900 Alameda St. was fought for an hour by five county fire units and three units from Lynwood, deputies said.

Traffic was rerouted for more than an hour around the fire scene.

Rare turtles born at zoo

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Rare Galapagos tortoises are being born at the San Diego Zoo for the first time since 1971.

A spokesman said seven were completing the hatching process, which takes two or three days, begun last Sunday. Their mother is known only as No.1.

The tortoises are found only on the Galapagos islands off the west coast of South America but are also located now in zoos in Bermuda, Honolulu, Philadelphia and San Diego.

Cal. near job force record

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's work force last month nearly matched the record high of 22 months ago, as the state's unemployment rate dropped to 9.2 per cent, state officials said Friday.

The unemployment rate declined from 10 per cent in May, in contrast with a nationwide increase from 7.2 to 7.5 per cent.

The Employment Development Department reported that 8,685,000 Californians had jobs in June, 88,400 more than May and 145,200 above June of last year.

THE JUNE EMPLOYMENT total was 13,900 below the state record of 8,698,900 in September 1974.

California's unemployed increased by 40,900 to 950,000 from May to June. But that's less than expected, EDD said, because June usually is a peak month for seasonal unemployment with the influx of school graduates into the job market.

Between May and June last year, unemployment in California rose by 82,900, more than twice this year's increase. The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate a year ago was 9.8 per cent.

The department said a record 7,994,200 persons were employed in all industries, except agriculture, in the state, an increase of 48,900 from May's record total.

ALL INDUSTRIES EXCEPT construction had increases in workers. Contruction jobs declined 1,400 to 291,000.

The services industry, including hotels, motels, medical and health, legal and recreation, had the biggest increase, 16,800 to a June total of 1,629,800.

Agriculture reported employment of 341,500 in June, an increase of 40,100 over May.

EDD reported that 632,277 persons claimed or received unemployment benefits in the week ending June 18, a decline from 688,409 in mid-May.

Nationally, the number of jobless Americans increased 280,000 in June to 7.1 million, while the number of employed dropped 200,000 to 87.5 million.

THE WHITE HOUSE SOUGHT to explain the increase as a statistical quirk, but other administration economists said that could be only a partial explanation. Labor Department analysts declined to concede any problems in their numbers.

Sidney L. Jones, assistant Treasury secretary for economic affairs, said that while an increase in the jobless rate had been expected, it indicates that the recent rapid increase in employment and the sharp drops in unemployment "at least for one month have leveled off."

This "obviously is a disappointing figure," he told a reporter.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the President's advisers still believe that the unemployment rate will go below 7 per cent by the end of the year.

"WE DID NOT EXPECT the unemployment to go straight down without a monthly uptick or two," Nessen said.

Unemployment increased in June for nearly every category of the nation's labor force, except teen-agers. Even worse, in the opinion of some analysts, was a rise of nearly two weeks in the average duration of unemployment, which jumped to 16.9 weeks, equal to the recession high of last December.

Among adult men, unemployment rose from 5.6 per cent in May to 6 per cent in June; for women, from 6.8 to 7.1 per cent; for whites, from 6.6 to 6.8 per cent, and for blacks, from 12.2 to 13.3 per cent. Teen-age unemployment remained unchanged at about 18.4 per cent.

Unemployment among construction workers rose to 17 per cent, up from 14.1 per cent in May, and the jobless rate for blue-collar craft workers climbed 7.3 per cent, up from 6.2 per cent. Manufacturing employment fell slightly for the second consecutive month.

Schools gain, but colleges', UC items slashed

Brown trims, signs new state budget

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's public schools generally did well in the new state budget approved Friday, but colleges once again were a target of selective slashes from Gov. Brown's scalpel.

Brown chopped off a University of California medical clinic in Orange County, knocked out 34 proposed state college teaching positions, and cut the size of student scholarships.

He also set most state employe salary increases — including every public college and university employe, from janitors to UC President David Saxon — at $70 a month instead of the usual percentage raises.

Technically, the UC regents can distribute salary money any way they want. Actually, they are virtually bound to follow the $70-a-month formula.

The education budget includes about $2.8 billion for grades kindergarten through 12 and $1.8 billion for higher education, including UC, the State University and Colleges, and community colleges.

Public schools— Spending is up about 10 per cent, including a $272 million school finance bill that Brown also signed Friday. It raises the state's foundation program to about $1,200 per student, a figure school districts say will enable them to avert large-scale layoffs and program cuts.

Early Childhood Education, state schools chief Wilson Riles' program of personalized instruction and small classes in the first three grades, gets a $35-million boost to $97 million, enough to cover more than half the schools.

The budget doesn't include money for still-pending legislation to extend the program to grades 4-6 and for another reform plan for the upper grades.

IT ALSO contains no money to meet the Serrano court decision, except for a provision of the school finance bill requiring some wealthy school districts to pool statewide some tax money they raise on their own.

The Serrano decision is expected to become final late this year, ordering the state to equalize spending abilities of its school districts. The cost could run into the billions.

The school bill also includes $40 million that will remove Brown's 5 per cent growth limit on adult education and community colleges, while changing state support formulas in an attempt to remove incentives for expansion.

Scholarships— Brown approved $7 million for a 50 per cent increase in the Educational Opportunities Program of scholarships, mostly for minorities, and another $1.8 million for a similar increase in the College Opportunity Grant program.

But he rejected $3.2 million for inflation increases in the size of state scholarship and COG awards.

UC— The nine-campus system also gets about a 10 per cent increase. But it had some fiscal disappointments besides the flat pay raise.

Brown rejected $150,000 to open a third medical clinic near UC Irvine's Orange County Medical Center. Charles Gocke of the state Finance Department said the budget includes money for two clinics, and the third should wait until the future.

State colleges—The 19-campus system gets slightly more than 10 per cent, including $3.8 million for 526 new teachers.

But Brown, who has been publicly skeptical about the value of smaller college classes, cut $560,000 that would have added another 34 teachers and slightly reduced the teacher-student ratio.

He also rejected $250,000 to double the size of the colleges' affirmative action office to hire women and minorities. Brown says affirmative action is a matter of will, not money.

Here are more of Gov. Brown's vetoes:

Mentally ill—Deleted a $200,000 legislative augmentation for additional county coordinators for support of the judicially committed mentally ill, leaving $100,000 which he said was enough to start a program involving five counties for evaluation and patient tracking at Atascadero State Hospital.

Alcoholism—Saying he continues to question the effectiveness of the program, cut aid to local alcoholism programs by $2 million, leaving $2 million because of what he called the Legislature's strong interest.

Drug buys—Cut $67,500 from the Department of Justice's support budget of $20.7 million, he said, to reflect the amount needed for undercover drug purchases.

Mental health—For assistance to local mental health services, cut $1.25 million, which leaves $22.4 million increase for mental health programs, a 6 per cent increase for cost of living and $10.5 million toward equalizing funding of local mental health services.

State Hospitals—Cut $4 million and left $6 million for increasing state hospital staff, saying the state will evaluate results of pilot projects and propose appropriate action.

Early Childhood Education—Cut $250,000 from support of Early Childhood Education, the amount for an American Indian ECE pilot program. He said this program should be considered part of the regular EOE program pending completion of a final report.

Plague threat closes 2 parks

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Two more Northern California campgrounds have been closed because of the threat of bubonic plague, state health officials said Friday.

The Mono County campgrounds, Holiday Overflow and Rock Creek, were closed after several golden-mantle squirrels were found dead, and authorities suspected the plague killed them.

The campgrounds will remain closed for at least two weeks, officials said.

Esther Seaman, spokeswoman for the Department of Health, said there were no definite reports yet on whether plague killed the squirrels. Final test results were due over the weekend.

Last week, officials announced the closing of a Plumas County park at Gray Eagle after a 5-year-old girl was bitten by plague-infected fleas. The girl is recovering in San Francisco.

There have been no reports of humans catching the plague in either of the newly closed parks, Miss Seaman said. But she said anyone who was in the area and gets a fever should contact a doctor immediately.

N. Calif. fire near control

RED BLUFF (AP) — The stubborn inferno that blackened 72,000 acres of timber and rangelands neared containment Friday although some air tankers were diverted to a new fire several miles away.

Bill Richards of the California Division of Forestry said a second fire, five miles north of the 112-square-mile blaze, charred eight acres before several air tankers and ground crews controlled it. He said several homes were saved but a barn was destroyed.

ABOUT 2,600 fire fighters with 134 pieces of equipment continued to work California's largest fire in five years. Forestry officials say the wind-whipped blaze, apparenty started last Sunday by a lawnmower, will cost an estimated $8.5 million.

Control was expected by 6 p.m. Saturday, but a 200-acre section along the edge of the Yolla Bolly Wilderness was giving fire fighters trouble Friday, when the fire was 60-per cent controlled.

Ray Higgins, state fire-prevention officer, said the big blaze was the only active one in California after a week of fire eruptions.

"We've got our fingers crossed," he said. "It's been a rough week. But the weather pattern is favorable, with cooling weather and less north wind, which is a drying wind."

The July 4th bicentennial weekend has the potential to be a fiery one, Higgins said. "Fireworks are a problem. We're hoping and pleading with people to keep them out of the hills. All it takes is one careless person"

MOPUPS OR patrols were under way Friday on several other California fires including a 5,725-acre fire near Riverside, a 470-acre fire in Plumas County near Lake Almanor and a 350-acre fire in Yosemite National Park.

A skeleton crew of 25 men was cleaning up after a fire which burned 2,400 acres in Kings Canyon National Park. An abandoned campfire was believed responsible for the fire, which was fought by 260 men at its peak.

Auto smog device claims challenged

SANTA ROSA (AP) — A company which claims to have invented an inexpensive device that eliminates air pollution from internal combustion engines has been accused of state securities violations, it was disclosed Friday.

A Sonoma County Superior Court civil lawsuit brought by the state attorney general's office accuses the firm of selling securities without a permit, making false and misleading claims to potential investors, and unfair competition.

"Those allegations are ridiculous," said Paul Credell, spokesman for By Pass Engineering Laboratory of Santa Rosa. The firm showed off the device at a press conference Friday, the same day announcement of the legal action against the company was announced.

"WHAT WE have done is to invite the people who have made those charges to view a demonstration and see for themselves," added Credell, who described himself as an investor in By Pass.

The suit was filed Monday by the office of Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger after an investigation by the office of State Corporations Commissioner Willie R. Barnes.

The lawsuit alleges that Alfred J. Cusino and others connected with By Pass sold unauthorized securities in $1,000 denominations by claiming the device would dramatically reduce emissions while substantially improving gas mileage.

It also says investors were told they would receive "an enormous return on their investment, ranging from 500 per cent to 5,000 per cent, within the next two years."

THE SUIT says such statements are false and misleading and contends that no such device exists.

Police pay $100 to get back radio

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Using a walkie-talkie radio stolen from San Diego police to bargain with its owners, a man in Mexico has sold it back for $100.

The radio valued at $1,200 was taken from a city storeroom after being checked out for repairs on May 24. Then Wednesday a strange man's voice broke into the police communications line.

"A person" in the city shop gave him the radio, but he will sell it back, the man said.

The $100 payoff finally agreed on, Snider went to a remote site on the international border east of Tijuana at midnight. A man with the radio, using a spotlight to survey the scene, was standing on the Mexican side.

The radio and the cash were exchanged.

Adios, they said.

An investigation is under way back in the city shops.

Water rationing approved for North

Associated Press

State officials said Friday they will request that drought-plagued Marin County be declared a federal agricultural-disaster area to help 73 dairy ranchers truck in water and hay.

Charles Manfred, director of the California Office of Emergency Services, made the announcement after a meeting in San Rafael to discuss the dwindling water supply in the Marin coastal area.

In San Francisco, meanwhile, the California Public Utilities Commission Friday approved California-American Water Co.'s proposal for mandatory water rationing in the Monterey Peninsula immediately.

It marks the first time the PUC — created in 1911 — has ever ordered such a rationing system.

Manfred said Gov. Brown is expected to sign a document Monday asking Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz to make the disaster declaration, which would make dairy ranchers eligible for low-interest federal loans and grants.

Manfred reported that state fire tanker trucks will be brought in to help move drinking water to the 11 coastal communities where well and stream-water supplies have dried up.

He said the state will install temporary pipes into bay and ocean salt water to provide a handy water supply to fight any fires that might break out in the tinder-dry West Marin territory.

Meanwhile, Rep. John Burton, D-Calif., said he is asking the Navy to help by either anchoring offshore a ship with a desalting plant or providing a barge that could carry 60,000 gallons of water to the county.

Having the region declared a federal disaster area would make loans and grants available to reimburse dairy ranchers, he said. It would also provide funds for trucking hay from Idaho, which is costing dairymen $20,000 to $50,000 per month because the drought has cut the grass and hay supply normally grown in the area, Giacomini said.

After hearings the past week, the PUC found that a water emergency exists in the Monterey Peninsula and there would be insufficient water for human consumption, sanitation and fire protection without rationing.

The rationing plan — which would remain in effect until further order — puts certain restrictions on water usage during three phases tied to water levels in the utility's reservoirs.

Authorities are expected to decide next week when to implement the plan and which phase would go into effect first.

There are no prohibitions when the total storage level exceeds 200 acre-feet. Phase 1 occurs when the level drops to 150 acre-feet; Phase 2, 70 acre-feet, and Phase 3, 60 acre-feet.

During Phase 1, outside landscape watering is prohibited except between 5 and 7 a.m. During Phase 2 it is limited to from 6 to 7 a.m. on Tuesdays and Fridays. During Phase 3 such watering is banned.

During all three phases, washing of paved areas and vehicles with hoses is forbidden.

Empty swimming pools may not be refilled during the three phases. Newly built pools may be filled in Phase 1 but not Phase 2. All water for pools is banned in Phase 3.

During Phase 1, golf-course watering is limited to 80 per cent of that used in the same period in 1972. This is cut down in later phases.

The PUC provided penalties for violations.

Hays at first public event since overdose

STRATTON, Ohio (AP) — Rep. Wayne Hays appeared in public for the first time Friday since taking an overdose of sleeping pills and said the excessive dosage was accidental.

The 65-year-old Democratic congressman still appeared to be weak. He came to this eastern Ohio community of 500 persons to present a Bicentennial flag and certificate.

Speaking later to reporters, Hays, the central figure in the congressional payroll-sex scandal, gave this account of the overdose that occurred June 10:

"As near as I reconstruct it, I came home late and I was very jittery and the doctor prescribed Dalmane, and he said two. I took two and I couldn't sleep. I got up and took two more and I still couldn't sleep.

"I got up the third time and I thought I took two. I may have taken three or four. I don't know. I was pretty dopey. Anyway, I got more than I could tolerate.

"I went to sleep all right, but it was a little hard waking up.

"But if I would have wanted to commit suicide, there were 30 or 40 more pills in the bottle. I could have taken all of them and that would have done it. It was just pure dopiness that you get up in the middle of the night when you don't know what you're doing and take medicine."

Hays won renomination for his 15th term to Congress in the Democratic primary on June 8 and the following day drove to Washington. He flew back to his farm the same night. The next morning, his wife was unable to awaken him and he was taken to Barnesville Hospital in a coma. He was released eight days later.

His physician, Dr. Richard Phillips, said he had prescribed Dalmane about 2½ weeks before the overdose to help relieve the stress that Hays had been under because of his admitted affair with Elizabeth Ray and his loss of a chairmanship in the House.

Miss Ray, 33, had accused Hays of paying her as a secretary while she served only as his mistress. Hays denied the accusation.

Hays, who has resigned as chairman of the powerful House Administration Committee for which Miss Ray worked, said he had no intention of quitting Congress or withdrawing from the general election.

"I lost about 15 pounds," he said. "But I've regained maybe a pound or so. I feel pretty good. I'm weak, otherwise I feel all right."

Asked about the reforms under way in the House, Hays said:

"The thing the press never did focus in on and probably never will is that all of these so-called excesses which they're now doing away with in the name of reforms were proposed by Mr. Thompson (Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J. who replaced Hays as chairman) and his subcommittee and came as a product of his subcommittee before the full committee."

As one example, Hays said he had opposed the 20-cent mileage fee and had argued for a 15-cent fee. As far as the double travel billings by some congressmen are concerned, Hays said, "If a man certifies that he traveled by car and he actually traveled by plane, we have no way of knowing how he traveled. We have to take his word for it."

Hays said he planned to return to Washington July 19 following the congressional recess.

Congressman 'guilty' of unethical conduct

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ethics Committee has recommended that Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, D-Fla., be reprimanded for official misconduct, a congressional source said Friday.

The source said the panel had found Sikes guilty in connection with conflict-of-interest allegations brought against him by the citizens lobby, Common Cause.

Sikes, 70, is chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee on military construction, which oversees billions of dollars worth of military contracts. He could not be reached immediately for comment.

The ethics panel's chairman, Rep. John J. Flynt Jr., D-Ga., announced Thursday evening that the committee had reached a decision on the Sikes case, and had adopted a report setting out recommendations for action by the full House.

However, Flynt refused to disclose details of the decision. He said the committee wished to withhold the information until its full 200-page report on Sikes was printed.

REP. ROBERT SYKES
Denies Interest Conflict

The committee's decision to urge that Sikes be reprimanded was confirmed Friday by a source close to the investigation.

The panel reportedly found Sikes guilty of violating ethical standards of the House on each of three conflict-of-interest charges brought by Common Cause, which was aided by 44 congressmen who signed the complaint against Sikes.

The three basic allegations were:

—Sikes sponsored legislation to permit commercial development on Santa Rosa Island, on which a company he partly owned held a lease. Sants Rosa Island is located along Florida's upper Gulf Coast.

—The congressman urged local and state officials to permit establishment of the First Navy Bank at Pensacola Naval Air Station. Common Cause said Sikes was an original stockholder in the bank.

The panel, formally known as the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, could have opted for several more severe penalties, including censure, a fine, loss of Sikes' subcommittee chairmanship, or even expulsion from the House.

Sikes previously has vigorously denied the conflict-of-interest charges, asserting that "the liberal media and the liberal lobby organizations" were pressing the matter "to destroy me politically."

Wiggins requests House to expel Hinshaw over bribes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles E. Wiggins has introduced a resolution asking the House to expel his fellow California Republican, lame-duck Rep. Andrew Hinshaw, because of Hinshaw's conviction on bribery charges.

Wiggins asked that the resolution be referred' to the House Committee on Standards of Official Conduct. He said that if the panel had not acted upon the resolution in 30 days, he would bring the matter before the full House for a vote.

Hinshaw was convicted last Jan. 26 and sentenced to prison on two counts of taking bribes. While he was assessor for Orange County and a Republican congressional candidate he allegedly solicited and received a $1,000 contribution in exchange for favors from his public office. After he was elected to Congress but before he officially took office Hinshaw solicited and received stereo equipment for other favors, the indictment said. The convictions are being appealed.

Wiggins said he offered the resolution because "I thought it was the right thing to do.

"It seemed to me that it was a responsibility which should be borne by Republicans and primarily by Californians," he stated.

Wiggins introduced the resolution Wednesday without having solicited support from other members of the House.

"I told him shortly after his conviction. . . .that I thought he should resign," Wiggins declared. "He told me that he didn't intend to do so. I indicated to him that if he didn't resign that the only remedy left was to introduce a resolution to expel him."

Hinshaw had indicated that he planned to appeal his conviction speedily, but Wiggins said the appeals are not likely to be resolved until after the 94th Congress expires.

Reagan hits White House 'pull'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan's campaign organization asked the Federal Election Commission on Friday to decide whether President Ford's use of the White House to promote his candidacy is illegal.

Unless the commission acts quickly, said Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., Citizens for Reagan will file suit to ensure that the former California governor receives equal treatment with Ford at the Republican National Convention.

"Both candidates should be treated equally" by the Republican National Committee, Laxalt told reporters. "We don't think we have been."

Laxalt and other Reagan partisans are upset on two counts: designation of Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., a Ford partisan, as temporary chairman of the nominating convention, and allocation of gallery seats and motel rooms to the White House in addition to the President Ford Committee.

On the first count, Laxalt called on the Republican National Committee to choose a temporary chairman acceptable to both candidates because of the central role that official could play in early convention maneuvering.

"We could take the fight to the floor but we don't want it to come to that," Laxalt said.

Dole, Republican national chairman during the last presidential campaign, said of the protest: "I don't think it's a big bone of contention ... I think Paul feels compelled to make a public protest, and that's certainly in order. I hope they don't carry it to an extreme; we don't need divisiveness.

"I'm very good friends with all of them (in the Reagan camp), including the candidate," Dole said in an interview.

The temporary chairman presides in the opening sessions during the crucial debates on adoption of party rules and resolution of any challenges to delegates' credentials, which could be crucial in the close Ford-Reagan contest for nomination.

On the second point, RNC Chairman Mary Louise Smith wrote the Reagan organization on Friday that a Republican administration traditionally receives "recognition" at the convention, and that Ford administration personnel have official as well as partisan functions.

Laxalt called that response totally unsatisfactory

NEW "WHEN TO WATER" Houseplant Indicator, for indoor plants, lets the plant tell you when there is sufficient moisture, and when it needs a drink of water.

Plants can tell when to water

Indoor houseplants can now tell their owners when they need to be watered and when they don't.

A company, best known for making Scotch tape and rescue kitchen pads, the 3M Company, has introduced a new helper, "When to Water" Houseplant Indicators.

The Indicators monitor water moisture rising to the surface from within the soil of a potted plant. When there is sufficient moisture in the soil to maintain the plant, the center of the one-inch, water-like disc is pink. As the soil dries out, the Indicator turns blue, a sign that it's time to water the plant.

The Indicator is placed flat on top of the soil after watering. It's seen easily, but won't spoil the plant's appearance. It works for most indoor foliage plants, and each is effective for up to a year or longer.

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

There's some gardening folk who still can't tell the difference between a bona-fide rose sucker and a basal cane. The sucker is a rose cane that grows out from below the rose bud union area.

The sucker might also grow up from the soil beside the rose bush. Both such suckers should be removed, but not by cutting them back. Those suckers should be torn off. Once removed, they're not likely to regrow. If cut back, they send out several more sucker branches where before there was only one.

The suckers that are left undisturbed rob the rose bush of some nutrients and eventually weaken the bush. In a long period of time the undisturbed suckers eventually kill off the good desirable finely bred rose.

The basal canes that look like suckers but are good, are the brand new canes which will replace an equal number of oldest woodiest canes when the gardener prunes the rose bushes during the winter pruning season.

They grow out in most cases from some bare part of the bud union area. Sometimes they grow out from the lower portion of old thick cane that has numerous secondary branches.

The bud union area is the slightly swollen portion of the bush which grew and developed the choice variety rose branches.

The trunk and the roots of the rose are the wild rose portion from which the choice variety rose obtains the vigor and growth. Some of the 1977 All America Rose Selections Awards include:

DOUBLE DELIGHT is a fragrant large flowered red and white hybrid tea rose, hybridized by Herbert C. Swim of California. He has spent his life breeding over 100 introductions of fine roses.

FIRST EDITION is a lovely coral color floribunda, introduced by Conard-Pyle Company (Star Roses), West Grove, Pennsylvania. It was created by Georges Delhard of France. This rose is good for showy hedge, also a lawn or driveway border.

PROMINENT is a bright orange grandiflora introduced by Jackson and Perkins Company of Medford, Oregon. It was bred by the famous German hybridizer Reimer Kordes. Though a grandiflora with typical candelabra type stems of blooms, it often throws many hybrid tea-like single stem roses.

As long as we're discussing colorful flowers, don't overlook some excellent perennials such as Transvaal daisies with single or double blossoms.

Water them only as they thirst but deeply, feed them at monthly intervals with a balanced fertilizer containing more phosphorus than nitrogen or potash.

They'll blossom off and on for about eight months or longer. They love the sun, but hate to have their crowns — knobby areas where leaves and blossoms spring forth — covered by soil. The crowns must be uncovered at all times.

Tulbaghia violacea with showy rosy-lavender star shaped clusters of flowers on 18 inches tall stems, towering over foot long gray green, nearly half inch wide arching leaves, provides an interesting blooming clump plant.

It flowers from May into the fall season. The moisture on the leaves emphasizes the strong onion garlic like odor. It grows in sun to half shade and is a hardy perennial.

Jobs to do

Spray kills flea beetles

Flea beetles love dichondra lawns. The small black shiny beetles can cause a dichondra lawn to brown out within several days time. There are several stomach type pesticide sprays on the market. Ask the nurseryman which spray is sought out more than others, and purchase that one to attack those pests.

Foliage sharp spraying of plants that tolerate sharp hosing at about 10 days intervals. The spray dislodges old leaves that drop in the crotches of the plants. Such spraying removes possible dry pests nesting areas of plants which usually attract the pests.

Poinsettias particularly and hydrangeas too, are susceptible to spider mites infestation. The complaint of home gardeners at Christmas time when poinsettia flowers are cut for indoor decoration is . . . "I can't understand why my poinsettias don't have any green leaves left on the branches!" It is due to gardener not foliage sharp water spraying underside of the leaves, periodically in the summer. Also spray with a miticide spray.

Hard spots in lawn may be due to sprinkler not wetting the particular area as do other sprinklers or sprinkler heads, therefore the lawn soil stays harder, hence poorer growth in those spots. Gardener should jab a spading fork into those hard areas, then slowly water well. Spread evenly about an eighth of an inch layer of the good steer manure or a top dressing then sprinkle well to settle it. Keep the area moist as though it had been newly seed sown until the area greens up. Check the sprinkler head.

Continue feeding roses, camellias, and azaleas. Soil must be watered well beforehand. The fertilizer must be lightly chopped into the soil with a cultivator, then watered well afterwards.

Watch for hybrid tea rose basal cane breaks. They are new canes that sprout out from the bud union area of the plant, or from lower base of older canes with many secondary branches. These canes then usually sprout out two new branches which produce long stems with lovely roses. The new growth that sprouts out below the bud union area or sprouts up from the rose root through the soil beside the rose bud, are no good. They should be torn off.

Cut carnation blossom stems well down into the leafy growth of the branches. The leafy branches have slightly swollen rings at intervals. Cut above one of the rings. Cut back thusly forces the plant to send forth several new branches that later will produce more flowers.

GARDENING

Sliding panels hide compost

If you like to make your own compost but find the pile-up an unattractive addition to your garden area, you might want to know about the new Accelerator compost bin that won the Design Council Award in 1975.

The attractive self-contained unit is designed to accept garden and kitchen wastes, preserve heat generated by natural biological action, and control aeration and moisture so that rich, crumbly, odorless, disease-free compost can be produced within weeks, for adding to garden and indoor plants as a fertilizer and soil conditioner.

Made from green interlocking panels, the Accelerator will fit into the smallest backyard space, and will do its job of producing compost silently and hygienically on either a paved surface or bare soil.

The circular bin's interlocking panels slide up to allow access to the compost from the bottom. The circular construction ensures that internal heat generated by the process for decomposition, is evenly distributed throughout the pile for fast action.

The bins are available through the Rotocrop, company, 58 Buttonwood St., New Hope, Pa. 18938. You may get information on the product by writing to them for a free booklet and a compost sample.

Estrogen linked to male heart attacks

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — A Columbia University physician has reported discovery of what may be a new factor predisposing to heart attacks, the nation's leading killer. He found that young men who were victims of heart attacks had unusually high amounts of a female sex hormone.

The levels of the hormone called estrogen were so high that seven of the 15 patients studied by the Columbia doctor at Roosevelt Hospital here did not have to shave daily. Some of the patients had also lost their sex drive and had slightly enlarged breasts, smooth skin and other forms of feminization, the doctor found. The men's levels of the male sex hormone, testosterone, were normal.

The physician, Dr. Gerald B. Phillips, a professor of medicine at Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons, said in the issue of the Lancet, British medical journal, published today in London that the findings could represent an important new risk factor for heart attacks in men.

Phillips said it was not known why the estrogen levels were raised and how they might cause heart attacks. But he theorized that physiological changes that influenced dietary and smoking habits could be among the possible explanations.

Other physicians described the findings as both surprising and exciting because they run counter to conventional medical thinking. Doctors long have believed that the high incidence of heart attacks in men meant that male hormones predisposed people to heart attacks, but relatively few studies have been done to relate hormone-test results to heart attacks.

Heart attacks in women generally occur after menopause, at which time the amount of estrogen in the body has diminished. For this reason, doctors have assumed that estrogen in some unknown way protects women against heart attacks.

Men normally have estrogen in their blood but in amounts much lower than that found in the men in the Roosevelt Hospital study. Doctors cautioned that a high estrogen level did not necessarily mean that an individual would suffer a heart attack or that the presence of a normal estrogen level would protect against a heart attack.

Phillips's report comes at a time when cardiology leaders contend an urgent need exists for reappraisal of current concepts about the cause of heart attacks and for development of a fundamentally new approach designed to reduce the impact of heart attacks on society. The American Heart Association says that Americans suffer 1 million heart attacks each year.

Phillips, who is a specialist in internal medicine with an interest in biochemistry and fat metabolism, said in an interview that his study apparently was the first to measure sex hormones in the blood of heart-attack patients. When he began his study two years ago, he said he was looking for new approaches to understanding the basic cause of heart attacks.

As a scientific short-cut to identifying previously unsuspected clues to heart attacks, Phillips said he purposely concentrated on meticulously examining young-heart attack patients.

"My style is to do careful studies on a few people rather than a large number superficially," Phillips said.

The first patient, a 38-year-old man, told Phillips that he shaved just every second or third day and had lost his sex drive over the preceding three years.

"The finding struck me as very interesting," Phillips said. "I mean masculinity had always been stressed as a factor in heart attacks." The second and third patients Phillips examined in the study also had feminizing characteristics. Accordingly, Phillips said, he decided to measure the amounts of various male and female sex hormones in the heart-attack patients. He studied 15 Roosevelt Hospital patients who had heart attacks between the ages of 32 and 42 and another 15 businessmen of comparable age and without serious illness who volunteered to serve as scientific controls.

What he learned was that the heart-attack patients on the average had higher estrogen levels than did the controls. Of the 15 heart-attack patients, 11 had none of the major known risk factors except for smoking in nine, and three of these had not smoked for three years before their heart attacks, Phillips said.

If other scientists confirm Phillips' study, he said, "the next step would be to discover the reason for the increased estrogen and to eliminate the hormone as a risk factor by drugs, dietary changes and other factors — that's the ultimate goal."

Power plants put on double fuel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Administration has issued orders to make sure 30 planned new power plants have the capability to burn both coal and oil to produce electricity.

At the same time, the agency said, it notified 48 other planned power plants that it intends to issue similar orders to them.

Water on Mars may ice Viking

By RICHARD SALTUS
AP Science Writer

PASADENA—The scanty Martian atmosphere may hold enough water vapor to form thin coats of ice on the Viking robot lander during the chill nights on Mars, a scientist reported Friday.

And the cameras mounted on the mechanical explorer may see morning ground fogs composed of ice crystals, said Dr. Crofton B. Farmer.

The scientist's report on amounts of water vapor being detected in the atmosphere confirmed earlier findings, which have been surprising because of the amounts detected.

The observations also fit his theory that liquid water could exist for short periods of time.

If true, chances of Martian life existing would be improved.

"Here we have a scenario in which small quantities of ice can go through a liquid phase daily and perhaps provide some water in the form Martian bugs would like," Farmer said.

EVER SINCE spacecraft from Earth got a glimpse of Mars a dozen years ago, the planet was thought to be incapable of containing liquid water on the surface.

Another report Friday seemed to confirm something about the planet's atmosphere that has been suspected only since a recent Soviet Mars mission—that it contains a substantial quantity of argon gas.

The importance of such a finding is that it would probably mean Mars once had a much denser atmosphere— which would have exerted sufficient pressure to allow water to exist in a liquid form. In fact, the planet might have been a very different place, complete with rushing rivers and moderate temperatures—factors that could have nurtured life.

Christ and Hatfield

MARK CLUTTER
RELIGION EDITOR

Oregon, that maverick state, has sent many strange, enchanted boys to Washington. Not across the river but to the District of Columbia.

One of the most enchanted is Sen. Mark Hatfield. He is a Republican, but that label is not typical for that party in the rest of the United States. Perhaps not entirely in Oregon.

The distinctive fact about Sen. Hatfield is that he is a Christian. He is not an ordinary Christian — a go-to-church-on-Sunday-if-there's-nothing- more-interesting-to-do type.

He takes his Christianity neat and bottled in bond. He has no use for mixed drinks containing the juices of social class, "culture," conformity or pragmatism.

Most politicians are "religious men." In hard-fought campaigns they tend to turn up at the more influential churches. Many are honest Christians and loyal members of their churches. Jimmy Carter describes himself as a "born-again" Christian, a state that he should describe in more detail.

Most politicians, hypocritical or devout, don't directly intrude Christianity into the "realities" of politics.

This radical Christian speaks his mind in season and out of season. He takes on the military-industrial complex in scathing terms.

Although he is a Navy veteran of World War II he is an almost total pacifist. He does not believe in "just wars." He concedes that the revolt of oppressed, poverty-stricken peoples against their tyrants is understandable.

Although nuclear weapons can destroy the world, he sees bureaucratic power as the greatest danger to the quality of life.

And yet, many of his ideas seem more like socialism than traditional Republicanism. People must care for each other. The hungry must be fed, the homeless sheltered. The rich must not wallow in luxury. We must all share with each other.

The senator has set forth his views in a new book, "Between a Rock and a Hard Place," (Word, $7:95.) I haven't read it yet, but I have read about it. His views are obviously open to criticism even from the most earnest Christians.

His answers raise more and harder questions. But so did the answers of his Master

RESURGENT CONSERVATISM

The United Methodist Church, like so many other institutions, has been torn for years between conservatives who seem to oppose change in all of its forms and liberals who want everything changed.

At the recent General Conference in Portland, Ore., the conservatives won a moderate victory. The truly rock-ribbed aren't entirely happy, of course, but the Methodist "hippies" were put to rout.

This is in keeping with the times. In almost every area of American society one can see a tendency to put on the brakes, if not to turn around and go back to the things we have left.

The young rebels of the 1960s are a lost generation. Some wander around a bit dazed at a world that is passing them by. Others have struck their colors and joined the "establishment."

If there is any generality that can be made about history, it must be this: Every action will create a reaction. This is not to say that society will become ultraconservative. It does mean that the ultraliberals are no longer having things their way.

LAST TESTAMENT: THE DIVINE YES

The late E. Stanley Jones was a dynamo of a man. He was a distinguished missionary to India. He was a world evangelist. He wrote 28 books, two of them best sellers. He studied the Bible two hours every day. He preached more than 60,000 sermons.

Dr. Jones at 87 made an evangelistic trip to Japan. He visited 45 cities and preached 154 times. He enjoyed the experience. He felt no exhaustion.

Then he left for a Christian Ashram in Oklahoma City. On the night of Dec. 7, 1971, he suffered a major stroke in his hotel room. His eyesight and voice were damaged and most of his muscles were paralyzed.

But be would not die. He had one more job to do. He wrote "The Divine Yes" (Pillar Books, paperback, $1:50). It was a heroic task. His handwriting had become illegible. He used a tape recorder, but his words were blurry. Only his mind and will were strong. The book would never have seen print without the editing of his daughter, Eunice Jones Mathews.

It is a positive affirmation of the joy to be found in the Christian life, even when everything seems lost because Everything with a capital E has been promised. This book should give comfort to all who see the shadows lengthening toward sunset. And even the vibbrant, heedless young could learn from this man who never permitted himself to whisper one word of self-pity.

Dr. Jones with treatment recovered a bit. He longed to see his beloved India again. He went with family help, pausing awhile in Europe. At the Sat Tal Ashram in the Himalayas he retrained himself to walk. He died in January, 1973

A QUESTION OF ETIQUETTE

What do you call "gentlemen of the cloth?"What are the appropriate ways to address them in person and in print? We invite ministers and others to answer the following questions of proper language:

In writing should it always be "the Rev. James Jones?" Or should the "The" be dropped?

In following paragraphs, should it be "the Rev. Mr. Jones," or "Mr. Jones," or just plain "Jones" Most newspaper editors hold that "Rev. Jones" is unsuitable.

In the Roman Catholic and some other churches clergymen of rank have complicated titles. A Catholic bishop, for instance, is "His Excellency," an aristocratic term that might embarrass many American prelates except on the most formal occasions. But is it proper to write simply "Bishop James Jones?"

Ministers of some denominations, such as the Church of Christ and the Society of Friends, reject "The Rev." We would like to hear from ministers who would rather not be called "The Rev."

Is it proper in public to address a clergyman as "Father Jim?" or just plain "Jim?"

The clergy today, like the general society, no longer cares for rigid and stuffy rules of etiquette. But there should be some rules, some formality, in recognition of their vocation. We would like to hear from many ministers on this small but important subject. What do you want to be called?

Pessimistic about men

Founding Fathers believed in sin

AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A tough realism, born of an ancient Biblical idea, underlay the founding of these United States — a conviction that human beings, including the most elevated statesmen of government, can go wrong.

They were regarded, in Scriptural terms, as subject to sin.

It's an old, old notion, and the term is not at all fashionable these days, however extensive the problem itself, but awareness of it tempered the building blocks of the nation.

On its 200th birthday this weekend, the national structure still holds, and much of the credit for it is given to the original scathing view of the human condition.

Historians say it's what distinguished the American system and made it last through all sorts of aberrations and upheavals, while other struggles for liberation often relapsed into tyranny.

IN SUCH cases, the masses took a rosy, trusting view of their leaders, whose authority subsequently turned repressive. But the American founders viewed those put in positions of power with a dour, critical eye.

That note of skepticism about the human tendency was written into the U.S. Constitution, with its checks and balances giving each branch of government — the President, the Congress, the courts — restraining reins on the others.

Each was limited in relation to the other, their functions so allotted that each was considered able to curb the others from excesses.

"There is a hearty Puritanism in the view of human nature which pervades the instrument," wrote historian-jurist James Bryce in describing the U.S. Constitution to the British in the new nation's first century.

"It is the work," he said, "of men who believe in original sin and were resolved to leave open for transgressors no door which they could possibly shut."

THE AMERICAN Revolution came shortly before another one in Europe, the French Revolution of 1789. While the objectives were similar, the throwing off of kingly rule, the outcomes differed radically.

The United States survived and flourished while the new French republic degenerated into the mass executions of the "Terror" and the military despotism of Napoleon Bonaparte that swept Europe.

Scholars cite various reasons for the difference, including the fact that the French Revolution was anticlerical, while in America, the clergy and religious influences figured both in the Revolution and the ensuing U.S. Constitution.

However, the basic difference cited involved the French "optimism" about human direction, versus American "pessimism." The mostly Protestant early Americans were sharply conscious of human fallibility — their perverse vulnerability to sin.

The implication was that society should not put full or final power over peoples' lives in the hands of any human sovereign or group, no matter how learned or illustrious; they were prey to corruption.

"Free government is founded in jealousy and not in confidence," Thomas Jefferson put it. "It is jealousy and not confidence which prescribes a limiting constitution to bind down those who we are obliged to trust with power."

IT IS a "government of laws," said John Adams, "and not of men."

It is a system of restricted powers, of reserved areas of action, possibly the only government in the world in which no human entity is given sovereign authority, and where the center of rule remains an intangible. . .

"We, the people of the United States ..." the Constitution begins. The guiding power was to work through them, out of their consciences, and however they define it, out of their own ultimate rule, their God.

Catholics talk on female priests

WASHINGTON (AP) — A task force on women set up by a Roman Catholic bishops' committee has concluded that women should be admitted to the priesthood.

The group of four nuns and two laywomen, formed by a bishops' ad hoc committee on women in society, was chaired by Sister Margaret Brennan, former superior general of the Sisters of the Immaculate Heart of Mary. The report of its study said:

"Concrete steps ... should be set in motion to insure the admission of women to all forms of ministry in the church, including the diaconate and ordained priesthood."

Meanwhile, at the Vatican, the Pontifical Biblical Commission has voted 12-to-5 that Holy Scripture alone does not provide sufficient grounds "to exclude the possibility" of ordaining women. The majority of the organization of Bible scholars said the Church would not be contradicting Christ's intentions if it opened the priesthood to women.

Monastics cooperating

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP) — A contemplative order of the Episcopal Church, the Community of the Holy Trinity, has taken up residence in a building of a Roman Catholic center called "Chaminade" in a wooded coastal area here. The center is used by the Catholic order, the Marianist Fathers, for retreats, but members of the Episcopal order live there as caretakers.

GOINGS ON

Editor's note: The Bicentennial theme will be emphasized in most churches Sunday. Judging by the announcements much special effort has been made to give congregations something extra for the Fourth of July. Here are some of the events:

The Order of Holy Eucharist as observed in Episcopal churches in 1776 will be celebrated at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Colorado Street and Termino Avenue, in a combined service at 10 a.m., Sunday. There will be a massing of American and Church flags.

A sermon on liberty will be illustrated by a projector 10 a.m., Sunday, at Rehoboth Christian Reformed Church, 17921 Carpinterio Ave., Bellflower. At 6:30 p.m. there will be a concert of the combined choirs.

The Great Commission Company, sponsored by the Campus Crusade for Christ, will present programs at 7:45, 9 and 10:45 a.m. Sunday at Grace Brethren Church of Seal Beach, Central and Eighth Street. The theme is the American spiritual and historical heritage.

A prayer vigil for the future of the United States will be held today, noon to midnight, at Mount Olivet Lutheran Church, 4405 E. South St., Lakewood.

Congressman Del Clawson and Assemblyman Robert McLennan will speak Sunday, 10:50 a.m., at the patriotic observances at Trinity Baptist Church, 8219 Florence Ave., Downey.

Colonial music and a colonial sermon will be featured in an outdoor service, 10 a.m., Sunday at Geneva Presbyterian Church, 2625 E. Third St.

A patriotic pageant by Martha Chadwick will be presented at 10 a.m., Sunday, at Covenant Presbyterian Church, Third Street and Atlantic Avenue.

The Great Commission Company of Campus Crusade for Christ will present a program Sunday, , 6 p.m., at Community Grace Brethren Church, 5885 Downey Ave.

A Bicentennial concert will be presented by a 120-voice choir tonight at 8 p.m. , at the Long Beach Stake Center of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints, 37th Street and Elm Avenue. Participating will be the Sound of Youth and the Colonials.

The Order of Morning Prayer from the Book of Common Prayer of 1662 will be used Sunday, 10:30 a.m., in the All Saints Episcopal Church, 18082 Bushard, Fountain Valley.

The Mariners Club will take over pulpit and music Sunday, 9:30 and 11 a.m., at Good Shepherd Presbyterian Church, 11600 Los Alamitos Blvd., Los Alamitos. Dick Dickinson, marriage counselor, will speak.

A Bicentennial program featuring solos, the choir and youth groups will be presented Sunday, 9:30 a.m., at the Evangelical United Methodist Church, 1700 Temple Ave.

Don and Sue Skills, in colonial dress and riding in a 1925 Model T , will lead worshipers into the parking lot of Immanuel Lutheran Church, 345 Carson St., for the Bicentennial service of celebration at 10 a.m.

Lay readers will present the Declaration of Independence, a speech by Patrick Henry, and the Gettysburg Address at Bethany Lutheran Church, 4644 Clark Ave., at 8 and 10:30 a.m. Sunday and 7 p.m., Monday. The Rev. Nathan Loesch, who was a Navy combat chaplain in Vietnam, will preach on liberty.

A feature of the Bicentennial service, 10 a.m, Sunday, at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Atlantic Avenue and Seventh Street, will be the signing of the Declaration of Independence on a parchment scroll. The scroll will be put in a time capsule and placed in the pavement of the church patio on Thanksgiving Day. It will be opened on July 4, 2001.

Heshmatullah Vahdat, an Iranian who lived in Japan for 21 years, will speak Sunday, 8 p.m., at the Long Beach Baha'i Center, 944 E. Broadway.

Bellflower Church of the Nazarene, 17200 Clark Ave., will present an outdoor patriotic musical celebration, "I Love America," Sunday, 9 a.m.

"A Bicentennial Parade of History through Fashions," by Dorothy presented Sunday, July 11, at 1:15 p.m. at Trinity Lutheran Church, Eighth Street and Linden Avenue. Those wishing to attend a dinner before the event should make reservations today.

Every worshiper is invited to bring a bell to services 9 and 11 a.m., Sunday, at First United Methodist Church, Fifth Street and Pacific Avenue. A time capsule filled with photos and historical records together with prophecies and drawings by children will be dedicated. It will be opened in the year 2026.

"Praise the Lord and Give Thanks, America," a musical, will be presented by the choir Sunday, 11 a.m., at the Willow Street Church of God, 1455 W. Willow St.

Bicentennial observerance at Woodruff Community Church, 3908 Woodruff Ave., 9 a.m., will include the display and drawings for a quilt and 20 other artistic objects made by women of the church. The infant baptism of Nathan Douglas Pingel will utilize the ritual of his great grandfather's services.

The Girls Choir of Kamehameha School in Hawaii will present a concert of Hawaiian music Tuesay, 7:30 p.m., in the sanctuary of Los Atlos United Methodist Church, 5950 E. Willow St.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

Don't Want It Soft!

Anyone who knows anything knows that life isn't always easy. It can be filled with hard knocks and tough blows. But you can take one of several attitudes about a blow. You can fold and give up. You can be defeated. You can become bitter and angry. Or you can try to turn that blow into an asset.

Turn it into an asset? Yes, really! How will you ever lick a problem if you don't even try? A defeatist attitude never answers anything. When a difficult problem confronts you, never limit yourself to seeing the bad possibilities. Who knows — there may be tremendous opportunities in a rough problem if you look positively at that difficult situation and try to handle it.

I talked to a man who had successfully built up a fair-sized business over great odds and despite many difficulties. His story was both inspiring and fascinating. What was the secret of his success? He said it was the blows he experienced. "Adversity is a marvelous teacher," he told me; "Had I been pampered and prosperous all my life, I would have never become strong enough or developed know-how to meet my problems successfully."

It's a fact that too much pampering and prosperity can not only make Jack a dull boy, but a soft one and therefore a pretty unhappy one too! Remember the story of the baby princes who were watched over and coddled, surrounded by doctors, valets, and nursemaids? Heaven forbid the child should sneeze! The whole palace would be in an uproar for the child's health was an affair of state.

The Empress Catherine II of Russia writes in her memoirs that her little son, Paul, was "placed in an extremely warm room, swaddled in flannel and laid in a cradle lined with black fox fur. Over him was a coverlet of quilted satin, and over that was one of rose-colored velvet lined with black fox. Many times I saw him put to bed this way, with the sweat pouring from his face and his whole body, so that when he grew older, if he got in the slighest draft, he would catch cold and it would make him ill."

That poor little prince was destroyed with the wrong kind of care and the wrong kind of affection. Prince Paul wasn't allowed to move a muscle or do anything for himself, for fear that he might become overtired. He had to save his strength. It is sad indeed, for had the little fellow been allowed to use his strength, he would have grown into a strong man. He never had a chance to become anything but a weakling and so he was marked for life with the curse of failure.

Obviously this example may be extreme, but it is a fact that too much pampering either by self or others can make a person weak, chronically nervous, bored and unhappy. We may often think that things should be made a lot easier for everyone. But we had better not get too soft for that can lead to worse problems than difficulty, chief of which is the decay of strength.

The poet, Schiller said, "Genuine morality is preserved only in the school of adversity, a state of continuous prosperity may easily prove a quicksand to virtue."

It was Horace, the great Roman thinker, who said, "Adversity has the effect of eliciting talents which in prosperous circumstances would have lain dormant."

Never soften up, for there will come a day you will have to summon your strength. Meet life's problems sturdily all your life and you will handle problems OK.

Talks asked on merger

CHICAGO (AP) — The general board of the Christian Church (Disciples of Chirst) has unanimously approved resumption of unification talks with the United Church of Christ.

The 1.3-million-member Christan Church and the 2-million-member United Church had suspended union talks in 1966 to concentrate on a nine-denomination merger effort, but its slowed progress led the United Church recently to invite a resumption of the bilateral negotiations.

Anti-apartheid

NEW YORK (AP) — The Africa Committee of the National Council of Churches, citing the recent South African violence as highlighting the "brutally oppressive apartheid system," has urged the U.S. government to use diplomatic pressure to get South Africa to abandon its racial-separation policy.

Jews Hail Vatican's position

NEW YORK (AP) — Through the Synagogue Council of America, the three U.S. wings of Judaism have made their first official repsonse to recent Roman Catholic statements on relations with Jews — and call the new attitude heartening.

Taking note of the recent Vatican guidelines and the U.S. bishops' pastoral message on the matter, the council hailed church acknowledgment that an "anti-Judaic theology" had been at the heart of past hostilites toward the Jews, adding:

"In dealing with the old notion that the Jews were guilty of deicide, the pastoral letter makes a point of observing that the 'Jewish people never were, nor are they now, guilty of the death of Christ.'"

The council also commended the bishops for urging Christian understanding of the Jewish link to Israel — a bond which the letter says has pervaded Jewish "'writing and worship throughout the two millenia a longing for the homeland, holy Zion.'"

4th of July concert by famous band

The Los Angeles Congress Hall Band of the Salvation Army will give a Bicentennial concert Sunday, 6 p.m., in the First Baptist Church, Tenth Street and Pine Avenue. The band, founded in 1887, has appeared in the Hollywood Bowl, Rose Bowl, Los Angeles Music Center and for 45 years in the Tournaament of Roses Parade. It played for 110,000 in a Billy Graham rally. In 1971 the band made a well-received tour of the British Isles. Following the event there will be an old-fashion "social" of homemade ice cream and cake.

Antireligion crusade falters in Russia

By THOMAS KENT
Associated Press Writer

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Fifteen young Russians, led by their tour guide, paused by a papier-mache display at Leningrad's Museum of the History of Religion and Atheism.

The display showed a religious procession winding through the middle of a 14th century European village while stretcher-bearers carried off the bodies of villagers who had died of the Black Plague.

"It was thought that such religious processions would cause God to stop the plague," the young woman guide said with a wry smile. The visitors smiled, too.

"Of course, it didn't help at all."

FIFTY EIGHT years after the Communists took power, the Soviet Union is still campaigning to convince its people that religion is useless superstition.

The campaign is going "successfully," government propagandists say, but there is no complete box score to back the claim up. There are only scattered official assertions, such as one in 1973 that only 2 per cent of young Soviet citizens believe in God and another this year that at most 60,000 of the country's more than two million Jews actively practice their faith.

Just last year, Leningrad officials were alarmed to discover that only 61 per cent of schoolchildren surveyed had a "positive attitude" toward atheism, therefore could not be considered fully inoculated against religion.

THE MOST most common Western estimates are that the Soviet Union's 255 million people still include at least 30 million Russian Orthodox believers, 4 million practicing Roman Catholics, a million Baptists and 25 million Moslems.

The Soviet atheism campaign has a long and checkered history. A few enthusiasts started bulldozing churches immediately after the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution, but the state put a stop to that because it was causing resentment among the population and the buildings could be used for purposes other than religion.

The Communist Party waged a strong propaganda campaign against religion from 1925 to 1943, when dictator Joseph Stalin cut the effort off because he needed the support of churchmen in the war against the Germans.

The campaign was revived to an extent after the war and again in the late 1950s, when then Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev believed the country was on the brink of successfully molding the "new Soviet man."

Now, the antireligion campaign is again out of the national spotlight but remains active on lower levels.

The central press talks little about it, Communist leaders leave atheism out of their speeches and the weathervane theoretical journal Kommunist hasn't had a major article on atheism for a year.

Some speculation in Moscow links the low visibility of the atheist movement to the large amount of Western attention that claims of religious injustices here have received.

OTHER suggestions are that the Soviets are satisfied that religion is no longer a "mass problem" — despite the lines that form at churches at Easter and Christmas.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union's devout believers — "the unconvertible," propagandists of atheism say — claim pressure on them is as strong as ever.

They report difficulties getting religious materials, pressure to merge congregations and close churches and harassment of believers who try to pass religion on to their children — despite the Soviet Union's constitutional guarantee of freedom of religion.

"There is no religious literature and you can't even try to get it," says one young woman who is an active Baptist. "And the Russian Orthodox, their missal comes out every year in such small quantities that there's barely enough for one in each church."

MAY I HAVE A MOMENT OF YOUR TIME?
Dr. Kepner
Sunday Morning, July 4th, I am planning to preach "THE AMERICAN DREAM," a sermon I have delivered more than 40 times in churches, lodges, at service groups, and conventions. You will find it altogether appropriate for a worship service on the 4th of July.
Sunday Evening we will be privileged to have the Los Angeles Congress Band as our guests. The Band, organized in 1887 and having served continuously since then time, has appeared in many famous places for concert. We feel fortunate and are grateful that they will be with us this next Sunday Evening.
After the six o'clock service and after the Band Concert, we will have an Old Fashioned Ice Cream Social at which we will feature a huge Bicentennial cake with 200 candles. Plan to be with us. Commemorate the birth of our Country with us on the 4th of July!
Sincerely,
FRANK M. KEPNER, Pastor

"STAND FAST THEREFORE IN THE LIBERTY WHEREWITH CHRIST HATH MADE US FREE . . ."
Galations 5:1

This God-given freedom of spirit has been available to mankind throughout the ages. In 1776, our founding fathers must have realized this as they were inspired to claim their human rights. And this freedom is available today to all who turn to God for guidance.

To learn more about God's love for you, and the joy and freedom that come from such knowledge, the churches of Christ, Scientist in Long Beach would like to welcome you and your family to our Sunday services and Wednesday evening meetings. Your children are invited to attend our Sunday School where they will learn how a knowledge of the Bible can help them in their everyday activities.

was no way I could do it and take any money from George because you know that would be a thing that they could, uh, could nail on, you know, very quickly."

MAYER said he passed the project on to Kenneth A. Reynolds, a former Huntington Beach planning director who represented the landowners.

(Reynolds has said he has no idea why the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office, which handled the Mayer investigation, would consider the feasibility studies of the Carson project as an item of evidence.)

Coppedge: "He's (Reynolds) in it for Hart though, uh?"

Mayer: "He's doing it for Hart."

Coppedge: "Well, will (Richard) Gunnarson (Carson director of community development), approve that piece?"

Mayer: "Yeah, oh, that's all predetermined you know. . . . We worked it out. I worked it out with Gunnarson before I even went back to Hart and said that I have any interest.

"But then when it started with you, Hart was being investigated and all this other..., I just decided it wasn't worth it. So he's got the whole package where I would get some opportunity is for benefit personally is if later on down the line whoever takes the property over and develops it, does so in a manner that uh I could participate in where there was no, where George Hart was no longer involved in any way.

"IN OTHER words if he just separately represents the trust if the trust sell(s) it to a third party and I happen to have some involvement with that third party that's a different bag all together," Mayer continued.

Mayer, still on tape, urged Coppedge not to talk with Ken (Reynolds) at this point because "he is sitting on potentially a conflict of interest . . . not a legal one where he can, he can get any trouble, but he's supposed to be serving the consultants, serving the trust fund as a professional consultant."

Mayer said Reynolds could have no proprietary interest in the property but that "he'd like to end up owning the commercial site or a piece of the action whatever that piece might be, 10 per cent or 5 per cent or you know, whatever the traffic will bear and in so doing, uh, he'll split with me whatever the traffic will bear and in so doing, uh, he'll split with me later on down the line at a time when it's, uh, feasible for me to participate."

IN THE tape-recorded conversation, Mayer said he discussed the Long Beach city government investigations with City Councilman Wallace Edgerton.

Mayer claimed that Edgerton had a friend "involved in the FBI" and another friend who "works for the grand jury as one of its attorneys." These "buddies," Mayer said, had assured Edgerton that the investigations were over.

Mayer, describing Edgerton as a "swinger type," told Coppedge that Edgerton came to him "literally begging—it's pathetic—begging me to go out with him and fix him up and all this kind of ....which I am not doing, but I have met with him socially a couple of times."

(Edgerton has said he used Mayer's Marina Pacifica apartment to entertain dates on several occasions.)

MAYER said Edgerton expressed concern about "who to be friendly with in this city because of the rumors of additional indictments."

(Former City Councilmen Wayne Sharp and Bert Bond had been indicted, Sharp on a perjury charge and Bond on a charge of conspiracy to conduct an illegal gambling game. Bond has never come to trial.)

Mayer indicated that Edgerton questioned him about his (Mayer's) possible involvement and said he (Edgerton) was "playing it pretty cagey about developing friendships . . ."

Discussing Mayer's role as Long Beach planning director, Coppedge said Mayer handled the job differently than similar executives in other cities.

"In many communities the planning director is a—I mean, the planning director is kind of a factfinder and makes recommendations, but the ultimate body in terms of making the decision is the planning commission.

"IN CANDOR, I must state that condition does not obtain in Long Beach or did not obtain, and that the recommendations of Mr. Mayer were just virtually rubber-stamped by the planning commission. . . ."

Coppedge, asked if Mayer had absolute power over the success or failure of any substantial real estate development in the city, replied "without any question whatsoever."

Outlining the technique Mayer used to elicit bribes from the architects, Coppedge said Mayer would tell the architects there was a crisis in a development and he needed payment.

The crises would involve such things as density or plot plans and would miraculously disappear as soon as Mayer got his money, Coppedge claimed.

The transcript reveals that Coppedge told the grand jury that a representative of M. J. Brock and Sons, the firm which had planned to build a hotel and several restaurants in the Pacific Terrace project, proposed a payoff to Mayer even before Mayer had approached the architects about bribes.

COPPEDGE said Mayer had asked the architects if they knew developers "of substance," someone capable of taking on a project of the magnitude of the one proposed at Pacific Terrace. Coppedge and Ballance proposed Brock, a subsidiary of Insurance Company of North America, and Brock indicated an interest.

Coppedge said the man assigned by the Brock organization to negotiate with the city to obtain a lease on the property in Pacific Terrace, asked "what Mayer would expect, if anything."

". . .at that time I indicated that I wasn't aware of anything he would expect," Coppedge told the grand jury.

But the Brock representative suggested that a trip to Acapulco or Hawaii would be "a nice thing for all of his (Mayer's) efforts in behalf of the Brock organization," Coppedge said.

THE Brock development in Pacific Terrace didn't materialize, but soon after the conversation with Reddick, Mayer's solicitation of bribes from the two architects began.

Mayer indicated he wanted a landscape architect firm, in which he was a principal in at the time, to play a part in the Pacific Terrace project, Coppedge told the grand jury.

Then when the project didn't come off, Mayer approached the architects and said he could get other jobs for them and expected to be paid for doing so.

Coppedge said the first payment of $200 was made in December 1971 or January 1972, and the payoffs continued until Mayer's arrest last May 14.

Before that date, the architects testified, they paid Mayer more than $28,000. An additional $25,000 in Mexican gold pesos was in Mayer's possession when he was apprehended.

Smithsonian cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford signed a bill Friday authorizing appropriations of $1 million each for fiscal years 1978, 1979 and 1980 for the Smithsonian Institution.

Child trapped

Rescuers struggle with twisted metal of a car in which Fredrick Stark, 11, of 4517 Ironwood Ave., Seal Beach, was trapped for 45 minutes after an accident at 4:40 p.m. Friday at Katella Avenue and Lexington Drive in Los Alamitos. Police said the boy suffered only minor injuries. He was a passenger in a car driven by his mother, Solveig Stark, which was turning left when it collided with a car driven by Richard Pacheco, 20, of Garden Grove. No citations were issued pending further investigation.

detector test if that was desired, Platt said.

None was desired and the matter was dropped.

No more was heard of it until Friday when Deputy Chief Hill told Platt there had been an inquiry about it and that details would be made public, Platt said.

Platt said the incident had been resurrected to spotlight his refusal to join those who oppose Calkins.

"I can't stand poor losers," Platt said. "I wouldn't go along with the opposition for the simple reason that Calkins is a fine policeman, a real pro with a fine record. He would be an asset to any department. And much as I would have liked to see the job go to one of our men, he was the choice and I respect the choice and think we must abide by the selection process."

The opposition movement has also tried to enlist the support of the Police Officers Association but without success, Platt said.

"I don't understand what they think they will gain by all this," Platt said. "The decision is made. I can't imagine what anyone or any group could or should do to change it."

Chief Kortz, on a three-week vacation in a motor home, could not be reached for comment.

One group of wagons reached Philadelphia on Friday after a cross-country trek that started in California. "I wanted to see the country and I wanted to do something for it," said Tom Gabel, 17, of Redlands, who was a blacksmith on the journey. "You know," he commented, "it's still America, a place where people still think the way they used to and still have pride."

Philadelphia officials, however, were a little worried. Attendance was below expectations. Visitors to Independence Hall, where the Declaration of Independence was signed July 4, 1776, found there was no waiting line Friday morning. Normally, there's a 10-minute wait.

The number of marchers signed up for the city's official parade on Sunday dropped from 70,000 to 35,000 and some officials expressed concern that planned protest parades and warnings of huge crowds had scared people off. The union representing garbage collectors and some other city employes called a strike.

The festivities in the nation's capital officially begin today with the American Bicentennial Grand Parade down Constitution Avenue. It won't be the nation's largest parade — Los Angeles is claiming that it's eight-hour march will win that honor.

The President's Bicentennial schedule started two days earlier at the Capitol, with the opening of a centennial safe, a sort of time capsule sealed in 1876.

Here's a look at the rest of Ford's schedule: today, an "Honor America" entertainment at Kennedy Center; Sunday, church services, the Valley Forge speech and appearances at Philadelphia and New York; Monday, a visit to Thomas Jefferson's home, Monticello, at Charlottesville, Va.

New York City focused its celebration on the arrival of the armada. The parade of naval vessels up and down the Hudson River separating New York and New Jersey was expected to draw millions of viewers to vantage points in both states..

Mayor Charles Miller of Weehauken, N.J., said, "We anticipate as many as 200,000 people. We don't know if those antique railings (along the cliffs) can hold, and frankly we expect fatalities."

In Boston, the U.S.S. Constitution will sound a 21-gun salute — the first time her guns have been fired in 100 years. Earlier, light from the star Epsilon Lyrae — which is 200 light years away — will be focused through a telescope at the Mauna Kea Observatory in Hawaii.

The light will be focused on a sensor, which will trigger a switch transmitting a current to Boston to light the "one if by land and two if by sea" lantern in the tower of the Old North Church.

Another outer space Bicentennial spectacular didn't quite work as planned. The American spacecraft Viking I was supposed to land on Mars on July 4. But the proposed landing site was unsuitable and the touchdown has had to be rescheduled.

Canal defense needs outlined

WASHINGTON (AP) — A force of 100,000 men would be needed to defend the Panama Canal against an all-out Cuban-backed Panamanian attack, a State Department report estimated Friday.

In the absence of a new Panama Canal treaty, the United States "could not expect much sympathy from Latin American countries" that are partners in the Inter-American Treaty on Reciprocal Assistance, the report said.

NATO allies of the United States "would probably view a conflict between the United States and Panama as a bilateral or Western Hemisphere affair and not be disposed toward involvement," it added.

The report, which supports the idea of a new treaty and a "friendly and cooperative relationship with Panama," was made public by Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa.

The department said the report was drafted in consultation with the Defense Department and CIA.

DEATH PENALTY

In two rulings Friday, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the death penalty but restricted the states' power to make it mandatory punishment without considering circumstances of a case.

One ruling struck down laws in North Carolina and Louisiana which make the penalty mandatory for several crimes.

But death penalty supporters said they hoped the state death penalty law gives juries enough discretion in considering the facts of a case to make California fit within the high court's death penalty ruling.

"It is discretionary for the judge and jury to see if the circumstances of a case fit the criteria in the statute," argued state Sen. H.L. Richardson, a conservative Arcadia Republican who was a sponsor of Prop. 17.

If the state death penalty is overturned by a state court ruling, Richardson said he would wage another campaign through the Legislature or by initiative to reinstate the death penalty.

In his remarks at an El Monte news conference, Brown said: "I will observe the law as it is written and upheld by our courts."

He said if a case warranted it, he would use the clemency power vested in his office.

Death penalty supporters hailed the ruling, as expected, while foes saw the ruling as a grim setback.

"The death penalty is discriminatory and it provides no justifiable benefit to society other than the infliction of vengeance. I don't think it is government's business to be our official avenger," said Mike Callahan, assistant executive director for the American Civil Liberties Union in Northern California.

J. Anthony Kline, Brown's legal adviser, said that the decision "is going to have an adverse impact on the state Supreme Court's chances of overruling the death penalty, but it doesn't rule it out."

Deputy state Atty. Gen. William James, who argued before the U.S. Supreme Court that individual states should have the right to decide on the death penalty issue, said:

"From what I have heard, it sounds very favorable. Now I think we can go ahead with at least the knowledge as far as the U.S. Constitution is concerned that this form of penal sanction is permissiable."

Under the state death penalty, a jury must decide if the circumstances in a case fit the "special circumstances" described in the state law, such as murder in commission of a robbery.

Then in the penalty phase of the trial, if they find that the case does fit these circumstances, they then are required to return the death penalty against a defendant.

Richardson said that if the state law is overturned by the state court, "I am sure we are in a position to pass the necessary legislation or initiative to bring us into line with court decisons.

"I don't believe Californians would tolerate playing around with the death penalty in the sense of not imposing it. It's a very strong issue in this state. It's a gut issue in California."

Thirty-four states have enacted death penalty laws in the last four years and still have them on the books. Over half of them make death mandatory for specified crimes.

Of 630 persons who were on death row according to the latest count by The Associated Press, at least 43 were condemned for nonfatal crimes such as rape or kidnaping and robbery.

Congress has also passed legislation providing a mandatory death penalty for airplane hijackings resulting in loss of life. No one has been sentenced under this law.

Most major churches, both Protestant and Roman Catholic, as well as the three wings of Judaism have opposed restoration of the death penalty.

Some smaller conservative church bodies have supported capital punishment, but the predominant weight of U.S. religious organizations has gone against it.

American Roman Catholic bishops took a stand against it two years ago, following similar stands by a dozen individual Protestant bodies and the National Council of Churches, involving most major Protestant and Orthodox churches.

President Ford, former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter all have said that they approve of capital punishment in some circumstances. Carter and Reagan both signed capital punishment legislation into law as governors while Ford said recently he favored the death penalty under certain circumstances.

A Gallup Poll conducted in April found that more than 60 per cent of those polled favor capital punishment for murder. Gallup said the percentage was the strongest support registered in 25 years.

To Terry Medgebow, the Supreme Court undoubtedly had made the right decision in upholding capital punishment. To Charles Proffitt, who must die for killing Mrs. Medgebow's son, at least he finally knew his fate.

And there appeared to be little doubt the court ruling Friday upholding the concept of capital punishment for murders brings the court a lot closer to the thinking of most Americans. Polls have consistently shown strong support for death penalty for murderers.

"I want the world to know that the decision the court has made is the right one. If this will deter anyone else from killing, they had made the right decision. I feel very strongly about it. I am not talking about any one case or any one person," Mrs. Medgebow said.

Proffitt, 30, said, "I've expected it from the very beginning, to tell you the truth."

"At least we know what's going down," Proffitt said from his Death Row cell. "We know where we stand and we know what we have to do. I expected it."

Air conditioning key complaint in jails' study

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

Poor air conditioning in the Long Beach city jail was cited as a matter of "major concern" in the final report of the 1975-76 grand jury's jails committee, released Friday.

The committee said it understands that in the summer months temperatures at the jail on the two upper floors of the police building "rise to nearly unbearable levels which affect the performance and morale of staff as well as the attitudes of inmates."

The report also noted there are some minor problems in the gun locker area and in the multiple-occupancy, safety, and isolation cells which "can be easily corrected."

It noted previous grand juries had pointed out problems at Long Beach and other city jails, adding that the current panel felt "the problems of past years have not been corrected and are important enough to comment upon again."

Capt. Douglas Drummond, chief of the police department's jail division, was unavailable for comment Friday. However, Lt. Otto Olsen, chief executive officer of the division, and Acting Sgt. Delno K. Sheely, in charge of the jail Friday night, agreed with the report's observations on the temperatures.

"The floors they are referring to are the fifth and sixth," the lieutenant said. "The exterior walls are made of translucent glass that magnifies the heat, and on a hot day it can really be bad."

Both men said it would be "very expensive" to air-condition the floors and said they could only presume it is a budgetary problem the City Council will have to wrestle with sooner or later.

Olsen said he believed the problem relating to the gun locker and cells had been solved. However, he added, he couldn't speak with certainty without seeing the report.

"Inspectors objected to the gun lockers in the basement being inside the doors of the tunnel leading to the booking area, and we have moved them outside.

"The problems with the cells were minor, and I can't remember just how but they were solved after considerable correspondence with the state," he said.

Los Angeles' Parker Center also came in for criticism by the grand jury committee because of unsatisfactory air conditioning. The committee noted budget requests to air condition the jail area have been repeatedly denied since at least 1973 when the then-grand jury recommended acceptable air circulation be provided.

The Pasadena city jail, the committee said, is old and inadequate and the group urged the city to go ahead with plans for developing a major renovation of its jail facilities.

The committee also noted, Los Angeles' 77th Street station was "almost 50 years old, undersized, ineffective in operation and short of parking and storage space." It urged the city to expedite construction of a planned new South Los Angeles police facility.

County supervisors in conjunction with Sheriff Peter Pitchess were urged by the committee not to close down the Hall of Justice and Biscailuz Center facilities when the new addition to the county Central Jail is completed.

Closure at the two facilities would place unreasonably high demands on available bed space for the current inmate population and any sizeable increase in the population would force an overcrowding of Central Jail, the committee said.

It recommended the board use the Hall of Justice facilities to house about 450 male and female weekend inmates and 100 men and women on work furlough programs. The conversion could be done with only minor remodeling work, according to the committee.

The committee chose not to comment extensively on the Sybil Brand Institute for Women because of a class action suit by inmates there alleging improper conditions.

Citing overcrowding in holding cells in court buildings, the committee said efforts should be made to see that standards calling for cells providing 8.4 square feet per prisoner be maintained.

Under its general recommendation for law enforcement programs the committee called for development of inmate vocational programs of short duration and programs allowing inmates to continue their rehabilitation on the outside.

Noting that alcoholism has reached epidemic proportions, the panel strongly recommended that a "large financial committment be made to set up a sufficient number of detoxification programs and facilities to remove public inebriates from the criminal justice system."

Citing duplication occurring because of numerous municipalities with separate police agencies, the commmitte urged local authorities to pursue vigorously consolidation of special functions such as crime labs, homicide, narcotics, burglary and helicopter surveillance.

Supervisors also were urged to press for the establishment of a countywide "911" telephone system which would enable the public to obtain any kind of emergency service by simply dialing those digits.

'ATMOSAT AMERICA' LIFTS OFF AT RANCHO PALOS VERDES FOR WEEKEND TEST FLIGHT

By HERB SHANNON
Aerospace Editor

"Atmosat America," a 33-foot pressurized helium balloon carrying two Aerospace Corp. pilots, lifted off its launching site in Rancho Palos Verdes at 10:27 a.m. Friday for a weekend test flight.

Dr. Thomas F. Heinsheimer of Rolling Hills, the pilot, and Peter C. Neushul, a former Long Beach State University psychology student, are scheduled to conduct a 48-hour simulated smog-sampling experiment over the Los Angeles basin.

The flight was delayed 24 hours by unfavorable wind conditions Thursday.

The balloon is the same one used by Heinsheimer and Neushul on two previous flights this year, one of which carried them into Mexico, across the Gulf of California and back to a safe landing north of the border at Lukeville, Ariz.

Following the initial test flights, a new gondola of aluminum and fabric replaced the conventional wickerware basket in order to reduce weight by about 200 pounds. The lighter, lighter-than-air craft can fly at higher altitudes and carry additional scientific equipment.

On Friday, the Aerospace balloonists evaluated the balloon's ability to maintain desired altitudes. They also tested the efficiency of controlling their flight path by using on-board observations and weather data relayed by radio from Federal Aviation Administration facilities.

Today they hope to be flying east or northeast from the launch site at altitudes between 8,000 and 10,000 feet. By operating without intentionally venting helium, the crew will be able to measure the exact rate of loss of the gas due to any small leaks in the balloon skin.

Heinsheimer and Neushul will be in radio communication with an Aerospace chase vehicle on the ground, following the path of the balloon. They also will radio technical data and trajectory information to the Aerospace Control Center in El Segundo.

Next month the balloonists plan to start a series of flights in the "America" to monitor smog levels in the Los Angeles basin.

The current flight is part of an Aerospace program to develop a much larger unmanned atmospheric satellite (Atmosat) which will measure air pollution and other environmental phenomena at 60,000 feet around the world for durations of up to a year.

Aerospace Corp. provides scientific, technical and engineering services to government agencies. Sales last year totaled approximately $96 million.

His cue to theorize on dismantling

Pool-table theft gets fuzz on Ball

By BRAD ALTMAN
Staff Writer

When two antique pool tables were stolen from the 11th floor of the Omar Hubbard Building in Long Beach last summer, police investigators turned to Harold Ball for help.

Investigators went to Ball, 47, because he had repaired the two tables before their disappearance and he has been associated with the billiard-table business for 30 years.

In 1971 he became owner of the West State Billiard Supply Co., 33 Locust Ave. Before that, he was a partner in the store with his father, who bought it in 1946.

ON TUESDAY the City Council called for an investigation of charges that city employes stole items—including the pool tables—from the Hubbard Building before it was razed in April.

In an interview Friday, Ball said he went to the building last July to appraise the pool tables before they were to be be sold to the city's Recreation Department for its clubhouses. That's when they were found to be missing.

Ball estimates that one of the pool tables is worth no more than $1,000. The other, a Brunswick baby grand built between 1900 and 1920, may be worth as much as $2,500, he said.

Each table is 4 by 8 feet, a standard commercial size, and weighs 1,000 pounds. They have been described as of classic design, with ornate carved legs.

"They were dismantled," Ball hazarded. "To do that, someone must have used a special tool that we call an adjustable bolt wrench. It's an uncommon tool, normally owned by people in my business."

Ball said he had ideas on who could have stolen the tables but would elaborate no further: "It does no good to speculate. But whoever did it had to have spent some time around a pool hall."

Ball said he grosses about $100,000 a year from selling pool-table supplies. His name is an asset: "Sort of fits the business, doesn't it?"

West State Billiard is located in a 5,000-square-foot basement. Its access door, off Locust Avenue, is squeezed between two adult bookstores.

"I got a museum and antique store down here," he said, referring to the cluttered basement that has an ancient ambience. Customers come in and barter for the old, dusty chairs that have been in the room for decades.

The building was condemned in 1968, said Ball, adding, "Eventually with urban renewal I'm gonna have to get out of here."

The basement was a pool hall from the end of World War II until 1974.

BUT WHEN the Navy left town in 1970, "our walk-in business went from pretty good to nothing—in six months—and that's the truth. We turned in the billiard licen in 1974."

"I remember when there were half a dozen halls at the Pike and 20 along Anaheim Street between downtown and Joe Jost's bar."

Ball was graduated from the University of Southern California in 1950 with a business-administration degree.

"I planned to climb up the corporate rungs," he said, "but then my dad became ill and needed my help with the business."

HE LIVES in Los Alamitos with his wife of 20 years and two teenage daughters.

"I'm a rare bird," he said. "Where else are you going to find a college-graduate pool-table mechanic who likes Beethoven?"

Does he play billiards often?

"Not once in the last 25 years—and that's the truth."

L.B. department heads curbed on release of data

By ROBERT GORE
Staff Writer

Long Beach city department heads have been ordered by Acting City Manager Robert C. Creighton to restrict their contacts with the press and report all conversations with media representatives to his office.

The order also told the department heads to leave all comments on city policy to the manager's office. It was issued at a Thursday meeting of department heads, according to City Hall staff members.

The new policy came to light when an Independent, Press-Telegram reporter was told that his request for an interview with a department head would have to be reported to Creighton's office.

HARRY Fulton, the city manager's special assistant who watches over public relations, said, "We are not trying to be censors. I like to be informed, and there have been a lot of things coming out in the papers that I don't know about until I see it in print.

"We want department heads to converse with reporters," he continued. "If they (reporters) ask for facts—give 'em the facts.

"I just want to know what the reporters were told. The same information. That's all it boils down to," Fulton said.

But one high-ranking staff member assailed the new policy saying, "If we were running a respectable ship, we wouldn't be in the position of worrying about that. We shouldn't have to screen information."

CREIGHTON'S order also applies to issuing information to the public as well, said the staff member, who requested anonymity. A citizen seeking opinions on ordinances or other matters should be referred to the city manager, the source said.

If the interview requested by a reporter appears to inolve a major or in-depth topic, the session must be reported to Creighton's office in advance, it was learned.

"All policy statements are to be channeled through Harry Fulton," said Deputy City Manager Barney Walczak, who is in charge of personnel.

"Any comment with an overall (city) implication must come from the city manager's office, but this is not an attempt at muzzling," Walczak said.

"We are still allowed to comment within our areas of expertise," he added.

Walczak noted that Creighton was "trying to pull things together" following the recent events that have shaken City Hall, including the indictment of former Planning Director Ernest Mayer Jr. on bribery charges and the resignation of former City Manager John R. Mansell.

"It's the critical times that generated this," Budget Director James Phelps said. "That's what is on everybody's minds.

"Bob Creighton feels his office is being challenged by the public for not being frank, and he wants all of us to be candid," Phelps said.

"If the information requested is public information or the manager's position has been made clear" then the department head can comment, Phelps said.

Council OKs 5 agencies to run summer programs

Five local agencies have been approved by the Long Beach City Council to run recreation programs this summer for boys and girls aged eight through 13 years.

Individual allocations were $16,138 to the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities, $9,539 to the North Long Beach Neighborhood Center, $8,960 to Westside Neighborhood Center, $9,941 to the East Long Beach Neighborhood Center and $6,252 to Youth Development Project, Inc.

Acting City Manager Robert C. Creighton said the city had invited proposals from interested agencies under the 1976 Summer Youth Recreation Program grant from the federal Community Services Administration.

The number of agencies selected was limited to five, Creighton said, because it was felt a larger number would "fragment" available funds and jeopardize quality of service. The program will operate for nine weeks.

Arts fete highlights L.B. ceremonies

An arts festival involving more than 1,500 persons from 42 local organizations will be held today and Sunday in the Long Beach Civic Center to celebrate the Bicentennial and dedicate the new 14-story City Hall.

Formal dedication ceremonies for the City Hall will be held Sunday at 1:30 p.m. in the plaza on the north side of the tower.

The dedication of the new Main Library, on which construction is to be completed about Oct. 4, will take place in late October or early November, along with an open house for both the City Hall and library.

Entertainment this weekend will run continuously from 10:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. both days. The Recreation Department will supervise a children's entertainment area from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. both days.

Free public parking will be available in the Lincoln Park underground garage. Spectators at the arts festival and dedication ceremony should enter the garage from Broadway, eastbound between Cedar and Pacific avenues.

The public entrance to the City Hall plaza, where the arts festival and dedication will take place, will be from Ocean Boulevard between Cedar and Pacific avenues.

The festival is sponsored by the Long Beach Regional Arts Council, in cooperation with the Long Beach Bicentennial Committee.

Entertainment during the two days will feature music, drama, opera, dances and singing. The largest single event days will be Sunday at 3 p.m. when Alberto Bolet will conduct the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra and the combined choirs of five churches.

Neither the City Hall nor the Main Library will be open to the public this weekend.

Bids to prosecute Korshak fruitless

By SEYMOUR M. HERSH
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — More than 35 years after his activities in organized crime first came to the attention of the government, Sidney R. Korshak is now the prime target of a major federal investigation.

Officials said in recent interviews that the FBI was accumulating evidence on Korshak's alleged involvement in a labor racketeering scheme in Southern California.

So far, however, no indictments have been presented in the case. Indeed, Korshak's name has surfaced in connection with more than 20 organized crime investigations over the years, and he has testified or been subpoenaed to testify before at least six federal and state grand juries. But he has never been indicted.

Korshak's friends and associates have quoted him as boasting about the government's inability to produce evidence of criminal activity by him. "I've been investigated by more congressional committees than anybody," one associate recalled his saying during a 1968 business meeting, "but nobody's got anything on me."

SOME officials attributed the failure to convict Korshak to a lack of high-level commitment in the government to organized crime investigations and a chronic reluctance to seek the indictment of lawyers who represent underworld figures.

Officials said, however, that in recent months the Justice Department had begun a major reexamination of its efforts against sophisticated economic crime and labor racketeering, focusing on Korshak and a number of others.

Jay C. Waldman, deputy assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's criminal division, said in an interview that new emphasis would be placed on tracing the underworld's infiltration of legitimate business.

"Organized crime is no longer a bunch of characters hanging around ethnic neighborhoods," he said. "If you're talking about what the feds should be doing, it's going after the big-time criminals who are operating like most legitimate businessmen."

A SENIOR FBI official pinpointed the importance of Korshak to such an effort. He characterized Korshak as "the one individual who, I always believed, could blow organized crime wide open in Chicago, Las Vegas, New York and California" if he were convicted and granted immunity.

One FBI agent who has studied Korshak's links to the business world and to organized crime gave this summary of his role: "He's undoubtedly the best contact organized crime has in the United States today."

Korshak's shrewd methods of operation and his careful attempts to insulate himself from direct criminal activity undoubtedly account for some of his success in avoiding prosecution.

IN A series of interviews, however, a number of Justice Department officials and former officials saw the department's own bureaucratic weaknesses as the reason for its ineffectiveness against sophisticated economic crime.

G. Robert Blakey, a former department official who now directs the Institute on Organized Crime at Cornell University, described the "conspiracy of circumstances" that makes the prosecution of organized crime difficult: "manpower, talent, time, organization, lack of legal tools and resistance from politicians on state and local levels."

He added that the conviction of leaders whose activities are far removed from actual street-level crime — such people as lawyers, planners and money movers — requires "an enormous amount of grand jury time, prosecutors' time and cooperation between investigating agencies."

MANY federal officials are pessimistic about the prospect for convictions in such cases.

"If you're going to take on the Sid Korshaks," one lawyer in the department's organized crime division said, "you're going to have to commit one hell of a lot to it. Maybe if we committed the whole Federal Strike Force to it, we might be able to nail the guy. But there are four or five guys who are equally as important (in organized crime), so what are you going to do? It's just a matter of choosing up sides and smelling armpits."

6th in Series

This official and others argued that the Justice Department had traditionally given top priority to statistics — to maximizing the number of criminals investigated and successfully prosecuted. This policy, the officials argue, has led to numerous convictions of low-level and middle-level criminals at the expense of more complex and difficult white-collar prosecutions.

"IF YOU'RE going after someone who seems big to you but nobody else knows who he is," the lawyer said, "and if you strike out — and particularly if he has friends in high places, like a lot of guys do — then you've got a lot of problems."

This sense of frustration was echoed by Robert J. Campbell of Kansas City, Mo., a former Strike Force leader in the Justice Department. Campbell recalled breaking off in the early 1970s an investigation into a number of high-level organized crime figures, including Korshak.

"If you call yourself a prosecutor, then you've got to prosecute," said Campbell, who is now in private law practice. "You just can't sit there and study papers all day. We had to slide down" to less important people "and make some figures" — the statistics with which the department justifies its budget requests.

AN ADDITIONAL complication in the Korshak case, Blakey and others said, is Korshak's frequent citation of the confidentiality of attorney-client discussions during his interviews with law enforcement personnel. Under the law, the government cannot question a lawyer about his discussions with a client unless the client specifically agrees.

Korshak testified before a federal grand jury in the late 1950s that he had been asked for a "legal opinion" on a much-investigated contract between Tony Accardo and Premium Beer Sales Inc. of Chicago. The contract specified that Accardo was to be paid $65,000 annually as a salesman, although he had no sales experience and did not seem to do any actual sales work. The prosecutors theorized that the contract was part of a scheme to make Accardo's underworld income seem legitimate.

KORSHAK told the FBI, according to Bureau documents, that his role had been limited to studying the contract to determine "whether it was a good contract or not."

One Justice Department official recalled in an interview that the government suspected that "the idea" for the unusual employment contract had come from Korshak. But because he was able to cite the attorney-client privilege, the prosecutors could not question him directly.

When federal agents have approached him on various cases, according to FBI documents, Korshak has been deft at deflecting their inquiries. Sometimes he was belligerent, occasionally gracious and always adept at suggesting the extent of his influence.

AN AGENT had been ordered by a Senate committee to serve a subpoena on a Chicago hoodlum named Gus Alex, who was known to be a close Korshak friend, a federal official recalled. The committee's chief counsel was the late Robert F. Kennedy.

The Los Angeles police found that Alex had briefly lived in an oceanside villa near Los Angeles that had been leased by Korshak. The police also said that Alex had been driving an expensive convertible that belonged to Korshak.

The agent questioned Korshak, who explained Alex's use of his car and villa by saying that Mrs. Korshak and Mrs. Alex were close friends.

Korshak stalled when the agent sought to interview his wife about Alex's whereabouts.

"Give me a week," the agent recalled Korshak as requesting, "and I'll find him and give him my professional advice and come and answer the subpoena."

A WEEK later, Korshak urged the agent to call his wife directly, adding: "She's having dinner with Peter Lawford and his wife. If you want to deal with that, go ahead." Mrs. Lawford was a sister of Kennedy.

The agent informed FBI headquarters of Mrs. Korshak's whereabouts and requested permission to interview her at the restaurant. Headquarters told the agent to try to serve the subpoena later. It was served later in Chicago.

COLUMNIST WILSON BECOMES INTERVIEWEE

By JOE CLARK
Ridder News Service

PHILADELPHIA—Earl Wilson understood the situation. He'd been in the same fix many times. During his 33 years as a New York Post columnist, Wilson has interviewed thousands of personalities. Many were duds, people who talked but said nothing.

"What do I in a suitation like that?" Wilson said, repeating a question. "I want for the SOB to open up."

In this particular case, however, Wilson was the interviewee. And because of the columnist's busy schedule, the interviewer didn't have much time for him to "open up."

"Besides," Wilson smiled, "I'm a lousy interview."

OK. A pearl Earl's not. But he's not a hunk of glass, either.

Sinatra has filed a $3-million suit, charging the book will detract from his own biography, which he hopes to publish some day.

"He says the book is going to interfere with his," Wilson said, adding he started to write the book three years ago because "someone asked me to and I know his life as well as anyone in the field.

"I've known him for 30 years. Since I first saw him with Tommy Dorsey in Meadowbrook, N.J. I was always a great admirer of his. I still am," Wilson added. "In many ways the book is very complimentary to him."

Some people say the 69-year-old Wilson is too complimentary to too many people. In an article in the recent issue of New York magazine, Wilson is likened to a "toothless vampire" because he seldom criticizes people.

The description is correct, says Wilson.

"I'm not a vampire columnist. I'm not from the knock-knock school of journalism. I'm not in the knocking business. My business is making friends. Rapping people is not my way of doing a column."

Wilson noted some "knock columnists" have gone the way of the nickel newspaper, but he's still around and intends to stay "for a while."

Wilson takes umbrage with being tagged a "gossip" columnist. "I'm not a gossip," he says. "I have a news and personality column. Gossip is rumor. The material I use is factual. If I write a rumor, I say it's a rumor."

And despite the words of a West Coast columnst—"Columnists who make friends, lose readers"—Wilson's column appears in some 300 papers today.

Smile is something Wilson doesn't do much of. He's a small man (5 foot 6½ inches, 158 pounds), and doesn't come across as a person who has probably rubbed just about every elbow worth rubbing.

He comes across as modest, extremely quiet, sedate.

"I found out a long time ago you learn to being quiet," he said. "I could never understand how Walter Winchell got his news."

Summer reading

From among the choicest of the summer books:

The Baseball Encyclopedia: The Complete and Official Record of Major League Baseball. Macmillan, $25. Revised, expanded, up-to-date, and packed with an endless amount of information.

Airships: An Illustrated History. By Henry Beaubois. Illustr. By Carlo Demand. Two Continents, $35. Lighter-than-air craft, from the earliest designs (some shaped like birds or fish), to the present; the triumphs and the disastrous crashes.

Melville: A Biography by Edwin Haviland Miller. Braziller, $15. A superb new biography of a superb writer, showing the impact of his family life on his career.

Studies and Executed Buildings. By Frank Lloyd Wright. Prairie School Press, 12509 S. 89th Ave., Palos Park, Ill., 60464, $40. The famed Wasmuth drawings of the master architect, finally available between book covers; their influence in the first 25 years of the 20th century, especially on the modern movement, was incalculable.

Voices of the Civil War. By Richard Wheeler. Preface by Bruce Catton. Crowell, $14.45. An engrossing military history of the Civil War, based on participants' accounts of the land and sea battles.

Imogen: Imogen Cunningham Photographs 1910-1973. ($7.95). Imogen Cunningham: Photographs ($7.95). Both Univ. of Washington Press. One of the most remarkable of American photographers, Imogen Cunningham, died last week, aged 93. These two volumes of her work show the great artistry of her camera.

The Lives of Bats. By D. W. Talden & P.A. Morris. Quadrangle/N. Y. Times Book Co., $9.95. Bloodthirsty and shy; these are th vampire bats, whose ways are chronicled, along with those of many othjr varieties, in this fascinating book.

Hustlers and Con Men: An Anecdotal History of the Confidence Man and His Game. By Robert Bash. Evans, $14.95. They're the elitists, the real artists of the criminal world, and it's no come-on to tell you that this history of the con men (and women) is both entertaining and valuable.

The Art of Easter Island. By Thor Heyerdahl. Doubleday, $35. The man who wrote "Kon-Tiki" led a team of archaeologists to mysterious Easter Island, site of 600 giant, puzzling monoliths, and they discovered new facts about the giant statues. This big book about the expedition offers 336 pages of photographs.

The Parks, Squares and Mews of London. The Cottages and Castles of Ireland. The Rooftops of Paris. The Sidewalks of New York. The Canals of Amsterdam. Vienna: Coffee Houses and Palaces. Bobbs-Merrill, $12.95 each. The photographs (a welath of them in each volume), are grand; the texts are vivid. This year's best bargains in armchair travel.

PHYLLIS DILLER

By Mary Daniels
Knight News Service

Phyllis Diller agreed to talk about her 5-year-old face-lift, and even allow photographs to be taken, but she couldn't resist wisecracking in a tough voice to the photographer, "If you're looking for scars, baby, take an X-ray of my soul!"

With a complete lack of self-consciousness, she showed a small group of women her scars, or rather where they are supposed to be. By now, they are so faded they are difficult to find. She pointed to the area above the upper eyelid, then below the lower lids, to the area behind her ears, and then to the back of the neck near where the hairline approaches the ears.

"They literally redrape your face," she explained. "They bring your chin around and tack it up."

Do they make any "cuttings?" one onlooker asked.

Does it last? "It doesn't," she answered succinctly. "It's already drooping. The minute they finish, it starts dropping. Gravity is our main problem."

Will she do it again? "Sure, I will. I'll do it many times. I'll do it as often as I need."

Has the drooping changed any of her initial enthusiasm?

She does advice not having a face-lift before you really need it. "The longer you wait, the more years you can have it done over and over again when you really need it." The rate of droop, she added, depends on each individual.

What was the biggest exterior change? "I pay much more attention to how I dress and make up, to my clothing and my hair. I didn't care that much, before."

Does she feel a face-lift is worth the price? (Hers cost $4,000.)

"Yes. Because of a woman's attitude toward herself, it's the most important thing in her life. It regulates what you are going to be and do, and if you can change your attitude toward yourself with any device, I say GO."

The photographer asked for a profile. "The post office shot," Phyllis comments as she complies. "I have a great line: If you look like your passport photo you need the trip. Great? Ahahahahahaha," she emits that trademark laugh which is part chicken cackle, part machine-gun stutter.

"You name a spare part, I'm wearing it," she joshed, leading into another change which followed the face-lift. "You know I got my teeth done, too. My two front teeth were indented. Jackie (Onassis) has it, and so does Cher. When they took pictures it looked like I had two missing teeth. I got all the witch jobs with the nose and the teeth."

One day after the face-lift, "I woke up and found black marks at the top of my teeth. I went to my dentist and I told him, I've heard of black roots, but only in my hair.

"He explained that my lower teeth had been banging against my upper teeth for years and they were finally wearing away. He sent me to an orthodontist. I have young bones that can still be straightened."

As for the rest of her, although Phyllis deprecates herself as flat-chested in her act, she is anything but that. She nods when this is mentioned to her, explaining how she disguises her full figure with raglan sleeves, and jokes that she ought to emblazon across her front, "This space available."

"I'm gonna have a boob job, maybe," she announced.

What about a derriere lift? someone asked. She feigned surprise, and said, "I'm never gonna have that! Who cares? Once I'm leaving the room, I don't care what they think!"

But despite her clowing around, it's no joke that her face-lift has uplifted her image as well.

In a recent issue of Motion Picture magazine, Dr. Franklin L. Ashley, "one of the great experts in the world," named "The Ten Most Beautiful Women," and included Phyllis Diller.

"Do you believe it?" asked the attractive woman who has made a sight gag of her own appearance with wigs and props. "He's looking at bones," she decided.

But actually Ashley qualified his choice saying, "Her youth, beauty, and vitality keep her a top entertainer." He seemed to have looked more than skin deep, a great compliment coming from him, as he is the plastic surgeon who performed Phyllis' face-lift. (The head of the plastic surgery department at UCLA, he also repaired Ann-Margret's face after she smashed it in a 32-foot fall onstage in Reno two years ago.)

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY

Your birthday today: Finds you and the U.S.A. moving up to a higher level of consciousness, against resistance and problems (some of them self-made). Your urge to try imaginative new methods brings mixed results mostly beneficial. Relationships depend more on fundamental principals and less on personal superficialties. Today's natives are industrious, preoccupied with detail. Those born this year will be ambitious specialists seeking their place in history.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Early hours go smoothly. By evening you're into everybody's hair if you aren't careful. Don't be overly sensitive. Try for a sense of humor.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Like you, others are caught up in their own pursuit of happy experience. Give all space to move. Understanding keeps the peace and saves future prospects.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Set a limit on spending. Okay to buy inexpensive luxuries; long-use necessities should already be on hand. Enjoy diversity, don't insist on people joining in the same activity.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Avoid efforts to be spectacular. Just be yourself. Supply intangibles that make it possible to share today's activities with those you really care for.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): For a change, it's better not to have a large audience or conduct serious business. Minimize travel. Try to get some relaxation at solitary hobbies.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Indulge in comfortable old habits and pleasures, and let others have similar quiet enjoyment. If you avoid formal celebrations, little is said of it.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Where you made choices, stick to them; where you didn't, let nature take its course. Many so-called choices aren't really voluntary, being strictly limited.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An impulse to tease brings adverse reactions. You waste much energy getting the situation back to normal. If you're curious, candidly ask to be heard.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Social or official functions dwindle from projected importance. Avoid extreme thrift, but don't blow all your cash to get the most glamorous spot.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Leave business out of your program. Tact is essential; don't indulge in practical jokes. Get extra rest, and encourage others to do likewise.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Little is gained by compromise; nobody is satisfied. Go your route, and leave the way clear for others to pursue separate, ultimately clashing, goals.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Dropping out of the mainstream is an intriguing idea. With luck, perhaps you can achieve it for awhile. The choice is there awaiting your decision.

Instant, nationwide

Computered credit reporting network launched in L.B.

Designed to provide businesses anywhere, coast to coast, with instant business credit reports on existing and potential customers, the new service was activated by the National Credit Information Service (NACIS) from its headquarters in Long Beach.

Operated by TRW Business Credit Services for the National Association of Credit Management (NACM), the service will be available this month only to subscribing companies which have teleprinter terminals capable of accessing the NACIS computers in Anaheim.

Starting Aug. 2, all of the NACM's 40,000 members will be able to use the service to purchase business credit reports by contacting NACM-affiliated associations in 47 cities which also will have teleprinters linked to the central file.

"NACIS, which was developed in response to today's rapidly changing economic condition, represents the first major breakthrough in business credit reporting in more than 100 years," said James H. Holly, vice president and general manager of TRW Business Credit Services.

"For the first time companies will be able to instantly receive credit information on other firms that is comprehensive, highly accurate and totally objective," he said.

NACIS reports contain specific information on how firms pay their bills to suppliers and banking relationships, where available.

Details on open accounts, date of last sale, payment terms, recent high credit, amounts currently owing and past due amount's in 30, 60 and 90-day categories will be included, as well as a trend analysis of a firm's payment record for the previous six months.

The information is extracted from the automated accounts receivable data provided by contributing firms every 90 days. It is expected that approximately 2,500 firms eventually will be providing data on some 2,500,000 million companies.

L.B. oil concern to sell its assets

Ralph Edgington, chairman of Edgington Oil Co. of Long Beach has announced the company has signed an agreement to sell $47 million of its assets, including the capital stock of its subsidiaries, Sahuaro Petroleum & Asphalt Co. and Hercules Oil Co. of San Diego, to an affiliate of Buckeye Pipe Line Co., a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania Co.

The agreement and a plan of liquidation will be submitted for approval to the Edgington stockholders as soon as appropriate proxy material has been cleared by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The closing date of sale is scheduled Aug. 31, following which Edgington proposes to liquidate pursuant to section 337 of the internal revenue code. Consummation of the transaction also requires government approval.

Edgington officials said the facilities will continue operations under Pennsylvania Co. ownership if the deal is consummated.

The total amount available for distribution to stockholders will not be ascertainable until after provision has been made for liabilities. However, the company presently estimates that between $37 to $43 per share will ultimately be distributed to stockholders. Common stock outstanding — 1,666,174 shares.

Scientists attempt to harness fusion

By JOHN C. EAGAN

LIVERMORE (AP) — On a former cattle ranch 50 miles east of San Francisco, researchers are attempting to harness fusion — the energy source of the sun and stars — for generating clean, inexhaustible energy on earth.

"We've got a long way to go, but we've already come a long way," laser fusion research chief John L. Emmett told reporters this week on a tour of the University of California's Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

A key tool for the research, being conducted for the Energy Research and Development Administration, is the newly completed $3.5 million Argus laser generator.

Emmett said the Argus, a third generation laser generator covering space about the size of a football field, is capable of producing twice as much energy as all the power plants in the United States combined. Argus experiments began June 1.

A fourth-generation laser, called Shiva and 10 times as powerful as Argus, is under construction now at Livermore. The $25 million Shiva is scheduled for completion in October 1977.

Dr. Roger E. Batzel, head of the laboratory which has a $202 million budget and 6,000 employes' said Lawrence scientists are studying both lasers and magnetic confinement as methods to create fusion.

The concept is that heat from the fusion — a continuing series of tiny thermonuclear explosions — would heat a fluid, creating steam to drive electrical generators. Batzel said it appears possible that an experimental laser fushion power generating system will be operating by the late 1980s.

"My opinion is that the solution to our long-range energy problems may well depend on the success of either or both of these methods," Batzel said.

"We've got to pursue both options now to be sure we have one that works around the turn of the century. It's beginning to look like both will work — although we can't be certain. If both work, each may have novel complementary applications."

Emmett said advantages over present-day nuclear power plants include that fusion burns cleanly with no radioactive waste, core cooling hazards are not a problem, and the fuel is heavy hydrogen — almost inexhaustible on earth.

Some radioactivity could be expected from the plates surrounding the core, Emmett said. Those plates would have to be replaced periodically, but the radioactive disposal would be substantially less than with present nuclear generators, he said.

FTC in major tobacco probe

Business Week magazine has disclosed that the Federal Trade Commission has quietly launched "what promises to be the most intensive investigation of the tobacco industry ever undertaken."

In its issue of July 5, the magazine said that subpoenas have been served on the six major tobacco companies and that these demand that by July 15 all of the market research conducted by them during the past 12 years must be turned over to the agency.

The six companies served are: American Tobacco Co.; Brown & Williamson Tobacco Co.; Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.; P. Lorillard Co.; Philip Morris, Inc.; and R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

Business Week said tobacco industry officials have no confidence in either the objectivity or confidentiality of the FTC probe and are claiming that the voluminous materials sought are literally impossible for them to produce by the federal deadline.

"In addition to market research, the FTC has demanded copies of every advertisement prepared by the industry during the past decade. The agency will also examine, for the first time, the various promotional events the companies sponsor — music festivals, auto racing, and tennis tournaments," Business Week said.

IT POINTED OUT that while company executives are simmering over the subpoenas, they are closely watching several bills in Congress, including one introduced by Sen. Gary Hart (D.-Colo.), that also could disrupt their operations. "The most devastating bill, in the eyes of the tobacco companies, is one that creates a health tax based on the tar and nicotine content of cigarettes," Business Week said.

The publication said further that tobacco men fear the FTC "undoubtedly will join in the effort to regulate tar and nicotine content. There also could be recommendations to bar advertising in print media with female and youthful audiences. Others could be to exclude all cigarette advertising that depicts scenes of models frolicking in festive surroundings, or ads that attempt to leave the impression that certain cigarettes are safer than others."

Company officials are claiming they can not meet the FTC's deadline. At Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp., the industry's third biggest, a spokesman says the documents demanded would make a stack 483-feet high. R. J. Reynolds, the giant of the industry, says the scope of the subpoena represents "thousands of manhours" and one ad agency, which handles only two of the 135 brands on the market, claims that to comply would mean turning over 250,000 pages of documents.

Business Week said the FTC subpoena calls for "all documents, including but not limited to marketing, advertising or consumer surveys, experiments, or other research, prepared by or for the corporation or any other party between Jan. 1, 1964, and the date upon which return to the attached subpoena is made."

CARSON MAY GET NEW BANK

By BOB ANDREW
Staff Writer

Attempts are being made by a group of South Bay business people to form a state-chartered bank in Carson with an initial capitalization of $2 million.

That information became known with a champagne party at the Ford dealership of Don Kott, one proponent of the Carson City Bank, to celebrate the completion of documentation for the charter application.

"The city of Carson was gracious enough to let us use its VIP mailing list which starts with President Ford and runs down to the members of the city's Bicentennial committee," said another proponent, Kathrryn T. Burns, Palos Verdes Penninsula realtor and businesswoman.

Others involved in the proposal are Carson businessman John Peoples; David Isa, a Torrance certified public accountant; John M. Mills, a Los Angeles businessman and 20-year teacher of economics at El Camino College; and attorneys Anthony John Ward and Robert Gaunt, both of Torrance.

Capitalization for the project would come from sale of 200,000 shares of stock at $10 per share with each of the directors committing up to $75,000 and outside investors limited to less than five per cent of the stock each. Minimum purchases of 50 shares are proposed with a maximum investment of $10,000 each for non-director stockholders.

The economic feasibility study prepared by Ruegg Research Associates points out that the need for an independent banking operation in the Carson area received the highest level of endorsement in 1973 when the United States comptroller of the currency approved the formation of Harbor National Bank in the same general location — the vicinity of the Carson Mall at Avalon and Del Amo boulevards.

That approval was later suspended because of problems with the directorship of the proposed bank.

"Few areas, on balance, can claim such an extensive list of compelling economic and market factors — as well as philosophical and other reasons — which support the establishment of a proposed commercial banking operation," the Ruegg report declares.

The report identifies a prime banking area with a population area of 79,080 within the city or 94,104 including nearby unincorporated areas.

In addition, Carson has a very extensive industrial community and a rapidly growing retail-commercial community, according to the report.

This area is now served by only five banking institutions, which means an average population of 15,684 per bank if Carson City Bank is approved, as compared with an average of 6,649 in Los Angeles County and an estimated 5,560 per bank statewide.

WEEK'S TRANSACTIONS

Mild gain restores balance

Stock market stays even

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, down 7.94 on Thursday, rebounded 5 points to 99.84, closing out the week exactly where it stood at the previous Friday's close.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about an 8-5 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, came to 19.61 million shares as of the close in New York.

Three — DuPont, Union Carbide and Allied Chemical — were bouncing back from a sharp selloff Thursday that was attributed to reports of analysts' negative appraisal of the group and Du Pont's comments on its dividend plans.

The fourth, Anaconda, jumped more than 3 points on word of plans for a merger of the company with Atlantic Richfield.

Arco shares rose a fraction.

Analysts said investors interpreted a decline in the money supply reported late Thursday by the Federal Reserve as a good sign for the interest rate outlook.

On a less favorable note, the government reported Friday morning that the unemployment rate rose from 7.3 to 7.5 per cent in June for its first increase since last September.

But White House spokesman Ron Nessen maintained that the upturn was largely the result of "faulty" calculation of seasonal influences. And he said administration economists still expected the rate to go below 7 per cent by year end.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose .52 to 104.11, and the NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks added .26 to 55.57.

Alcoa lost more than a point. The company announced plans for a 5 per cent price increase on some types of aluminum used in making beverage cans.

Robintech, among the most active American Stock Exchange issues, rose more than a point. The company said it had developed a new manufacturing process that would reduce its costs by more than $3 million a year.

Business Briefs

New housing starts in California increased sharply in May to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 188,000 units, the Bank of America reports. The increase was 23 per cent more than April starts and 50 per cent more than the same period last year.

Union Pacific Corp., which has paid dividends on its common stock 76 consective years, declared a quarterly dividend on its common of 70 cents a share, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 7.

Trusting Tom Hartman ends season of trauma unmarked

By Lee Winfrey
Knight News Wire

Mullavey plays Mary's husband Tom, a factory worker and ex-baseball player. Both of these characteristics were drawn from Mullavey's own past.

"That's the joy of working for Norman Lear," Mullavey said in Los Angeles. "He lets you put yourself in the character."

Lear, TV's most successful producer of situation comedies, created "Mary Hartman" last year as a satire on soapy operas. The result was stunning: "Mary" — earned rank with "Saturday Night Live" and "Rich Man, Poor Man" as one of the three brightest new programming innovations of the season.

The warm-up jacket and baseball cap that Tom Hartman wears on the show are familiar attire for Greg Mullavey. Mullavey's father, who had the same name, coached the old Brooklyn Dodgers from 1959 to 1968. The younger Mullavey used to work out with the Dodgers frequently, taking infield practice with them.

"Fernwood, Ohio, the scene of "Mary Hartman"," is modelled on real-life Lordstown, Ohio. The site of one of General Motors' biggest auto factories. Mullavey gained perspective on that kind of place by youthful work, first in a window frame factory, and later in a plant that made ball bearings.

Mullavey said he has never been troubled by sexual impotence, though, an affliction that befell Tom Hartman in one of the show's most-discussed plot developments last season.

"I've gotten letters from men," said Mullavey, "who said they were impotent with their wives because of their wives' increased sexual agression. They wrote thanking me for portraying the problem."

Mullavey is visibly very proud of his show. "It's part of an English course at Yale," he said. "A professor made it required viewing. He calls it a modern House of Atreus."

In Greek tragedy, the House of Atreus was smitten by almost ceaseless disaster. In a typical plot line, Clytemnestra murdered her husband Agamemnon, and then was slain in revenge by her son Orestes.

Looking forward to "Mary Hartman's" second year this fall, Mullavey said, "The only thing I've heard is that they're going to give me a couple of girl friends. So I guess we (Mary and Tom) will probably separate for a while. The plan is to give us every possible marital conflict."

Mullavey said the show will make no explicit use, however, of the recent arrest of Louise Lasser, who plays Mary Hartman, on a charge of cocaine possession. That's too bad, for Mullavey's explanation of how Ms. Lasser got arrested sounds like a plot line straight out of "Mary Hartman."

"Louise had gone to the boutique (where she was arrested) to buy a present, a doll house, for the wardrobe girl," Mullavey related. "Somebody had put some cocaine in her purse four months before as a present, and she had completely forgotten about it."

New character for Nancy Walker

By JIM O'BRIEN
Ridder News Service

"My husband has been heard to say I'm as funny as a cry for help."

That's Nancy Walker's response to the question of whether she is as funny at home as she is hilarious on the tube. The question did not really need to be asked because it was obvious during a Hollywood interview that Miss Walker is one of those comediennes who find making people laugh is a very serious business.

Miss Walker will star in a new situation comedy series for ABC next season, "The Nancy Walker Show," in which she will play a Hollywood talent agent whose Navy officer husband, at sea during most of their marriage, suddenly retires and returns home.

Miss Walker's character is also the mother of a hapless daughter who has given her mother three grandchildren and has a fourth on the way. It is evident in the pilot show that Miss Walker plays a character totally unlike the Jewish mother in "Rhoda."

"I told them in this show I wanted to have a W. C. Fields attitude toward young children."

Does she feel that way about youngsters in real life?

"I like them when they get to be 18 and have jobs and can hold a conversation."

How does she feel about chicken soup?

"Well, I'll never give that up."

Miss Walker is giving up her supporting roles in "Rhoda" and "McMillan and Wife" now that she has her own show.

"I'm doing one more 'Rhoda' for next season. I was amazed when Fred Silverman (program chief at ABC) told me it was all right with him if I continued in 'Rhoda' but it would be just too much work."

The actress will continue to do commercials.

Someone asked how she felt having the responsibility of her own show rather than being a "second banana."

"I never use that expression. I've always worked hard and I expect to do the same in my own show."

The new series follows the highly popular "Laverne and Shirley" on Tuesdays but is opposite the equally popular "MASH" on CBS. Does that worry her?

"I don't worry about things like that. All we can do is work hard and do the best show we can manage."

There is a gay character in her show, an out-of-work actor living in her home and acting as the agent's secretary.

Miss Walker said the Norman Lear production firm had consulted a gay organization on the character.

"We will handle that with good taste and understanding. I don't expect any complaints."

Millions of her TV fans may not know or remember that during her long career on Broadway she was a first-rate singer and dancer as well as a comedienne.

U.S. recants on Olympic withdrawal

Associated Press

A top official of the U.S. Olympic Committee retracted a threat to pull the Americans out of the 1976 Olympic Games Friday.

The change of heart came after the official learned that the International Olympic Committee would not remove its sponsorship of the Montreal Games.

There had been reports that the IOC would not sanction the Games, leaving it as a mere international competition, if the Canadian government carries out its edict that Taiwan athletes can compete, but not under the Nationalist China flag.

Don Miller, executive director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said Friday night: "If we understand to be a fact that Lord Killanin has said the Games will be official Games, then we believe we will participate in the Games."

But Miller then added the following qualification: "provided there are no other restrictions placed on the Games."

Miller said if more political footballs are tossed around threatening the integrity of the Montreal Olympics, "We're prepared to give our next step very careful consideration."

But "careful consideration" is much different than a walkout, which the USOC threatened over a non-political issue that surfaced Thursday.

The USOC, after hearing reports that the IOC might declare the 1976 Games "not to be official," said such an action would "seriously question United States of America's participation." This statement was part of a telegram sent Friday from USOC president Philip O. Krumm to Roger Rousseau, president of the Montreal Organizing Committee.

"Since the president of the IOC has clarified his position that the IOC will not withdraw recognition, sanction or patronage of the Games, there should be no longer a question of U.S. team participation in Montreal."

Killanin, due in Montreal on Monday to prepare for IOC executive board and full IOC sessions beginning July 10, said from Lausanne on Friday that "press reports regarding proposed sanctions in regard to the world Olympic and medal presentation according to IOC rules and regulations attibuted to an officials of the IOC are incorrect.

"The position (of the IOC) is that the decision of the Canadian government is under consideration by all concerned."

Canada's decision to bar Nationalist China as a nation was made public after a letter dated May 28 was sent to Killanin in which Mitchell Sharp, Canada's acting secretary of state for external affairs, said that the Canadian government would not allow Nationalist China's athletes to compete if they use the team designation that includes the word "China" or if they display the Nationalist Chinese flag.

Sharp said in his letter to Killanin that Canada "discourages all official contact with the Republic of China" and does not want to compromise its China policy formulated after official ties were established with the Peking government in 1970 and relations were severed with Taipei.

Henry Ksu, Nationalist China's representative to the IOC, criticized the Canadian government for its attempts to bar his nation's team. "It is ridiculous for the Canadian government to back out from its written undertaking to allow entry of all national Olympic delegations, thus acting contrary to the IOC rules and the Olympic spirit."

Padre fireworks dazzle Dodgers

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO — There were fireworks before Friday night's game at San Diego Stadium and there were fireworks afterward, but unfortunately for the Dodgers, there were few fireworks in between.

They lost again to the fast-closing San Diego Padres, 6-3, who now trail the Dodgers by a half-game in the National League West and are only five behind first place Cincinnati.

The Dodgers suffered their sixth loss in seven tries against the Padres, the one-time doormats of the division. It is the Dodgers, not the Pads, who are playing pitifully poor baseball at the moment.

The events of Thursday evening, when the Dodgers missed signs, let San Diego runners advance on the bases and failed to advance themselves, prompted the manager to address his team. Apparently, he pulled few punches.

"We were out-hit, out-pitched and out-hustled," Alston said following the closed-door session, referring to the lethargic 5-3 loss to the Padres Thursday night. "We're going to get out-hit and out-pitched once in awhile but there's no excuse for not hustling."

His words lasted until the first inning.

The Dodgers got a runner to second but no further in their half of the first, then contributed an error by Dave Lopes and another bobble by centerfielder Lee Lacy with three Padres hits collected off loser Don Sutton and, just like that, San Diego had a 2-0 lead.

The Dodgers struggled to tie the score, getting two of the runs on Steve Yeager's eighth homer in the fourth. Two innings earlier they managed two triples and a single off former teammate Alan Foster, yet settled for one run.

"The thing that worries me is that we haven't played well for several days," said Alston. "All we can hope for is that the Reds go into a losing streak so we can stay close until we come out of this thing. If we don't, then we don't deserve to win it."

The Dodgers' woes began five weeks ago, just after they had won 23 of 27 games, jumping 13 games over .500 to lead the Reds by 2½ games. They are only 16-22 since then, and have lost seven games in the standings.

He is now under .500, 7-8. In his last three starts, one of which he won, he's surrendered 24 hits and 14 earned runs in 18 innings, a 7.00 ERA.

"His stuff appears to be as good as it ever was," Alston said of Sutton, "but he's been battling to find his rhythm or groove or whatever you want to call it."

After the Dodgers got even at 3-3 in the top of the fourth, the Padres' Doug Rader homered to lead off the bottom of the fourth. San Diego got two more runs before the inning ended on three singles and a passed ball.

He failed to last four innings against the Reds in his previous start, and in the prior outing didn't survive the first.

Ali is 'much improved,' but remains hospitalized

SANTA MONICA (AP) — Kicks by Antonio Inoki in a much-criticized World Martial Arts match in Japan last week have sent heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali to a hospital with blood clots around his knees.

The clots were found to be superficial Friday, but Ali must remain hospitalized.

"Medical tests revealed superficial thrombi around both knees with no evidence of any deep vein thrombosis at this time," said Dr. Robert Kositcheck.

Ali suffered the injuries last Friday in Tokyo, where he fought Inoki in a 15-round martial arts match. Inoki's principal attack was kicking.

Dr. Kositcheck said there also was severe anemia produced by bleeding into the leg from the vessels in the leg, but Ali's over-all condition was less serious than first believed.

"Ali is much improved and responding well to treatment," said Jeremiah Shabazz, the champion's administrative assistant.

He described the treatment as medication and elevation of the legs.

"There is nothing worse than damage to the muscles and quite a few blood vessels busted," Shabazz commented. "I anticipate Ali will be out of the hospital in a few days."

Ali made a reported $6 million for his dull bout with Inoki in which the Japanese wrestler fell to the canvas and started kicking at the beginning of each round and Ali landed only six blows during the entire fracas.

"They said the match wasn't for real but this proves how real it was," said Angelo Dundee, the boxer's trainer. "Inoki laid on his butt kicking just to survive. If he'd have stood up, the champ would have landed one and we'd all have been out of there.

"The pain was so bad that we put ice packs on them (Ali's knees) between rounds just so he could go back in there," Dundee said. "But Inoki kept kicking and Muhammad took a bad rap from writers who said he was faking it."

The 34-year-old Ali is scheduled to defend his boxing title in Yankee Stadium on Sept. 28 against Ken Norton in another multi-million dollar affair.

Hassler suffers 17th loss in row

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — Andy Hassler must be wondering when the law of averages are going to work out in his favor.

The beleaguered Angel left-hander dropped his 17th game in a row, a 6-5 decision to the Minnesota Twins, despite a brilliant six-inning relief stint during which he permitted the Twins only one run and three hits.

But that one run—coming on a two-out walk to Butch Wynegar and successive singles by Lyman Bostock and Craig Kusick in the fifth—was enough to beat him and move him within two of the league record for consecutive failures on the mound.

Down 5-0 after two innings as Rod Carew hammered a two-run homer and doubled in another run off an ineffective Don Kirkwood, the Angels blitzed back and scored five times in the third inning which featured a game-tying three-run homer by Bruce Bochte.

Vic Albury, who replaced starter Jim Hughes for the Twins, went the final six innings and checked the Angels on two hits, thereby ending the visiting team's mini winning streak at three games.

But Friday the Twins were playing games of another sort.

Alarmed by the increasing number of people who are turning their backs and their bank accounts on his Minnesota Twins, vice-president Clark Griffith decided Friday it was time to sell, sell, sell.

Evert winner in 'battle of minds'

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Chris Evert came in from the center court at Wimbledon where she had battered the ball for two hours to beat Evonne Goolagong, 6-3, 4-6, 8-6 and said she had won "a battle of the minds."

Bjorn Borg of Sweden and Ilie Nastase of Romania meet in the men's final today.

"I think more than actual physical tennis it was a question of who was going to hang in the longest and who was going to rise to the occasion the best," Evert said after winning her second title in three years. "I played smart tennis when I had to on the big points. I don't think Evonne played the big points as carefully as I did."

It was the first time that Chris had ever beaten Evonne on grass and she acknowledged that had been weighing on her mind.

"Before, when I played Evonne on grass, I just gave up," she said. "I knew I'd be thinking about this match all year. I wanted to put everything I had into it. I just never gave up. I stayed in there and tried to guts it out.

"After winning a couple of important points, I looked across the net and told myself 'Hey, she's human.' That helped."

Chris said that she felt the capacity crowd of 17,000 banked around the green and brown grass of the center court had been with her opponent. "But it didn't matter to me," she said. "I knew my family and my friends were with me and that's all that mattered."

At one point she said she glanced up to the box where Billie Jean King and Rosemary Casals were sitting and they gave her the "go" sign to lift up her spirits.

Goolagong said: "I don't think either of us played the best match we've played against each other. I think I just tired out at the wrong time. She was tougher at the end."

Evert said she was determined not to rush her shots, and walked around the baseline and bounced the ball to calm her nerves and give herself a chance to compose her thoughts.

Evert won $17,500 for the victory, with the opportunity for much more from endorsements and other off-court income. When asked how much the title might be worth to her, Evert had a quick answer. "I don't care."

'Red Machine' falters—drops two

Associated Press

Cesar Cedeno's tie-breaking, two-run double in the eighth inning led the Houston Astros to a 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds and a doubleheader sweep Friday night.

Cedeno's 14th-inning, two-run homer lifted the Astros to a 10-8 victory in the opener.

Despite the double loss, the Reds maintained a 4½-game advantage over the Dodgers, who dropped a 6-3 decision to the San Diego Padres. The Padres closed to within 5 games of Cincinnati in the National League West.

In other National League games, pinch hitter Bill Robinson hit a bases-empty home run in the 10th inning to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 10-9 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies, the New York Mets won their eighth game in a row with a 2-1 decision over the Chicago Cubs, the St. Louis Cardinals blanked the Montreal Expos 3-0, and Atlanta beat San Francisco 7-2 behind ex-Dodger pitcher Andy Messersmith.

Joaquin Andujar, 4-4, a former Reds' farmhand, outdueled Fred Norman as he beat Cincinnati for the third successive time. Norman, 6-2, permitted only five hits while suffering a rare loss at Riverfront Stadium. He is 28-7 lifetime at Riverfront, and 10-4 vs. Houston.

Ed Herrmann doubled with one out in the Cincinnati eighth and was replaced by pinch-runner Skip Jutze. Jutze advanced to third on Andujar's infield single and Enos Cabell walked to load the bases. After Rob Andrews dribbled an infield grounder that forced Jutze at home, Cedeno doubled to rightfield with the ball dropping in front of Ken Griffey's outstretched glove.

NATIONAL

Houston had taken a 1-0 lead in the fourth when Cedeno doubled, moved to third on Watson's infield grounder, and scored on Leon Roberts sacrifice fly. The Reds tied it in the fifth when Rose singled and went to second on an error and scored on Mike Lum's single to center.

Houston trailed 4-1 before rallying to tie the first game with three runs in the seventh, two on a double Jose Cruz.

The Astros went ahead 7-4 in the 11th, with Jerry DaVanon delivering a two-run triple. But the Reds scored three times in the bottom of the 11th as Johnny Bench, who had struck out four times, tied it up with a two-run, two-out double.

Foster extended his hitting streak to 17 games for a career-high with a two-run double in the first inning. He sat out the nightcap with an aggravated shoulder.

Robinson's leadoff homer that gave the Pirates their victory spoiled a determined rally by the Phillies, who overcame an early 8-2 deficit with the aid of a grand slam homer by Dick Allen and three ninth-inning runs.

Robinson's 11th homer of the season came off losing relief pitcher Gene Garber. Robinson batted for Pirate reliever Ramon Hernandez, who yielded the third Philadelphia run of the ninth on Terry Harmon's single that tied the score at 9-9.

Messersmith pitched a six-hitter and belted a pair of run-scoring singles, pacing Atlanta to its victory over San Francisco.

Bubbling with enthusiasm

Just give Dusty Walter a mouthful of bubble gum and a starting block and he's ready to dust off his competition. The 7-year-old sprinter from Albuquerque, N.M. says, "My coach yells so loud it hurts my ears, but it's worth it when you win something." Perhaps a gold medal in Moscow, 1980?

Royals pound Oakland, 8-5

Associated Press

"Its going to be spring training all over for me, I guess," said a disappointed, philosophical Vida Blue. "But I'll get it."

The Oakland lefthander made his first appearance Friday since June 11 and was shelled for six runs—four in the first inning—by the Kansas City Royals, who went on to an 8-5 victory over Blue and the A's.

AMERICAN

Blue's inactivity, ordered by A's owner Charlie Finley after his $3.5 million sale of Blue and two other players was voided by baseball commisioner Bowie Kuhn, obviously didn't have his rhythm in the early going.

"More than anything I was worried about my control. So what do I do? I throw everything right over the middle of the plate and they hit it all over the field," said Blue.

After falling behind 5-0 in the second inning, Blue settled down to retire 10 batters in a row. He was charged with six runs on seven hits and was relieved in the sixth.

"After the first couple of innings he was throwing as well as anyone can throw," said Oakland manager Chuck Tanner.

"No, I definitely did not consider taking him out in the first. What am I going to do? Take him out after one inning the rest of the year? The only way he's going to come back is to pitch."

George Brett's single began the four-run first inning against Blue (6-7), but the Royals needed John Mayberry's steal of home and towering home run to nail down the victory after blowing their early five-run advantage.

In other American League games, Catfish Hunter won his 10th game of the year as the New York Yankees blasted the Cleveland Indians, 7-1; the Boston Red Sox blanked the Milwaukee Brewers, 3-0; the Chicago White Sox shaded the Texas Rangers, 1-0, and the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Detroit Tigers, 2-1.

The triumph, coupled with Texas' 1-0 loss to Chicago, stretched the Royals' lead over the second-place Rangers in the American League West to four games. Defending champion Oakland is third, 9½ games behind.

Chris Chambliss slammed a three-run homer and Lou Piniella added a two-run blast in the New York conquest of Cleveland.

The victory ended New York's losing string at three games and moved them seven games ahead of the second-place Indians in the American League East.

Hunter, who improved his season record to 10-7, gave up six hits, including George Hendrick's 13th home run in the second inning.

Dick Pole and Jim Willoughby combined on an eight-hit shutout and Bobby Darwin homered in the second inning to lead Boston to its victory over Milwaukee. Darwin clouted his third home run of the year well into the left-field bleachers for the only run the Red Sox needed.

Bart Johnson maintained his mastery over Texas as the White Sox hurler blanked the Rangers on five hits. Johnson has a 7-0 career record against Texas.

Oldham signs

DODGERS

He is reported to be experiencing arm trouble but, as Alston said, "I don't know what he's throwing up there, but it doesn't make much difference if you don't hit it."

DODGER DOPE: Unbeaten Rick Rhoden shoots for his eighth win in a row tonight at 7 when the Dodgers and Padres continue their home-and-home series in Dodger Stadium. He'll oppose Dave Freisleben (6-2). A fireworks show will follow and a sellout crowd is expected . . . Sunday afternoon the Padres' 14-game winner, Randy Jones, will start against Tommy John . . . Bill Buckner's hitting streak was snapped at nine when he went hitless three times and walked Friday night . . . Reggie Smith, in rightfield after missing two games because of his sore shoulder, explains the injury this way: "The right shoulder is a muscle problem; the left shoulder is something else that I'd rather not advertise in order to keep it from the opposition."

How they scored

PADRES FIRST

With two out, Davis singled. McCovey singled, Davis taking third, and when Lopes threw wild to the plate Davis scored and McCovey went to second. Winfield singled, scoring McCovey. Rader struck out. Two runs (one earned), three hits, one error, one left.

DODGERS SECOND

DODGERS FOURTH

PADRES FOURTH

ith two out, Rader homered to center, his fifth. Kendall singled. Hernandez singled. Foster got an infield single to third and when Cey threw wild to first for an error, Kendall scored and Hernandez went to third. Hernandez scored on a passed ball. Grubb struck out. Three runs (one earned), four hits, one error, one left.

PADRES SIXTH

Twins defeat Angels

"We need you and you need the fun," is the campaign slogan. Griffith did not say how much the Twins, not renowned for their magnanimity, are investing in the promotional arena but he did say it would not be enough to buy Joe Rudi.

At the same time, Griffith, son of owner Calvin Griffith, declared that the Twins were dedicated to the proposition of remaining in the Twin Cities, where rumors have abounded in recent years that ownership was casting about for greener pastures.

The Twins celebrated this declaration with their one-run victory over the Angels Friday night but there weren't many celebrants detected in the stands.

Only 6,235 showed up on a faultless summer evening — nary a cloud in the sky and temperatures in the high 70s.

"We've emphasized winning and losing so much, people have forgotten how much fun it is to come to the park," the young Griffith said in his best Cal Worthington manner:

"We figured the quickest way to get the greatest numbers into the park was the broad spectrum of the television medium," he went on.

So people like Rod Carew, Roy Smalley, Butch Wynegar and Dave Goltz can be seen daily on a commercial saying things like, "It's more fun to play where there are people there to watch us."

"This is a bold step for us," Griffith said. "It's contrary to our earlier philosophies."

Those philosophies were rather basic. Put a team on the field, open the gates and wait to be enriched.

The marketing program was decided upon two weeks ago in the midst of another dismal year at the turnstiles for the Twins. With American League attendance up 13 per cent and the major league total 1.2 million ahead of last year, the Twins find themselves 25,000 below last season's pace, which was the worst in the majors. Including Friday, they have played 34 home dates and have yet to reach the 300,000 plateau.

"I hope," winked Griffith, "that I have an easier time selling the product than I did selling the idea to my dad."

To which a Minnesota reporter snickered and said, "Yeah, I come out to the park every day and laugh myself silly."

ANGEL ANGLES: Nolan Ryan threw briefly on the sidelines Friday and prounounced himself fit enought to face the Twins this afternoon...Ryan missed one turn with what he described as a "catch" in his right elbow, the first problem he has encountered since undergoing surgery on the elbow last September...Ryan's opponent will be his former sidekick in the Angels' starting rotation, Bill Singer...Billy No-No is 2-2 with a 4.65 ERA since joining Minnesota in the Bert Blyleven deal...Bobby Bonds, his average at a season low of .268, was rested Friday night until he was called upon to pinch-hit in the seventh inning and stayed in the game...Speedster Dave Collins was forced out of the game in the five-run Angel third when he pulled a groin musle in his left leg running the bases.

How they scored

TWINS SECOND

ANGELS THIRD

TWINS FIFTH

EVERT WINNER—

The two-hour duel in the hot sun was far from being a classic tennis match. More points were lost on errors than won by positive strokes.

But it boiled to an exciting climax. The crowd cheered and countercheered as the players missed their chances with victory in sight. The final was in doubt until Evert's final, cool winning lob.

Evert, president of the Women's Tennis Association, told reporters she will defend her title next year only if the All-England Club meets WTA's demands for equal prize money with the men.

Goolagong, whose attacking net play has made her a favorite with the Wimbledon fans, was pinned back for most of the match and scored with fewer volleys than usual. Evert hit deep, and the Australian seemed overcautious.

In the crucial 13th game of the final set Goolagong led 40-30 on service, but finally lost the game with a terrible backhand that landed among the crowd. That made it 7-6 for Evert.

Brian Gottfried and Raul Ramirez won the men's doubles title, defeating Ross Case and Geoff Masters, 3-6, 6-3, 8-6, 2-6, 7-5.

Williams hurls 1-hitter

Jack Jernigan led off the seventh inning with a single that spoiled Stan Williams' attempt at a no-hitter but the Long Beach Cardinals lodged an easy 11-1 Connie Mack victory over Motor Patrol Friday night at Blair Field.

Jernigan eventually came around to score, wrecking Williams' shutout as well. The Cards improved their record to 9-0 with the offensive help of Kevin Miller (2-for-3, 3 RBI) and Tim Bjelland (2 RBI, 1 run scored).

The Douglas Jets scored six runs in the seventh inning to rally for a 7-6 win over Lakewood in the second game.

Singles by Rick Diffine, Chris Clark and a sacrifice fly by Scott Spehar were the key hits for Douglas.

Olympic Village: What hath fear wrought?

By STAN HOCHMAN
Knight News Service

He carries an automatic rifle slung over his right shoulder. He walks, slowly, exactly six feet away from a 12-foot chain link fence. The Sherbrooke Rd. traffic grumbles and hisses beyond the fence.

The XXI Olympiad does not begin for another 15 days and the soldier has already worn a path in the thick grass. The path is narrow. Now, it is light green, like his shirt.

There is the scent of fear at the Olympic Village, pervasive as the nasty smell of fresh paint. You cannot chase the smell by opening windows. You open a window and you look out and there is that Canadian soldier with his automatic rifle walking that path of trampled grass.

The light green of Canadian troops, the dark-gray of State Police, the powder-blue of city cops, that's the color scheme for the XXI Olympiad, colors muted by sadness, pastels darkened by tragedy.

"Nothing's gonna happen this time," Bob Ranson said.

"Nothing's gonna go wrong. You watch and see. We got 300 police in this building alone. Twelve hours on, twelve hours off. Seven days a week. No days off from now 'til it's over.

"I'll tell you how it's gonna work," he said. "Look down there, in the parking lot. The bus comes in with the athletes, it pulls in there and they jack it up.

"They search underneath the bus. The soldier on board, he's got a long rod with a mirror. He can check in the roof of the bus to make sure no one's up there.

"The bus pulls in to a check point. Everybody goes through the metal detector. Everybody files through that clump of trees there for one more search. No one, but no one, except police, state cops and the soldiers may carry a gun.

"The athlete won't mix with the public if his event is in the stadium or the swimming place or the velodrome.

"They walk out the door and go down a tunnel, come out the other side of Viau St. down another tunnel, and out the other side of Sherbrooke, and into the stadium."

What hath man wrought? An Olympiad with athletes crammed like rabbits in depressing little warren-like rooms, barely blinking at the sunlight before tiptoeing into tunnels on the way to run and jump and throw.

Or, if they ride the bus to a distant game site, hunkered down in their seats while an armed guard scans the traffic for terrorists.

"It's better this way," Ranson said. "Better to have a soldier on the bus than have an athlete sitting there, scared, wondering what might happen."

The scent of fear ... what will it do to the runners, the jumpers, the throwers? It is not something you can measure the way you could measure the thin oxygen in Mexico City.

Nor can anyone forecast what the cramped ugliness of the Olympic Village will do to performances in the XXI Olympiad.

Twelve athletes to a two-bedroom apartment, skittish as race horses. Thin walls barely muffling the grumbles in the next apartment. One man's stereo invading another man's silence.

Short, narrow beds. The mayor claims the village will be a place "of residence, where comfort which is less important, will give way to a living humanism and continuous animation."

Twelve men to a shower. Who knows about living humanism, but the situation calls for continuous animation.

The apartments are dumb little boxes barren of privacy because the corridors are on the outside and people will be walking by, peering into windows at all hours.

Escape from this wretched environment won't be easy. Slow, small elevators groan down from 17, 18, 19. Capacity is 16, but that's 16 jockeys. Athletes on the upper floors are doomed to endless waits or leg-knotting walks.

The memories come pounding back. The Olympic Village in Munich, building 31, the bullet-shattered door, the blood stain on the sidewalk that would not be scrubbed away.

The wind swirls about us on the roof. It is thick and damp with the threat of rain. I pray for Bob Ranson's vigilance and for the soldier who walks that solitary path six feet from the fence, and for the athletes who will be living in those joyless cells.

...and the winner is Russia (says Russia)

MOSCOW (AP) — A top Soviet sports official predicted today that his country will again walk off with the most medals in the Olympic Games.

"There is every reason to believe that Soviet athletes will win in the unofficial team qualification at the Montreal Olympics."

He pointed out that the Soviets set a record in Munich in 1972 by winning 50 gold medals.

He predicted that the United States and East Germany will give Soviet athletes the greatest challenge. He said the Soviets are pinning their hopes on those sports in which his country has consistently done well: wrestling, gymnastics, weightlifting, shooting, fencing, canoe and kayak races, modern pentathlon and team sports.

Hunt grabs early Grand Prix pole

LE CASTELLET, France (AP) — Ferrari's domination of Formula One racing faces its first clear challenge of the season in the French Grand Prix Sunday.

Britain's James Hunt, returning to top form in the Marlboro McLaren, grabbed the provisional pole position in the opening qualifying sessions Friday from Ferrari and world champion Niki Lauda of Austria.

The six-wheel Tyrrell of France's Patrick Depailler pushed Lauda's Swiss teammate, Clay Regazzoni, into fourth spot. The top six for the day were completed by cars remarkably improved since the early season races — Brazil's Carlos Pace in the Alfa-Romeo engined Brabham and Mario Andretti of Nazareth, Pa., in the JPS-Lotus.

The Ferrari drivers may have been slightly disconcerted when their morning practice times were disallowed as front brake cooling ducts were ruled illegal and had to be hastily changed. They will have a chance to try for an Italian-red front row in the final qualifying session today.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Davis Cup postpones draw

WIMBLEDON, England — The Davis Cup ruling committee, in disarray after the resignation of the United States and the withdrawal of Britain and France from the 1977 tennis competition, has postponed the draw for next year's tournament.

The draw was scheduled to be made today at the All-England Lawn Tennis Club but will not be held until July 29 at headquarters of the International Lawn Tennis Federation in London.

It was believed that other nations might be rethinking their future status with the Davis Cup in its present form, and there was no certainty all nations which had originally sent in their entries were sure they wanted to play.

U.S. has 'pat' win formula

HAMILTON, Ont. — Pat Roberts and Pat Head scored 14 points each as the United States women's basketball team remained undefeated in the pre-Olympic tournament with an 89-73 victory over Cuba.

The top two teams in the tournament earn Olympic berths and Poland and Bulgaria share the No. 2 position after the Poles scored an 83-76 victory Friday.

Suddenly, Ozark is brilliant

"I haven't changed. I'm like I've always been," the Philadelphia Phillies' manager replied as the two met before the Pirates and Phils kicked off a four-game weekend series.

Ozark, a former Dodger third base coach, may be the same but his team isn't. Philadelphia has been the major leagues' hottest team all season and entered the Pirate series with a nine-game lead in the Eastern Division.

Though on top now, Ozark has not always been popular. His skills as a manager have been frequently questioned by fans and the media, he was severely criticized last season when he told a writer he didn't realize his team had been eliminated from the division title race the night it happened, and earlier this season he nearly came to blows with a writer in the Philadelphia clubhouse.

But Ozark maintains that he's still the same.

"I haven't changed in my social life, I haven't changed in my feelings toward people and I don't want to change regardless if we win this thing or not."

BRIEFLY: Holy Spirit High of Absecon, N.J., the United States' schoolboy rowing champions, stroked their way into the semifinal of the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup Friday. They defeated England's Hampton School by two lengths and face Tabor Academy of Massachusetts today. . .Five Americans scored victories in the U.S.-USSR junior meet in Russia: Michael Kee in the 100 meters (10.0), Tony Lee Darden in the 400 (46.8), William Martin in the 800 (1:51.4), long jumper Larry Doubly (24-8) and Allene Parker in the women's 100 (11.5). . .Approximately 30,000 last-minute visitors to the Olympic Games expected to arrive without reservations will be able to find accommodations through 15 special information booths at Quebec entry points, the Quebec Lodging Bureau said Friday. . .More than 1,000 athletes have moved into the Olympic Village and although they have voiced some complaint concerning their accommodations, the prevailing attitude is one of confusion rather than discontent. There has been little complaint about the food, but conditions are crowded and lacking in privacy. Furthermore, the Village handbook is printed in only two languages — French and English. . .Norwegian King Olav V was denied a handsome 73rd birthday gift when he placed third behind the Australian yacht Arunga and the American Sundance during the sixth day of the world championship yachting races in Hankoe, Norway.

Cal McLish: $150 a day...once a month

Knight News Service

NEW YORK — I'm listening to Cal McLish in the Brewer dugout the other day, and I'm thinking how funny it is that we older guys brag about our early deprivations. It's one thing to say that today's athletes are spoiled by the big buck—the quick buck, which they are, a good many of them—but it's another thing to wear poverty on your sleeve, like some badge of honor, to brag about having been cheated.

"I signed my first contract with the Dodger organization," coach McLish was saying, so that Danny Frisella could hear it, and Don Money, and the other beneficiaries of our affluent society. "It was a minor league contract, because I wasn't supposed to make the Dodgers, but it was a war year, and there I was, pitching in the bigs at age 18.

"I relieved a few games and then I remember Leo Durocher sending Cholly Dressen over to tell me I was gonna start."

The way Dressen broke the news to the kid was this!

"I can't," said McLish.

"You can't what?" said Dressen, startled.

"What! You got paid yesterday, didn't you?"

"Yeah, but I paid my hotel bill with it."

"Where you stayin'?" said Dressen.

"At the St. George with the other guys," said McLish.

"How much you makin'?"

"Not much!" screamed Dressen.

"Hundred-fifty," whispered McLish.

McLish laughs at the 1944 memory, laughs with a certain pride. Dressen, he says, went to the Dodger manager with the story, and Durocher went up to the office to see Branch Rickey.

"Do you know you have a pitcher on this ball club who I'm starting, and he's making one hundred fifty dollars a month?" Leo said.

"What's his name?" said Rickey, playing it blank.

"McLish."

"Well, he's only 18. Suppose we make it five hundred," said Rickey.

Before the year was out, Cal McLish found himself in the Army. "I learned that $150 was pretty good," he said in the Brewer dugout. "The Army paid me $52 a month!"

I suppose if there's a moral there it's that the players started their union not much later.

NEWS ITEM: Cash Gifts From Colleges, Says Schoolboy.

We all know, or suspect, the improper use of gifts, cash and otherwise, to build collegiate powerhouses in sports. The NCAA tries to police it, finds an occasional violation, slaps an occasional wrist, and goes on to the next violation. Obviously, the punishments are not sufficiently severe, or why would the violations continue so prevalent? Why would coaches and universities, these institutions which devote courses to ethics, continue to take chances by bribing high school kids to come with them?

One thing struck me about this latest case: The player involved is as ethically inconsistent as the pedagogues who are offending his sense of morality. The youth is screaming at the top of his lungs that something should be done to stop this evil, but he refuses to finger the culprits who lined his pockets with the filthy lucre.

COMMENTARY

"Young athletes are being treated like animals at an auction," agonizes Karlton Hilton, a much-coveted basketballer from Norfolk High. "I had always heard this sort of thing, but I didn't believe it till I saw the money. It should be stopped."

He said that in one breath. In the next breath, young Hilton said: "I'm not going to give any names."

How uninvolved the outraged can become. If he truly wants it stopped, let him supply names and amounts and cite instances. Let him help the NCAA put a stop to the tawdy commercialism he so deplores.

Until he does, there is something that rings not quite true about young Karlton Hilton, just as something else he says:

"The money usually would be slipped under the door of the motel where I was staying. I'd just pick it up off the floor and put it in my pocket. There wouldn't be any name on the money or identification. You just can't go to the hotel clerk and ask them to page somebody asking if anyone lost an envelope with $150 in it, can you?"

No, but you know what school invited you, and put you up at that motel, and you can give them back the money, and then you can tell the NCAA who did it.

If you haven't spent the money by then, you can.

Hawaii gets reprimand by NCAA board

KANSAS CITY (AP)— The University of Hawaii has been reprimanded and censured for violation of National Collegiate Athletic Association rules, the NCAA Committee on Infractions announced Friday.

The action resulted primarily from involvement of some members of the school's basketball squad in a television commercial for a Honolulu automobile dealer. Another factor, the NCAA said, was the university's failure to enforce NCAA rules, permitting four players to compete in one game while they were ineligible.

The NCAA said it also found that two basketball squad members received expenses during a team trip not permitted by NCAA regulations.

Sprinters vie in Hollypark Express today

Shirley's Champion, back in the form which earned him three Hollywood Park stakes victories two years ago, will face a field of six smokin' sprinters today in the $32,850 Hollywood Express.

The 5½ furlong dash kicks off a three-day Bicentennial racing card at Hollywood Park, a schedule that features the $81,950 American Handicap on Sunday afternoon and the $50,000 Cortez Handicap in a special Monday racing program.

Joining Shirley's Champion in today's featured eighth race will be some of the fastest thoroughbred steeds in the West—False Prophet, Oriental Magic, Sporting Goods, If You Prefer, Cherry River and Sawtooth.

A victory will be worth $19,350 to the winning owner and Shirley's Champion would like nothing better than to equal his performance of 1974 when he won the race in track record-equalling time of 1:02 1/5.

Given a rest by trainer Bobby King late last summer, Shirley's Champion made his '76 debut five weeks ago at Golden Gate Fields in the five-furlong grassy All-American Handicap.

ON SUNDAY, Ancient Title, one of the most popular Western campaigners since Native Diver, will try again to win his first grass race in the American Handicap.

Three of Ancient Title's challengers hail from the powerful stable of Charlie Whittingham—Causasus, King Pellinore and Riot in Paris.

With six starters, the race will gross $81,950, of which $48,200 will go to the winner.

TULSEA, with Francisco Mena aboard, held off a late charge by Minnesota Gus Friday to win the $12,000 Rincon Purse. Tulsea carried 120 pounds in the event for 2-year-old colts and geldings, and returned $8.20, $3.20 and $3 after holding off Minnesota Gus by three-quarters of a length.

Expect 900,000 at tracks

Holiday races draw crowds

Associated Press

More than 900,000 persons are expected to turn out for the three-day holiday activities at horse race tracks across the nation this Bicentennial weekend.

If the similar three-day Memorial Day weekend is a reliable past performance, they'll wager in the neighborhood of $90 million at the flats and the trots.

The $111,000 Cornhusker Handicap at Ak-Sar-Ben highlights the thoroughbred card Saturday. On Sunday, the $100,000 American Derby at Arlington is the headliner. To climax the big weekend, Forego, the two-time Horse of The Year, goes in the $100,000 Suburban Handicap at Aqueduct on Monday.

Master Derby, beaten only a neck by Forego in the Met Mile at Belmont May 31, is favored in the Cornhusker. The 4-year-old son of Dust Commander is top weighted at 125 pounds in the 1⅛-mile stake that drew a field of nine. The others entered include Neilbueh and Bold Trap, each assigned 119 pounds, Sharp Gary, Dragset, Fiftieth Star, Methdioxya and the Jack Van Berg entry of Pondelli and Shiney Sun.

Other stakes on Sunday, in addition to the American Derby, are the $75,000 American Handicap at Hollywood Park, the $40,000 Grey Flight Handicap at Aqueduct, the $30,000 Caesar Rodney at Delaware, the $20,000 Bicentennial at Suffolk and the $15,000 Independence Day Handicap at Longacres.

Forego will lug 134 pounds in the second leg of the Handicap Triple Crown, the Suburban, on Monday. Other stakes that day include the Juvenile at Ak-Sar-Ben, the Monmouth Oaks, the Stars and Stripes Handicap at Arlington, the Cortez Handicap at Hollywood, the Americana Handicap at Caaalder, the Fort McHenry Handicap at Pimlico, the Independence Handicap at Keystone, the Mayflower at Suffolk, the Parlo at Delaware and the Bicentennial Pageant on the night card at Atlantic City.

AQUEDUCT— Pantomime closed with a rush along the rail and won the $20,000 Channelette Purse Friday. The 4-year-old, ridden by Jorge Velasquez, carried co-top weight of 117 pounds over six furlongs in 1:10 2/5 to score by a neck over Hooray Hooray. Video Babe was third. An outsider in the betting with the crowd of 18,195, Pantomime returned $13.80, $6 and $3.40. Hooray Hooray paid $4.60 and $3.40, and third place Video Babe returned $3.

PIMLICO— Shaneoruski, a 17-1 longshot, won the feature race Friday by a length over Radio Commercial. The winner took the early lead and held on for a 1:11 4/5 score in the six-furlong dash. He paid $36.80, $19.40 and $5.40.

MOMOUTH PARK— Royal Fleece posted his first grass triumph in scoring by a half-length over Family Doctor in the feature race. He paid $9.60, $4.60 and $4 after covering the 1 1/16 miles in 1:45 1/5 under 112 pounds.

ARLINGTON PARK— Miss Cigarette set a fast pace from the start to win the $22,600 La Petite Stakes by five lengths over Fancy Gambler and Don't Cry Barbi in the field of 11 two-year-old fillies. The winner paid $4.20, $3.20 and $2.40.

SUFFOLK DOWNS— Smiling Faces won Friday's featured eighth race, covering the six furlongs in 1:11 4/5 and paying $8.60, $3.80 and $2.60.

KEYSTONE— Miss Gallant Dae scored a three-length triumph in a six-furlong feature Friday and paid $3.80, $2.40 and $2.10.

MARGRET JENINE showed no early speed, rallied wide into the stretch, made a steady gain and nailed SIREN SONG at the wire. The latter raced on her own courage while content to be off the pace, rallied in the middle of the track to get a slim edge between calls and just failed to hold. VICKI JONES took hold at the quarter pole to rally into a wall of horses, took up to break stride then found room too late.

MAHERAS broke cleanly to get a clear lead on to the main track with little need of urging, went to the middle of the track in the better footing, responded after entering the stretch and held. RAISE TIP T, in the middle of the track, had a mild bid through midstretch and made headway to the finish. ALBERT H B broke alertly, dropped off pace and hung in the drive.

Scratched—Neat Claim.

TULSEA broke alertly to be close to the leaders from the outside into the far turn, rallied steadily through mid stretch to move clear then was all out while drifting in the final strides to hold over MINNESOTA GUS. The latter needed time to find his full stride, rallied from the outside to finish fastest. I'M A ZIPPER took the lead from PALOPODIUM soon after the start, responded in the drive but was not good enough. VIBRANT GLOW used the rail and hung. POSITIVENESS fell back steadily after the break and raced on the rail through the stretch. PALOPODIUM was urged at the break to hold a slim edge and faltered. RUN'N PRINCE had his head turned in the early running.

Scratches.

Good bet at Los Alamitos

Cooper boasts a 'full house'

The Independence Day is part of the Bicentennial celebration at the track with the $10,000 Double Bid scheduled to complete the weekend of quarterhorse racing on Monday night.

Cooper has vaulted to the top of the trainer standings at the current 82-night summer season and his status doesn't figure to suffer any in the 350-yard Independence Day dash, saddling favorites in each division of the race for 3-year-olds.

Vim And Vigor and Danny Cardoza continued their "love" affair that began in August at Ruidoso Downs in the rich All-American Derby Friday night when they become the fastest qualifiers for next week's $93,000 Vessels Maturity.

The richest running daughter of Go Man Go never trailed in the 440-yard dash as she posted a three-quarter length triumph over longshot Alachic and heavily-favored Little Blue Sheep.

Vim And Vigor turned in a blistering 21.61 timing—the fastest ever run in a maturity trial or finale, bettering the 21.7 record set by Charger Bar in 1972—while dashing to the second division victory.

Just one more little gift for The Cowboy

To Gene Autry, it seems reasonable enough that he asks only one more thing from his sashay through life before he rides off into the sunset one last time.

Admittedly, Autry is a man who has seen the elephant and heard the owl but he would ask this one favor of the fates — an American League pennant.

The Cowboy, as he is known on the boulevard, is not an undeserving soul. He is in favor of motherhood and the Salvation Army and against dope and prostitution and never walked past a tin cup in his life.

In his movies, Gene always put the boff on the bad guy and never kissed the heroine on screen least the young buckaroos got the notion that one thing leads to another.

BUD TUCKER

Neither has Autry been an undesirable owner. Since becoming proprietor of the Angels, he has always kept his infield scrapped and his outfield mowed and his seats dusted.

The man at the gate never fails to say, "Welcome to Anaheim Stadium" and the bartender in the stadium club pours an honest shot and the suggestion boxes are emptied regularly.

SO IT IS, then, you bestow your blessing when Autry asks this one little item. After all, there are far less deserving guys who have had several American League pennants while Autry has never had a single one, which is all he asks.

The closest The Cowboy ever came was in 1962. The Angels, with a strange collection of infants and codgers, were in first place on the fourth of July and finished a strong third.

As the ensuing years sped by, your hopes for Autry's pennant diminished steadily. The other day, they vanished.

What was all the more sorrowful, The Cowboy seemed to throw up his hands in despair.

Reluctantly, but in all honesty, Autry was required to admit that his present ball club is so bad it could not be helped by the acquisition of Vida Blue, Rollie Fingers, Joe Rudi and Gene Tenace.

As you know, Charles O. Finley, the Oakland philanthropist, aware of The Cowboy's yearning for a championship, offered the foregoing assortment to Autry. The package would have been delivered F.O.B. Anaheim for $4½ million, or thereabouts, a small price to pay for a pennant.

"You are my friend," Charlie told Gene, tearfully, "so I give you first shot."

"It would not put us into instant contention," was Autry's mournful reply, and you detect a tone of terrible finality.

FINLEY LATER proved he was not putting Autry on. He tried to unload Rudi and Fingers to the Boston Red Sox and Blue to the New York Yankees, but the commissioner halted the deal.

Clearly, the Red Sox and Yankees think they can win pennants.

The Red Sox won one last year and baseball applauded the fates for the kindness lavished on old Tom Yawkey, an aging man who is baseball to the core and had only one championship in 28 years and surely deserved one more before going to his other reward.

The Yankees used to win pennants all the time but have not championed the American League since 1964. However, there is no known sentimental reason why New York should ever win again.

Where the sentiment lies is obvious.

Gene Autry wants to have a pennant. Charlie Finley wants him to have a pennant. You and I want him to have a pennant. Indeed, the world wants The Cowboy to have a pennant.

Hopefully, we will all live to see it. But the lamentable fact is that nobody lives forever.

HONOLULU YACHT RACE LURES FIVE

Five of the biggest and fastest yachts on the Pacific Coast will start the sixth biennial Multi-hull Transpacific race Sunday at noon off Point Fermin.

Their destination: Diamond Head, Honolulu.

Scheduled starters in the 2,225-mile big ocean race are Antigone, a 52-foot catamaran skippered by Bill Dendy, Escondido; Patty Cat II, 44-foot catamaran, Art Stevens, Seal Beach Yacht Club; Valkyrie, 42-foot trimaran, Bob Fincher, San Diego Yacht Club; Climax, 39-foot trimaran, Charles Andre, Las Vegas, and Thesis, 39-foot trimaran, Jim Turner, Long Beach Yacht Club.

Seal Beach Yacht Club is in charge of starting the boats. The Outrigger Canoe Club, with the assistance of the Waikiki Yacht Club, will handle the finish off Diamond Head.

Entrants are hoping for strong, true winds—unlike the previous five sailings—with a chance of breaking the elapsed time record of eight days, 19½ hours set by Bob Hanel's 45-foot catamaran Seabird in 1974.

Hill ends slump

Zoeller fires 66 for lead

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Fuzzy Zoeller fired his second successive 66 for a 12-under-par 132 total and a one stroke lead on Dave Hill after Friday's round of the $130,000 Greater Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament.

Zoeller, tied with Hill and two strokes behind first-round leader Ken Still following Thursday's play, birdied four of his first six holes Friday en route to the third best 36-hole score on the tour this year. Ray Floyd had a 13-under 131 before winning the Masters and Roger Maltbie was 12-under at 130 in Phoenix.

Hill, who recently had considered leaving the tour for the year because of a slump, played his second consecutive round without a bogey for a 67.

Still, whose first day 64 was one stoke off the course record, slumped to a 73—137.

Zoeller, medalist in the 1974 PGA qualifing school, even surprised himself with his birdie parade. He had eight for the day and six birdies and an eagle on the par-five holes for the two rounds.

"There were so many birdies, I don't know what to think," the 24-year-old former Indiana amateur champion said. "It was almost birdie at will, I guess. This is unusual for me."

Zoeller, 24, earned only $7,318 as tour rookie last year and started this tournament ranked 100th on the 1976 earnings list at $11,779. He survived the cut in nine of 20 tournaments this year and his best finish was a ninth place tie at Tallahassee.

"I've had three decent rounds in a week this year, but a fourth has been a problem," he said. "I'm hitting the ball well again and putting well, so maybe this is the week.

"Last year I played in too many tournaments," he said. "I'm laying off a little more this year and its helped my mental attitude. I'm an easy-going guy and I don't think the pressure will bother me. I just go out, hit the ball and go find it again."

Hill, ranked 38th on this year's earnings list, used a new set of irons but said that couldn't explain his emergence from the slump.

"I've played so badly the last 17 months that I don't know what the difference is."

"I was just about ready to fold it up for the rest of the year because I was hitting 300 to 600 balls every other day and nothing was happening. I was just awful so I haven't been practicing at all for the last three weeks."

New X rays of pipeline loom

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., said Friday it may become necessary to dig up and X-ray virtually every underground weld on the trans-Alaska oil pipeline, delaying its completion.

Melcher said that a private auditing company hired by the Interior Department to sort out valid weld X rays from questionable or missing X rays on the pipeline has found the records so confused that it could not carry out the audit.

Melcher said he received "the bad news" from John E. Latz, technical assistant to the undersecretary of the Interior, and from John Kyl, assistant interior secretary for congressional and legislative affairs, in a hearing Friday of his Public Lands subcommittee.

Interior Department officials could not be reached for comment.

With the 800-mile pipeline nearly two-thirds complete, more than 245 miles of pipe have been installed underground, and more than 27 miles of pipe have been laid beneath river crossings.

Melcher said the pipe is welded every 60 to 80 feet.

Unless Alyeska, the oil consortium building the pipeline, can "pull some rabbit out of the hat to prove it has X rays properly identified," said Melcher, it may be forced to re-X-ray all of the roughly 18,000 underground welds, and the above-ground welds as well, on another 200 miles of installed pipe.

Above-ground welds, comparatively accessible, would offer few problems, Melcher said, but it would be necessary to dig down to each underground weld to X-ray it.

"It's a sad day," Melcher said after hearing interior's testimony, "because this jeopardizes the schedule of the pipeline."

The problems of welds on the pipeline first emerged last August when Alyeska found discrepancies between the findings of the quality control agents of Bechtel Corp., the major contractors, and the reports of a subcontractor hired to X-ray the welds before the pipe was installed.

Interior Undersecretary Kent Frizzell said it appeared that X rays of some welds were duplicated and falsely used to represent inspections of other welds.

Alyeska checked its records and placed some 3,000 out of 31,000 welds on a suspect list.

Melcher said the auditing firm of Arthur Anderson Associates was hired to determine which welds were properly X rayed and certified and which were not.

Melcher said he would hold further hearings later this month to find out who was responsible for checking the quality of pipeline construction.

The Interior Department and Alyeska have been looking into the possibility of checking underground welds from inside the pipe, with a new technique called "acoustical holography," which would avoid digging down to the outside of the pipe.

But Melcher said he doubted that Interior could legally accept such a substitute for X ray, which is specifically required in the department's stipulations for pipeline construction.

Action seen on Teamsters' fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government appears ready to take whatever action is necessary to clean up a Teamsters Union pension fund, ranking members of the Senate Labor Committee said Friday.

Chairman Harrison A. Williams, D-N.J., and Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., also said the federal probe does not appear to have been compromised by Labor Secretary W. J. Usery's recent public praise of Teamsters officers.

However, they both called Usery's comments unwise.

Another member of the panel, Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H., said Usery's comments already had tainted the investigation. He called for Usery to "give serious consideration to stepping aside as secretary of labor."

Durkin also urged formation of a select Senate panel similar to the former Senate Watergate committee to probe the scandal-plagued union.

The senators commented after a closed-door briefing on the progress of a joint Justice-Labor Department investigation into the union's $1.4-billion Central States Pension Fund. That probe is focusing on allegations that organized-crime figures have benefitted from loans made by the fund.

"I was left with the solid feeling that the investigation is proceeding efficiently, effectively, with force and vigor," Williams said.

Both he and Javits said they are convinced the government will prosecute any wrongdoers in the case and act firmly to protect the stake of rank-and-file Teamsters members in the fund — even if it means the government itself has to step in and run the program.

"The remedy will be tailored to the situation," Williams said.

They also said the Internal Revenue Service, which recently revoked the tax-exempt status of the fund, apparently without checking first with Labor Department officials, has now agreed to cooperate more fully with the two other agencies in the probe.

Javits, the committee's ranking Republican, said a recent federal law requires the IRS to share its tax files with the Labor Department in all matters involving pension funds.

"We have called that to the attention of all concerned," Javits said. "They have heard us loud and clear."

Rickover loses claims battle— and his voice

By JOHN W. FINNEY
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON—William P. Clements Jr., the millionaire Texas oil driller who became deputy secretary of defense, had a showdown this week across a Pentagon coffee table with Hyman G. Rickover, the outspoken, politically powerful admiral. Clements apparently won.

As described by Clements, he believes he succeeded in silencing Rickover in his criticism of the Navy's shipbuilders; in particular the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co., which builds most of the admiral's nuclear-powered warships.

IF SO, Clements will have succeeded where all his predecessors have failed in taming the admiral, 76, who has relied upon his influential congressional support to give him a sort of immunity in challenging and sometimes defying the policies of his civilian superiors in the Pentagon.

A personal test of political power had developed between the two men, both of whom pride themselves on their toughness and independence.

In congressional testimony, Rickover had openly opposed Clements' proposal for settling some $1.8 billion in claims against the Navy by rewriting the shipbuilders' contracts to give them additional cost escalation. Never one to mince words, the admiral suggested the proposal could turn into "one of the biggest ripoffs in the history of the United States."

On Tuesday, Clements called Rickover into his Pentagon office and sat him down at one end of a down-filled sofa. On the other end was Adm. James L. Holloway III, the Chief of Naval Operations. Across the coffee table in his captain's chair was Clements.

CLEMENTS' appeal was to Rickover's vanity and his place in history. He suggested the admiral wanted to go down in history as the father of the nuclear Navy and not as the man who blocked the expansion of the Navy.

But, he continued, the admiral was going to gain the latter reputation if the Navy was not able to work out its problems with the shipbuilders, who, in their annoyance over the unsettled claims, are threatening not to build Navy ships.

The advice was accompanied by an order to the admiral to step aside and keep his silence as the Navy attempted to work out its claims problems with the Virginia company, a subsidiary of Tenneco Inc.

THE COMPANY has filed claims totaling $894 million — all on nuclear-powered ships and submarines built under Rickover's supervision — and has threatened to stop work on a fifth nuclear-powered aircraft carrier under construction, unless there is a prompt and reasonable settlement of its claims. In congressional testimony last month, the admiral protested that the company's claims were "inflated," terming many of them "absurd."

"I think Rickover realizes his usefulness in settling these claims has reached point zero," Clements said in an interview Friday night. "I think it is going to work out — after considerable persuasion, to put it politely."

Rickover, in an uncharacteristically subdued voice, said he did not wish to comment on Clements' statements that he had agreed to remove himself from the claims dispute.

EXCLUSIVE

"I don't want to get into an argument," he said in a telephone interview.

TO A DEGREE, Rickover has prevailed with his contention that, rather than rewriting the contracts, the shipbuilders should be held to their contracts and required to settle their claims through the normal claims settlement procedures of the Navy.

Newport News, along with Litton Industries, last month rejected the contractual relief proposed by Clements as inadequate. That forced the claims back into the settlement procedures of the Navy, which the shipbuilders have protested are too cumbersome and time-consuming.

Clements said he had come to the conclusion that, if the claims procedures were to work, it was necessary to "remove the two parties that have been providing most of the acrimony" — namely Rickover and John P. Diesel, president of Newport News.

Diesel was on vacation and not available for comment.

As a sequel to the Tuesday showdown, the Navy on Friday night announced the creation of a special three-man board with an independent mandate to reach an accelerated settlement of the claims by Newport News.

Soybean sale to Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sale of 800,000 metric tons of U. S. soybeans to the Soviet Union by an American firm during the 1976-77 marketing year was announced Friday by the Department of Agriculture.

The department declined to name the American company involved in the sale.

The sale will total more than $200 million, a department spokesman said. He said it will amount to 29 million bushels, and since a soybean carryover of 100 million bushels from past crops is anticipated the United States "can handle the sale easily, and more."

Officials said the sale was part of a larger Soviet purchase totaling one million metric tons, and the U.S. share may be slightly more or less than 800,000 tons. A metric tons equals 2,205 pounds.

Pugil-stick case 'crumbling'

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Marine Corps dropped charges of aggravated assault and negligent homicide Friday against one of the drill sergeants blamed for the death of Pvt. Lynn McClure.

A general court-martial scheduled for Sgt. Henry E. Aguilar was reduced to a special, with lesser penalties, and his attorney said the whole case may crumble.

If S/Sgt. Henry Wallraff is acquitted—as Sgt. Harold Bronson was on Monday—"I wouldn't be surprised if they drop all the charges," Capt. Charles Ryan said.

"The acquittal of Sgt. Bronson brought them very close to dropping against everybody but because of the pressures, wherever they are, they want to avoid the look of a whitewash," Ryan said. "The best case they had was against Bronson."

The three drill instructors were handling a special platoon to which misfits were assigned at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot when McClure, 20, was forced into an hour of pugil-stick combat for an hour last Dec. 6. He died unconscious March 13.

Aguilar earlier was charged with negligent homicide, three counts of violating a lawful general order and two of dereliction of duty as well as assault but now faces only two counts of violating orders and one of maltreatment.

A possible maximum penalty is now only six months in prison, forfeiture of pay and a bad conduct discharge.

If Aguilar had been tried by general court martial and convicted, he could have been sentenced to five years in prison.

The drill instructors' captain, Cecil V. Taylor of Orlando, Fla., has been charged with violating orders, dereliction of duty and assault, but no decision hs been announced about a trial. Two of his supervisors were given letters of reprimand.

Wallraff, 27, of St. Croix, Minn., faces a special courtmartial trial July 14 on charges of dereliction of duty and violating a general order in allowing the combat.

No trial date has been set for Aguilar, 23, from Hanford, Calif., who now faces only two charges of violating orders and one of maltreatment.

A "reassessment" of the case against Aguilar came after Bronson was acquitted of all charges including involuntary manslaughter and assault after a two-week general court martial before a board of five officers and three enlicted men.

Vietnams reunited, with Hanoi capital

By DENIS D. GRAY

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — North and South Vietnam were officially reunited Friday after more than 20 years of internal war. Hanoi was declared the capital. Radio Hanoi said leaders of the new Socialist Republic of Vietnam were elected by ballot.

The radio said an "explosion of applause" greeted the announcement in the 492-member National Assembly.

The former North Vietnamese flag, anthem and emblem were approved as symbols of the country.

"A new page of Vietnamese history has been turned," the broadcast said. "At this moment, 8:30 a.m. (9:30 p.m. EDT Thursday) on July 2, 1976, the Vietnamese nation is officially considered as a unified country from Cao Lang to Cao Mau."

Cao Lang is the northernmost point of what was formerly North Vietnam and Cau Mau is the southern peninsula of the former South Vietnam.

The formal reunification announcement was something of an anticlimax, since Hanoi and Saigon have described Vietnam as one during the past year. But the two halves maintained separate government machineries and leaders until Friday.

As many Western observers had anticipated, all but one high government office went to North Vietnamese leaders rather than to those who had fought in the South.

The exception was Nguyen Huu Tho, former president of the Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam, who will be one of two vice presidents. The other will be Nguyen Luong Bang, North Vietnam's vice president since 1969.

Truong Chinh, a hardliner and reputedly pro-Chinese, will be chairman of the standing committee of the Assembly.

There was no initial indication that changes would occur in the highest ranks of Vietnam's Communist Party, the Lao Dong, where all major decisions are made and where real power lies.

Most Vietnam watchers say the top five men in the party's 11-man Politburo are First Secretary Le Duan, followed by Chinh, Dong, Southerner Phan Hung and Nguyen Vo Giap, the general who routed the French at Dien Bien Phu.

The top leadership is composed of aging veterans, most of them in their late 60s. Almost all helped found the Communist Party, fought the Japanese and the French and finally directed the struggle against the United States and the Saigon governments it backed during the last war.

Vietnam was divided by the 1954 Geneva agreement that followed the French defeat at Dien Bien Phu. The last Americans were withdrawn from the South on April 30, 1975, following the Communist victory.

Since then, the United States has refused to recognize either Vietnamese government and has vetoed their applications for membership in the United Nations.

The following short biographies of some top officials elected Friday were compiled from authoritative sources:

F48—President Ton Duc Thang held the same position in North Vietnam since the death of Vietnam's revolutionary giant, Ho Chi Minh, in 1969. At 88, he is not considered a significant figure and is not a member of the all-powerful party Politburo.

His anti-French activities as a leader of student strikes forced him into exile. He returned to Vietnam in 1927 and enrolled in Uncle Ho's Revolutionary Youth League. Thang later spent 15 years in jail for complicity in murder and sedition. He was one of the more extremist members of North Vietnam's Communist Party.

Tass points out America's shortcomings on birthday

The official Soviet news agency said the event is marred by seven million citizens out of work, inflation, street crime, drug abuse, racial tension and corruption in high places.

The Tass report said: "Owing to a number of objective factors and a fortunate concurrance of circumstances, the United States has grown into a big capitalist power with a highly developed economy, science and technology."

But it added, "The gap between America's aspirations and reality is still great and ... America is still very far from attaining the goals it set before itself 200 years ago." This view, it said, was expressed even by President Ford in a Bicentennial statement.

"Millions of Americans find no occasion to celebrate this year. There are over seven million jobless in the country, inflation is on the increase, prices are soaring while purchasing power is falling. There are also many social problems such as crime, drug addiction, alcoholism, strained racial relations and many others. Corruption is widespread in top political echelons.

"Bourgeois propaganda keeps harping on 'American liberties,' 'democracy' and 'equal opportunities.' The worth of these things was well demonstrated by the recent exposures of criminal activities by the CIA, FBI and other governmental services."

The Washington-datelined article, written by correspondent Nikolai Pakhomov, was carried on Tass' Russian language service, indicating that it was intended for Soviet readers.

Tass said U.S. official figures show 40 million Americans live in poverty, 12 million of them starving, and about 100 million are living on incomes much below the national average.

"The gap between the rich and the poor in America keeps widening," Tass said, citing a University of Michigan report.

Robbery-murder trial of 3 suspects delayed

The trial of three young Los Alamitos men on murder and robbery charges stemming from a holdup attack during which the victim died of a heart attack was postponed Friday until July 9.

The three were arrested April 14 in connection with the March 11 death of Nathaniel J. Hersperger, of Long Beach.

The two men, apparently frightened by Hersperger's attack, fled in a waiting car driven by a third man.

Prosecutor Paul Marin alleged during the preliminary hearing for the three suspects that the bandits in the house were Gunnerson and King and that Pumroy was the driver of the car.

Cory names tax referees

From Our State Bureau

Referees are appointed to four-year terms, and serve nder assignment from county probate courts in appraising estates to determine inheritance taxes due the state.

Dial for Dollars

Everybody's got things around they no longer need ... and they'd like to sell. And the place to advertise those things is the I,P-T Classified Section. To prove the point, we've listed some recent Classified ads below. Next to them are listed the number of calls the people received — and the number of people who are still looking for similar items.

| RECENT ADS | NUMBER OF CALLS | PEOPLE STILL LOOKING |
|---|---|---|
| John Novak of Cerritos sold his Chevy camper with a weekend ad. | 14 | 13 |
| Peter D. Smith, Long Beach, was overwhelmed with the response he got with his ad for a color TV. | 80 | 79 |
| Mrs. Lee Smith, Long Beach, "didn't realize that everyone reads the classified" when she advertized her lawnmower for sale. | 20 | 19 |
| Mrs. Joe Schultz was very pleased with the results of her ad for a housekeeper. She found one the first day. | 29 | 28 |
| Larry Miller was "just real pleased" with the response he got on his ad for a Triumph motorcycle. | 15 | 14 |

Give you some ideas? We hope so. Because there just isn't a better place than the I,P-T Classified Section, with it's over 400 classifications, for reaching just the people that are looking for the goods or services you've got to offer. Give us a try
